The Public Records of the Kingdom.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, Your MAJESTY's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Commons of Great Britain in Parliament assembled, having taken into our Consideration the State of the Public Records of this Kingdom, and the Necessity of providing for the better Arrangement, Preservation, and more convenient Use of the same, humbly beg leave to lay before Your Majesty the Report of our Proceedings thereon; and to represent to Your Majesty, that in several of the Principal Offices we have found the Public Records preserved with great Order and Regularity, and in some few, with a Method and Care which are exemplary; but that, in many of the most important Offices, they are wholly unarranged, undescribed, and unascertained; that some of them are exposed to Erasure, Alteration, and Embezzlement, and others are lodged in Places where they are daily perishing by Damp, or incurring a continual Risk of Destruction by Fire.

A Period of nearly Seventy Years has elapsed since the last General Parliamentary Inquiry upon this Subject; and, during this Interval of Time, the Change which has taken place in the Language and written Character of Judicial Proceedings, as well as the large Accumulation of Materials which has been progressively superadded in every Department, have increased the Difficulties of methodizing the several Repositories, or applying their Contents to Purposes of practical Use.

In the Course of our Inquiry we have found that many of the Public Buildings, allotted to these Uses, and especially those Buildings which belong to Your Majesty's Exchequer in all its Branches, comprehending the ancient Records and Muniments of the Rights and Possessions of the Crown, and the Vouchers and Accounts of the Public Revenues and Expenture, are in a State so incommodious and insecure, as to require immediate Attention.

It has also appeared to us, that the salutary Measures heretofore adopted by Your Majesty's Authority, for methodizing the Contents of some of the principal Repositories of Your Majesty's Records and Papers of State, might also be extended to many other Repositories, with Consequences highly beneficial to the Public Service.

And the same Motives which encouraged our Predecessors to intreat Your Majesty's Directions for printing the ancient Records of Domesday, and the Rolls of Parliament, have also induced us to submit to Your Majesty's Wisdom, our Desire of extending the same Measure to other ancient and valuable Monuments of our History, Laws, and Government.

Your faithful Commons do therefore most humbly beseech Your Majesty, that You will be graciously pleased to give such Directions as Your Majesty, in Your great Wisdom, shall think fit, for the better Preservation, Arrangement, and more convenient Use of the Public Records of this Kingdom.

And we beg leave further to assure Your Majesty, that whatever extraordinary Expenses may be incurred by the Directions which Your Majesty in Your great Wisdom shall think fit to give on this Occasion, shall be cheerfully provided for and made good by Your faithful Commons.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,

Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer reported to the House, That their Address of Friday last (that His Majesty would be graciously pleased to give such Directions as He shall think fit, for the better Preservation, Arrangement, and more convenient Use of the Public Records of this Kingdom; and to assure His Majesty, that whatever extraordinary Expenses may be incurred by the Directions which His Majesty shall think fit to give on this Occasion, shall be made good by His faithful Commons) had been presented to His Majesty; and that His Majesty had commanded him to acquaint this House, that He will give Directions as desired by the said Address.

COMMISSION

For executing the Measures recommended by the HOUSE OF COMMONS.

19th July 1800.

GEORGE R.

GEORGE THE THIRD by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c.

To Our right trusty and right entirely beloved Cousin and Councillor William Henry Cavendish Duke of Portland, Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter; Our right trusty and well beloved Councillors William Wyndham Baron Grenville, and Henry Dundas, Esquire, Our Three Principal Secretaries of State; Our right trusty and well beloved Councillors Henry Addington, Esquire, Speaker of the House of Commons; William Pitt, Esquire, Chancellor and Under Treasurer of Our Exchequer, and First Commissioner of Our Treasury; Sir Richard Pepper Arden, Knight, Master of the Rolls; Frederick Campbell, Esquire, commonly called Lord Frederick Campbell, Our Clerk Register of Scotland; Sylvester Douglas, Esquire, one of the Commissioners of Our Treasury; Our trusty and well beloved Sir John Mitford, Knight, Our Attorney General; Sir William Grant, Knight, Our Solicitor General; Robert Dundas, Esquire, Our Advocate for Scotland; and Charles Abbot, Esquire; Greeting.

WHEREAS the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses and Commissioners of Shires and Boroughs, in Our Parliament of Great Britain assembled, having taken into their Consideration the State of the Public Records of this Kingdom, and the Necessity of providing for the better Arrangement, Preservation, and more convenient Use of the same; have humbly laid before Us a Report of their Proceedings thereon; and have also humbly represented unto Us, that the Public Records of the Kingdom are in many Offices unarranged, undescribed, and unascertained; that many of them are exposed to Erasure, Alteration, and Embezzlement, and are lodged in Buildings incommodious and insecure; and that it would be beneficial to the Public Service, that the Records and Papers contained in many of the principal Offices and Repositories, should be methodized, and that certain of the more ancient and valuable amongst them should be printed; and have humbly besought Us that We would be graciously pleased to give such Directions thereupon as We in Our Wisdom shall think fit.

Now know ye, That We, considering the Premises, and earnestly desiring more effectually to provide for the better Arrangement, Preservation, and more convenient Use of the said Records and Papers, and reposing great Trust and Confidence in your Fidelity, Discretion, and Integrity;—

Have authorized and appointed, and by these Presents Do authorize and appoint you the said William Henry Cavendish Duke of Portland, William Wyndham Baron Grenville, Henry Dundas, Henry Addington, William Pitt, Sir Richard Pepper Arden, Frederick Campbell (commonly called Lord Frederick Campbell), Sylvester Douglas, Sir John Mitford, Sir William Grant, Robert Dundas, and Charles Abbot, and any Three or more of you, to make a diligent and particular Inquiry into the several Matters which Our faithful Commons have, in the abovementioned Report of their Proceedings, represented as fitting to be provided for by Our Royal Authority.

And furthermore, We do by these Presents give and grant to you Our said Commissioners, and any Three or more of you, full Power and Authority to cause all and singular the Officers, Clerks, and Ministers of the said Offices and Repositories respectively, to bring and produce upon Oath before you, or any Three or more of you, all and singular Rolls, Records, Books, and Papers, or other Writings belonging to the said Offices or Repositories, or any of them, or any Officers within the same, and which shall be in the Custody of them or any of them respectively.

RECORD COMMISSION, 1800.

And Our further Will and Pleasure is, That ye, or any Three or more of you, upon due Examination of the Premises, shall cause such Matters to be duly and speedily executed as ye shall judge fitting and proper to be done, for the more effectual Execution of the several Measures recommended by Our faithful Commons in the said Report of their Proceedings relative thereto.

And to the End that Our Royal Will and Pleasure in the Premises may be executed with the greater Regularity and Expedition, We farther by these Presents will and command, and do hereby give full Power and Authority to you, or any Three or more of you, to nominate and appoint from Time to Time such Person of Ability, Care, and Diligence, as ye shall think fit, to be and act as your Clerk or Secretary, for the Purpose of aiding you in the Execution of these Presents; and also to nominate and appoint in like Manner such several Persons of Ability, Care, and Diligence, as ye may think fit, to be Sub-Commissioners, to be employed under your Direction and Controul in the Premises, and more especially to methodize, regulate, and digest the Records, Rolls, Instruments, Books, and Papers, in any of Our Public Offices and Repositories, and to cause such of the said Records, Rolls, Instruments, Books, and Papers as are decayed, and in Danger of being destroyed, to be bound and secured; and to make exact Calendars and Indexes thereof; and to superintend the printing of such Calendars and Indexes, and original Records and Papers, as ye shall cause to be printed: Which said Clerk or Secretary, and Sub-Commissioners, and every of them, shall and may be removed by you, or any Three of you, from Time to Time, at your Will and Pleasure, full Power and Authority being hereby given to you to appoint others in their Places respectively.

And We further will and command, and by these Presents ordain, That ye, or any Three or more of you, shall from Time to Time certify, under your Hands and Seals, unto Our Lord High Treasurer, or unto the Commissioners of Our Treasury for the Time being, what shall be a fit and suitable Recompence to the above-mentioned Clerk or Secretary, and Sub-Commissioners respectively, for their Pains and Services in the Execution of the Duties hereby required to be by them performed; which said Recompence it is Our Will and Pleasure shall thereupon be paid to them respectively and accordingly.

And Our further Will and Pleasure is, That ye, or any Three or more of you, do and shall, on or before the 25th Day of March in the Year of our Lord 1801, and so from Year to Year, on or before the 25th Day of March in each Year respectively, so long as this Commission shall continue in force, certify unto Us in Our Privy Council, under your Hands and Seals respectively, all and every of the several Proceedings of yourselves and of the said Sub-Commissioners had by virtue of these Presents, together with such other Matters (if any), as may be deserving of Our Royal Consideration touching or concerning the Premises, and what further Measures (if any) ye shall think fit to propose thereupon.

And lastly, We do by these Presents ordain that this Our Commission shall continue in full Force and Virtue; and that ye Our said Commissioners, or any Three or more of you, shall and may from Time to Time, and at any Place or Places, proceed in the Execution thereof, and of every Matter and Thing therein contained, although the same be not continued from Time to Time by Adjournment.

Given at Our Court at Saint James's, the 19th Day of July 1800, in the Fortieth Year of Our Reign.

By His MAJESTY's Command.

(Signed) Portland.

I.—FORMATION OF THE RECORD.

SECT. I.—NAME.

DOMESDAY BOOK, one of the most ancient Records of England, is the Register from which Judgement was to be given upon the value, tenure, and services of Lands therein described.

Formation of the Record.

§ 1. Name.

Other Names by which it appears to have been known, were, Rotulus Wintoniæ, (') Scriptura Theſauri Regis, (') Liber de Wintonia, (') and Liber Regis ('). Sic Henry Spelman adds, Liber Judicarius, Confualis Angliæ, Angliæ Notitia & Lustratio, and Rotulus Regis. (')

<sup>1</sup> Ingulphus. ed. Gale. p. 79. See also Placit. Abbrev. 1 R. Joh. Suff. rot. 7. Ibid. 11 R. Joh. Linc. rot. 6. in which last reference it is said: "Preterea idem Robertus ponit se super Rotulum Wintoniæ quod terra illa pertinet a Conquestu Angliæ ad feudum quod ipse habet tenere in capite de Domino Rege."

<sup>2</sup> Registr. Mon. Abend. MS. Cotton. Brit. Mus. Claud. B. vi. fol. 150. Stow, Annals p. 118: fol. Lond. 1631. tells us, "The Booke of Bermondſey ſaith this Book was laid up in the King's Treſurie (which was in the Church of Wincheſter or Weſtminſter,) in a place called Domus Dei, or Gods houſe, and ſo the name of the booke, therefore called Domus Dei, and ſince, thortly, Domeſday."

From the Introduction to the Abbreviatio Placitorum, we learn that, in the archives of the Earls of Cheſter, there formerly exiſted a Roll, denominated the Domeſday of Cheſter. The entries in this Roll, it is obſerved, were eſteemed of high authority, and perhaps conſequential evidence; for in an Aſſize of Darrein Preſentment in the County of Cheſter, anno 38 Hen. III. between Roger de Sandbach and the Abbot of Deulacreſe, as to the Church of Sandbach, removed by Certiorari into the King's Bench, the Court, amongſt other grounds for pronouncing their judgement, give the following reaſon: "Et quia convictum eſt per DOMESDAY CEſTR' quod perpetuum habet firmitatem et omnia quæ in eo continentur inperpetuum ſunt ſtabilia in quo continetur quod, &c. conſideratum eſt, &c." Hill. 38 Hen. III. Ceſtr. rot. 10.

Dugdale quotes a Deed in the Monachiſon Anglicanum, tom. iii. p. 164. "ex Regiſtro quodam nuncupato DOMESDAY, penes Decanum & Capit. Ebor."

Among Dr. Rawlinſon's manuſcripts in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, is a fragment of a ſurvey of all the manors belonging to the Deanery of St. Paul's, taken in 1181, and called "Domeſday Radulphi de Diceto."

SECT. 2.—DATE.

Formation of the Record.
§ 2. Date.

THE exact time of the Conqueror's undertaking the Survey is differently stated by Historians. The Red Book of the Exchequer seems to have been erroneously quoted (*) as fixing the time of entrance upon it in 1080; it being merely stated in that Record, (in which the original of the Dialogus de Scaccario is found,) that the work was undertaken at a signe subsequent to the total reduction of the island to William's authority.

From the Memorial of the Completion of this Survey, at the end of the second Volume, it is evident that it was finished in 1086.

Matthew Paris, (*) Robert of Gloucester, (†) the Annals of Waverley, (‡) and the Chronicle of Bermondsey (§) give the year 1083 as the date of the Record. Henry of Huntingdon places it in 1084. (¶) The Saxon Chronicle in 1085. Bromton, (‡) Simeon of Durham, (¶) Florence of Worcester, (¶) the Chronicle of Mailros, (¶) Roger Hoveden, (¶) Wikes, (¶) and Hemingford, (¶) in 1086: and the Ypodigma Neultrix, (¶) and Diceto (¶) in 1087.

If, from internal evidence, the progress of its formation could be traced, there would be little difficulty in reconciling the testimonies of these Historians.

The person and the property of Odo Bishop of Bayeux are said to have been seized by the Conqueror in 1082, (¶) but as the estates of that prelate are retained in the Survey in terms which indicate actual possession, we are left to conclude either that his property was not confiscated, or that the Survey of it was taken at a period earlier than his disgrace. The probability which the entries afford is, that the estates were under sequestration but not forfeited. (¶)

From the words "Hugo de Greutemafnil tenet feudo Regine" in fol. 232 a. of the first volume of Domesday, Nichols conjectures (¶) that the account of Leicestershire was taken before the death of the Conqueror's Queen, that is before the second of November 1083; and it is a curious fact that, in the survey of her property in Buckinghamshire, it is said "Matilda tenet," as if the inquest for ascertaining the value of the estates had been held while the Queen was living; though, at the close of the Return, when the improved rent is noticed, it is said, "Quando vivebat Regina, xv. lib."

Diceto was the Dean, under whose direction it was made. A manuscript note of Bishop Kennett, also in the same library, in a copy of Cowel's Law Interpreter, quotes the Domesday of the Nuns of Halwoll. This last it is probable was only a Leiger Book of the Monastery.

¶ Script. X. Twyfd. 487. 53. Baron Mafers in the Notes to his "Excerpta ex Orderico Vitali," p. 259. represents the Survey to have been begun in the fourth or fifth year of the Conqueror's reign, that is as early as 1071.

¶ See Hafted. Hist. Kent. vol. i. p. 61.

¶ In Gloucestershire, two or three instances occur of land, which had been held by the Bishop of Bayeux, being "in manu regis." See Domesday, tom. i. fol. 163.

¶ Hist. Leicest. introd. volume, p. xxxv.

From other passages, however, in folios 68 b, 83 b, 163 b, 170 b, and 222 of the same volume, we have the clearest evidence possible that the surveys of the Counties of Wilts, Dorset, Gloucester, and Northampton, were taken after that event. (*) From an incidental mention of the siege of the Castle of Saint Sufanna in Maine, fol. 158 b. it is evident that Oxfordshire must also have been surveyed after the same event. (†) Rudborne, in his Historia major Wintonienfis, assures us that William did not entertain the project of his Census till after the Queen's death. (‡)

Formation of the Record.

§ 2. Date.

In folios 77 b. and 91 of the first volume, Maurice is mentioned as Bishop of London, who, according to the annals of Waverley (*) was chosen to that dignity in 1083; though, according to the Saxon Chronicle, not till 1085. (†)

The date of that part of the Survey which relates to Shropshire is ascertained from fol. 252, where the Abbey of Shrewsbury is mentioned; "quā facit ibi comes." Ordericus Vitalis says the foundation of this Abbey was vowed by Roger de Montgomery in 1083. The Church was evidently building at the time of the Survey: and, according to the history of the Abbey, which Dugdale gives from a Register formerly in Sir Richard Leveson's possession, it appears to have been finished in 1087. (‡) The Conqueror's Charter shews that the monks were not seated in it till the latter year. (¶)

That Lincolnshire was not surveyed till 1085, or even later, seems evident from the following passage: "Refidua dimidia carucū trāe habuit 7 habet Sca Maria de Lincolia. in qua sic est episcopatus." (*) The absolute removal of the See, from Dorchester in Oxfordshire to Lincoln, having taken place, according to Matthew Paris, in that very year. (†)

William Bishop of Thetford, mentioned in the Second Volume of the Domesday Survey, did not become so till 1085, (‡)

An attentive consideration of the passages already referred to, added to the entry at the close of the Second Volume of the Survey, leads us to believe that, by the multiplication of subordinate Inquests, the work must have been completed in a short time; and, that from a transcript or abridgment of the Breviates from the different Counties, the great Register was afterwards formed, which has ever since been known by the name of Domesday. (¶)

* In fol. 222. we are told, "W. rex dedit Scadewelle S. Edmundo pro anima regine Mathild." Indeed in Dorsetshire, tom. i. fol. 83. the death of Matilda is expressly alluded to. Anselm, who held it, is stated, according to his own account, to have held it of the Queen, but it is added that after her death he did not petition the King for the land. "Hanc tñ tenuit Anselm [f. Ameline] de regina ut dicit. sed post mortem ejus regem non requisivit."

† This fruitless Siege in 1083 is described by Ordericus Vitalis; it was raised after three years. See Bouquet, Recueil des Historiens des Gaules & de la France, tom. xii. p. 617.

‡ "*Itinus Matildis consilio Wilhelmus rex pacifice cum Anglis tractabat, quamvis ipsa vixisset; post mortem vero ipse Matildis omnem induit tyrannidem. Unde statim misit Justitiarium per totam Angliam singillationem per Comitatus; & inquirere fecit & diligenter perquirari, quot acra vel jugera terrae, quidque uni militi sufficere posset; fecitque inquirere de urbibus, et villis, et viculis, ad quid in solidum ascenderent. ¶ Under Sandwiche, tom. i. fol. 3. we read, "In anno quo facta est haec Descriptio;" and under Roelent, in Cheshire, tom. i. fol. 269. it is said, "Ipso anno hujus Descriptiois datū ē ad firmā hujus burgi theloneū p. xii. solid."

SECT. 3.—ORIGIN AND OBJECT.

Formation of the Record.

§ 3.
Origin and Object.

1. INGULPHUS affirms that this Survey was made in imitation of the policy of Alfred, who, at the time he divided the Kingdom into Counties, Hundreds, and Tithings, had an Inquisition taken and digested into a Register, which was called, from the place in which it was deposited, the Roll of Winchester. (*)

The formation of such a Survey, however, in the time of Alfred, may be fairly doubted; as we have only a solitary authority for its existence, and the most diligent investigation has not been able to recover, among the Records either of the Saxon or of later times, the slightest indication that such a Survey was ever known. Had it existed in the Century immediately preceding the Norman Conquest, it would have prevented the necessity of giving those minute Descriptions of Land so common among the later of the Saxon Charters. The separation of Counties also is known to have been a division long anterior to the time of Alfred. (*)

Bishop Kennett, in his Parochial Antiquities, tells us that Alfred's Register had the name of Dome-boc, from which the name of DOMESDAY BOOK was only a corruption. This may, perhaps, serve as a clue to the explanation of the whole. They who were familiar with the name of Domesday, (and it was the common appellation for the Conqueror's Survey among the English,) considered that the Dome-boc of Alfred, being almost synonymous, was intended to designate the same kind of Register: whereas the Dome-boc was, in reality, the Code of Saxon Laws. It is noticed as such in the Laws of Edward the elder, (*) and more particularly in those of Æthelstan. (*)

2. The Saxon Chronicle furnishes a passage, under the year 1085, which enters minutely into the motives for the formation of this Survey, and which, if correct, also fixes the time of its commencement to that year.

"An. MLXXXV. Hoc anno, rumor incescit, et serio dictum est, Canutum Regem Denmarciæ, Sweini Regis filium, terram hanc cogitasse, et voluisse eam subjugare, Rodbeardi Comitis Flandrensis auxilio, propterea quod Canutus haberet [uxorem] Rodbeardi filiam. Quum Willelmus Anglorum Rex, qui tunc agebat in Normannia (possedit enim tum Anglorum terram tum Normanniam) hoc intellexisset, profectus est in Anglorum terram cum tanto exercitu equitum ac peditum, è Francorum regno atque è Britannia [conscriptorum,] quantus nunquam antea hanc terram petebat; adeo ut homines mirarentur, quo modo hæc terra posset totum illum exercitum alere. * Ibid. p. 57. LL. Æthelst. 3. See also p. 77. LL. Eadg. 3. The following is Dr. Wilkins's notice of the Dome-boc in his Glossary, p. 398. "Domeboc. Liber Judicialis. Frequens est in his Legibus Judicialis Libri mentio, neque interim quis fuerit ulquam apparet. Bedæ lib. Eccles. Hist. ii. cap. 5. ait, Æthelbertum Cantie Regem scripsisse idiomate Saxonico libellum, cui nomen indidit Decreta Judiciorum, atque Judicia illa vel sua memoria tradidit fuisse observata. Hic noster etiam Ælfredus in Præfatione fatetur, se ex Æthelberto sumpsisse nonnulla. Quid plura? Afferius Menevensis, olim Ælfredo Regi familiaris, prodit ipsum Regem Saxonis mandasse literis Judiciorum Decretas, verum ad nos pervenire injuria temporum non permisit."

Carte, in the Gen. Hist. of England, vol. i. p. 314, appears to have had the same notion of Alfred's Dome-boc. Edward the elder, he observes, (the son and immediate successor of Alfred,) in the Preface to his Laws, enjoins all his reeves and ministers, who had any charge in the state, to judge equitably according to the directions of that Book, to which they were to adhere strictly in all cases. In the page immediately following, there is a sentence less intelligible: Carte laments "that the Dome-Book of Alfred, so much respected in Westminster Hall to the time of Edward IV. hath been since lost."

exercitum per totam hanc terram inter suos subditos, qui exercitum aluerunt, pro sua quisque terræ portione. Experti sunt incolæ multos dolores hoc anno; et Rex permittit devastari terras maritimas, ut, si inimici ejus [in terram] ascenderent, iis non esset in promptu compectus. Quum autem Rex pro certo haberet, suos inimicos impeditos fuisse, nec potuisse expeditionem facere, dimisit aliquam partem exercitus in propriam nationem, aliquam retinuit in hac terra donec hyems finiretur. Ad natales fuit Rex in Gleawceaster cum suis proceribus, et tenuit ibi Curiam suam v. dies; postea autem Archiepiscopus & Clerici habuerunt Synodum trium dierum. Ibi fuit Mauricius electus in Episcopum ad Lundene, et Willielmus ad Northfolc, et Rodbeardus ad Cæsterfire; hi autem omnes erant Regis Capellani. Post hæc, tenuit Rex magnum Concilium, et graves sermones habuit cum suis proceribus de hac terra, quo modo incoletur, & a quibus hominibus. Mittebat idcirco per totam Anglorum terram in singulos Comitatus suos servos, quibus permittit scrutari quot hydarum centensæ essent in Comitatu, quidque Rex ipse haberet terrarum & pecorum in eo Comitatu; et quantum Census annui deberet percipere ex eo Comitatu. Permittit etiam describi quantum terrarum ejus Archiepiscopi haberent, et Dioecesani Episcopi, ac ejus Abbates, ejusque comites; et, ne longior in hoc finis, quid aut quantum unusquisque haberet, qui terras possideret in Anglorum gente, sive terrarum sive pecoris, quantumque illud pecuniâ valeret. Tam diligenter lustrari terram permittit, ut ne unica esset hyda, aut virgata terra, ne quidem (quod dictu turpe, verum is factu turpe non existimavit,) bos, aut vacca, aut porcus præter mitebatur, quod non is retulerat in censum: omniaque postea scripta ad eum afferbantur.” (¹)

Origin and Object.

Upon this passage Sir William Blackstone has the following Commentary. “We learn,” he says, (²) “from the Saxon Chronicle, that in the nineteenth year of King William’s reign an invasion was apprehended from Denmark; and the military constitution of the Saxons being then laid aside, and no other introduced in its stead, the kingdom was wholly defenceless: which occasioned the King to bring over a large army of Normans and Bretons, who were quartered upon every landholder, and greatly oppressed the people. This apparent weakness, together with the grievances occasioned by a foreign force, might co-operate with the King’s remonstrances, and the better incline the nobility to listen to his proposals for putting them in a posture of defence. For, as soon as the danger was over, the King held a great council, to inquire into the state of the nation; the immediate consequence of which was the compiling of the great Survey called Domesday Book, which was finished the next year: and in the latter end of that very year the King was attended by all his nobility at Sarum, where all the principal landholders submitted their lands to the yoke of military tenure, became the King’s vassals, and did homage and fealty to his person. (³) This seems to have been the era of formally introducing the feudal tenures by law; and probably the very law, thus made at the Council of Sarum, is that which is still extant, and couched in these remarkable words: ‘Statuimus, ut omnes liberi homines federe & sacramento affirmet, quod intra & extra universum regnum Angliæ Wilhelmo Regi domino suo fideles esse volunt; terras & honores illius omni fidelitate ubique servare cum eo, & contra inimicos & alienigenas defendere.’” (⁴) “This new polity therefore,” says Sir William Blackstone, “seems not to have been imposed by the Conqueror, but nationally and freely adopted by the general assembly of the whole Realm, in the same manner as other nations of Europe had before adopted it, upon the same principle of self-security. And, in particular, they had the recent example of the French nation before their eyes; which had gradually surrendered up all its allodial or free lands into the King's hands, who restored them to the owners as a beneficium or feud, to be held to them and such of their heirs as they previously nominated to the King; and thus by degrees all the allodial estates of France were converted into feuds, and the freemen became the vassals of the Crown. The only difference between this change of tenures in France and that in England, was, that the former was effected gradually, by the consent of private persons; the latter was done at once, all over England, by the common consent of the nation." (*)

Sir Martin Wright also supposes that, as this general Homage and Fealty was done about the time that Domesday Book was finished, and not before, the Survey was taken "in order to discover the quantity of every man's fee, and to fix his Homage; because anciently the name and quantity of the fee, &c. was specified in the Homage. And this probably" he adds, "was the reason why almost all the historians of those times join the account of this Survey and of the Homage done about that time together, in such a manner that we must needs think they took them to have immediate relation one to the other." (*)

On the other hand, Lord Coke, the Judges of Ireland in the case of Tenures, Mr. Selden, Nathaniel Bacon, and others, were of opinion, that Tenures were not brought into England by the Conqueror, but that they were common among the Saxons: and the internal evidence of Domesday itself bears no reference whatever to any simultaneous surrender of former tenures and re-grant of the same as feudal.

SECT. 4.—MODE OF EXECUTION.

1. FOR the adjusting of this Survey, certain Commissioners, called the King's Justiciaries, (*) were appointed. Those for the midland Counties at least, if not for all the districts, were, Remigius Bishop of Lincoln, Walter Giffard Earl of Buckingham, Henry de Ferers, and Adam the brother of Eudo Dapifer, who probably associated to them some principal person in each Shire. This we learn from the following curious document in the Register of St. Mary Worcester, usually called Heming's Charters, preserved among the Cotton Manuscripts in the British Museum, Tib. A. XIII.

The Inquiritors, it appears, upon the oaths of the Sheriffs, the Lords of each Manor, the Presbyters of every Church, the Reeves of every Hundred, the Bailiffs and six Villans of every village, were to enquire into the name of the place, who held it in the time of King Edward, who was the present possessor, how many hides in the Manor, how many carrucates in demesne, how many homagers, how many villans, how many cotarii, how many servi, what free-men, how many tenants in socage, what quantity of wood, how much meadow and pasture, what mills and fish-ponds, how much added or taken away, what the gross value in King Edward's time, what the present value, and how much each free-man or soc-man had or has. All this was to be triply estimated: first, as the estate was held in the time of the Confessor; then, as it was bestowed by King William; and thirdly, as its value stood at the formation of the Survey. The jurors were moreover to state whether any advance could be made in the value.

Such are the exact terms of an Inquisition, accompanied by the names of the Jurors and the Return of property, in the counties of CAMBRIDGE and HERTFORD, belonging to the monastery of ELY; the following transcript of part of which, from another manuscript in the Cotton Library, (*) will shew more minutely the description and condition of the Jurors.

2. The method generally followed in entering the Returns was, first, to entitle the Estate to its owner, always beginning with "Terra Regis." (1) The Hundred was next specified; then the Tenant; with the Place; and afterward, the description of the property. 2.
Inquisitions.

The writer of the Saxon Chronicle, with some degree of asperity, informs us, that not a hyde or yardland, not an Ox, Cow, or Hog were omitted in the Census. It should seem, however, that the jurors, in numerous instances, framed returns of a more extensive nature than was absolutely required by the King's precept, and it is, perhaps, on this account that we have different kinds of descriptions in different Counties. (2) In some counties, when the Exchequer Domesday was excerpted from the Rolls, the irrelevant matter appears to have been struck out; while in others it was probably retained. The words also of the Rolls were for the most part given in full, or but partially contracted; while, in the transcribed Survey, an abundance of minute contractions were used, as if with an intention of compressing the whole into the form most convenient for the purposes of a Court of Law.

These conclusions are not drawn from the ELY Manuscript alone, the EXETER Domesday appears to have been another record copied from the same Rolls from which the first Volume of the great Domesday was compiled.

In the Ely, as well as in the Exeter return, the live stock every where occurs; and there is the same difference observable in each, in style and diction, from the Exchequer Survey, in which an uniformity of return from the different Rolls seems at least to have been intended. Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk, which form the second Volume of the great Survey, probably contain Transcripts of the original Rolls; contracted perhaps in words, but full in respect to the sense of the Returns.

<sup>1</sup> No entries under "Terra Regis" occur either in Shropshire or in Cheshire. In Somersetshire, the names of the Tenants as enumerated at the beginning, do not answer to the arrangement of the return: and at the beginning of Cheshire they are omitted altogether.

<sup>2</sup> The variation in our old historians respecting the nature of the Returns required by the Domesday Inquest is observable. Ingulphus's testimony is most consonant with the Precept already quoted from the Ely Chartulary. He takes no notice whatever of a return of live stock; nor is any noticed in the Chronicle of Robert of Gloucester, Bromton, Henry of Huntingdon, & Knyghton, say a return was ordered to be made, "quot animalia." Hoveden, Florence of Worcester, and Simeon of Durham, say "quot animalia, imo quantum vivæ pecuniæ quique haberet in omni regno a maximo usque ad minimum." Matthew Paris, who is followed by Matthew of Westminster, only says "quot animalia possent fuisse ad unius hyde culturam." The testimony of the Saxon Chronicle has been already quoted. Bromton adds "et Ecclesiæ parochiales;" and Sprott "quot Ecclesiarum dignitates." The fight of partial extracts from the Survey may possibly have given rise to these variations.

Record.

§ 4.
Mode of Execution.

In Domesday Book the arrangement of the Ely property is different from that in the Cotton Manuscript; the irrelative returns not only of live stock, but of other particulars, even the names of the sub-feudatarii, or under-tenants, are omitted; and there is this still more striking difference, that an advanced value is occasionally given to the property. The spelling of the names both of persons and places likewise varies.

In the Exeter Domesday instead of T. R. E. (tempore Regis Edwardi), the Words "ad die quâ Rex Edwardus fuit vivus et mortuus" constantly occur; and in the Ely Manuscript, "Tempore regis Edwardi et in morte," is several times used. The former of these phrases occurs more than once in the great Domesday itself. Tom. i. fol. 127. under Stibenhede, "Hac trā tēn Wiſſs eſs in dñio die q̄ rex E. fuit vivus 7 mortuus." Again, fol. 162. in Devonshire, "Iſt manſiō fueſ in firma regis E. die qua fuit vivus 7 mortuus." There are several other instances in the returns of Hertfordshire, Cambridgehire, and Essex.

The Inquisitions having been taken, were sent by the Justiciaris to Winchester, and there classified and methodized, and entered in a Register such as we now view it.

Modes of Rating.

3. Ingulphus makes a boast that the possessions of Croyland Abbey were not rated in their full extent. Speaking of the Jurors, he says, "Iſti penes noſtrum monaſterium benevoli et amantes, non ad verum pretium, nec ad verum ſpatium noſtrum Monaſterium libabant, ſiſericorditer pręcaves in futurum regiſ exactionibus, et aliis oneribus, piſſima nobis benevolena providentes." (¹) But from the Chartulary of Battle Abbey, founded by the Conqueror himſelf, we find that the property of that Monastery was occasionally over-rated in the Survey: "In Waſigate diſc Lib regis quod ecclia ſit vnā virgatā s; ſi hñ n̄ dimid." "In Wilminte diſc Lib regis quod ecclia hñ ſex virgatas s; ſi hñ n̄ qnq." (²)

That there was no oppression in the valuation, even when owners of land refused to make their own return, is evident from more than one entry. (³) A remarkable instance of the equity attaching to the formation of the Survey will be found in the account of the land at Brunfelde in Shropshire, belonging to the Church of St. Mary Shrewsbury, tom. i. fol. 252 b: and it is clear from the Survey itself that the Inquisitions, in many instances, caused the restoration of property. (⁴)

Clamores.

4. The Clamores, or Claims entered in the Survey, were usually between Norman and Norman on King William's donation. (¹) In most counties they occur under the respective property. Those in the counties of York and Lincoln are entered by themselves. In Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk, there are three titles of the same import. In Essex Invaſiones, No. xc. in Norfolk, De Invaſionibus, No. lxxvi: and in Suffolk Invaſiones ſuper Regem, No. lxxvi. Under these heads were comprised such Lands as were possessed without a Title from the Conqueror. [That is, they that held them were neither put in possession by the Sheriff with authority from the King, nor by his legal or special Commissioner, nor by his Writ or Brief, and thus they were Invaders & Intruders, and possessed without Title, and the Lands called Invasions. (²)]

⁴ See a remarkable entry of this kind in the account of the possession of Robert de Oligi in Berkshire, tom. i. fol. 62. In one instance in Berkshire the Commissioners referred the right of property to a trial, tom. i. fol. 58 b. "*Oſbern⁹ eſs tēn in dñio Bochelend de ep̄tu ſuo ut dicit. Vluſ⁹ chemp T. R. ⁵ Kelham, Domesd. Book Illustr. p. 126.

5. Camden indeed has conjectured that many parts were left out, "quia penſitationibus liberæ," and Kelham thinks the obſervation may be well founded. (1) In Worceſterſhire we are expreſſly told, that ſeven out of twelve hundreds were omitted in that County: "In ipſo comitatu ſunt XII. hund. hōg vii. ita ſunt quieti ſic ſcira dicit qđ uicecom nichil habet in eis 7 idō ſic dicit in firma multū pdit." (2) And it is often ſaid that ſuch, or ſuch land, was never hidated, and that the Hundred can give no account of it. Nevertheleſs, in other parts of this great Return, Lands which did not pay geld are inſerted. Among the poſſeſſions of the Church of Bath we find two out of five hides at Eſcetone, "a geldo quietæ, cceſſu E. 7 W. regum." (3)

6. The names of the Hundreds in the reſpective Counties, have undergone a great change. Lincolnſhire is divided into thirty Wapentakes, or Hundreds, yet there are only about nineteen which bear any thing like the ſame name in Domeſday as they do at preſent; and in Warwickſhire there is not now one remaining out of the ten there ſet down. (4) In Leiceſterſhire indeed, they remain nearly the ſame, (5) as well as in Cambridgeſhire. (6) In Bedfordſhire the names of the Hundreds have been altered but in few inſtances, but in many caſes the manors have been transferred from one Hundred to another. (7) The ſame may be ſaid of Berkſhire, (8) and probably of a very large portion of the Counties in general. Buckinghamſhire, when the Survey of Domeſday was taken, was divided into eighteen Hundreds, and there are now only eight which compoſe ſeparate diſtricts. (9) In Middleſex the Hundreds of Ofſulveſtane, Gara, Heleſtorne, Spelethorne, Delmetone, and Honeflav (now Iſleworth), are all enumerated: but in Dorieſhire, with the exception of Bochelande and Porbich, no Hundreds are mentioned, which renders the Domeſday of that County very obſcure.

Change of Names and Diviſions.

Northumberland, Cumberland, Weſtmoreland, and Durham, are not deſcribed in the Survey; neither is Lancaſhire under its proper title; but Furneſs, (10) and the northern part of the county, as well as the ſouth of Weſtmoreland, with part of Cumberland, are included within the Weſt-riding of Yorkſhire (11); that part of Lancaſhire which lies between the rivers Ribble and Merſey, and which at the time of the Survey comprehended ſix hundreds and a hundred and eighty-eight manors, is ſubjoined to Cheſhire; (12) and part of Rutlandſhire is deſcribed in the Counties of Northampton and Lincoln. Many inſtances might be cited from the Survey, where Entries belonging to one county, either for convenience, or the juxtapoſition of the property of a particular landholder, or ſome other reaſon, have been conſeſſedly placed in another. Mode of Execution.

To which may be added that, in later times, the two ancient Hundreds of Atiscrofs and Excestan, deemed a part of Cheshire in the Survey, have been transferred to the Counties of Flint and Denbigh in the Principality of Wales. (') Herefordshire, which in the time of the Conqueror appears to have been esteemed almost a Welsh County, is included in the Return. In the account of Gloucestershire we find a considerable portion of Monmouthshire included, probably all between the Wye and the Uffk. (')

Kelham thinks (') it probable that the King's Commissioners might find it impossible to take any exact survey of the three Counties northernmost of all, as they had suffered so much from the Conqueror's revenge. (') As to Durham, he adds, all the country between the Teis and Tine had been conferred by Alfred on the Bishop of this See; and at the coming in of the Conqueror he was reputed a Count Palatine. (')

Botulverbrige, we read, "Ibi pbr 7 mcca. 7 lxx. ac pti. 7 xii. ac filue palti in Hantefcyre." Ibid. "In Partenhale. hb Aluin<sup>9</sup>. 1. uirg tra ad gld. Tra diu car. In Lincolnshire, fo. 337. "Albt<sup>9</sup> una eccliam S. Petri cu. 12<sup>ms</sup>. man<sup>9</sup>. 7 dim car tre que jacet in Rotelnde in Hemeldune." Under Weleue in Hampshire, tom. i. fol. 50. "De isto abfultit Waleran una v. 7 dim. 7 mift foras comitat 7 mit in Wiltefire." In Herefordshire, tom. i. fol. 181. we have another instance of the arbitrary shifting of land from the jurisdiction of one County to that of another. "In Niware sunt 11 hida 7 dimid. que conuenieb 7 opabant<sup>9</sup> ed Roger<sup>9</sup> de pites T. W. comitis diuerfit illas ad Gloucectrefcetre."

<sup>4</sup> See Ordericus Vitalis, Lib. iv. p. 514. A. D. 1069. "Spatio centum miliariorum castra ejus diffunduntur. Nufquam tanta crudelitate ufus est Guillelmus, hic turpiter vicio succubuit, dum iram suam regere contempnit; et reos innocuosque pari animadversione peremit. Jussit enim ira stimulante fegetibus et securibus cum vasis et omni genere alimentorum repleri, et igne injecto penitus omnia simul comburi; et sic omnem alimoniam per totam regionem trans Humbranam pariter devastari. Unde sequenti tempore tam gravis in Aglia late fuit penuria, et inermem ac simplicem populum tanta famis involuit miseria, ut Christiane gentis utriusque sexus et omnis ætatis homines perirent plus quam centum milia." Compare also Hoveden, Script. post Bedan, fol. Lond. 1596. p. 258 b. Brady, Append. p. 17. without any reference to the Historians here quoted, suggests that the Counties alluded to might be at that time in the hands of the Scots, or else in such condition as no Commissioners dare adventure into them to take the returns of Juries and make the Survey. So complete however was the Conqueror's devastation, that William of Malmesbury states that this district, above sixty miles in length, which had been full of towns and cultivated fields, remained barren and desolate even to his time. Malmesh. lib. iii. p. 105. In fol. 301 b. of the first volume of Domefsdy, after the enumeration of the names of no less than sixty-one places in Agemundrenes, it is said, "Oms hæ uille iacent ad Prestune. 7 xii. ecclie. Ex his xvi. a paucis incoluntur. S3 qot sint habitantes ignoratur. Reliqua sunt wasta. Ro9 pict habuit."

<sup>5</sup> Kelh. Domefd. Book Illustr. p. 15. 'The Bishop's property, as a tenant in capite, in other Counties is specifically mentioned. See Berkh. tom. i. fol. 58. Bedf. fol. 210 b. Northampt. fo. 220. Yorkh. fol. 304 b. Lincolnsh. fol. 340 b. Essex, tom. ii. fol. 15 b.

From the particulars which have been stated, the Survey seems to have been made with as much exactness as was possible.<sup>(1)</sup> The greatness of the design might of itself be expected to occasion some omissions. Those in the larger districts have been accounted for; and, in the smaller ones, it may be reasonable to suppose that as some places mentioned in the Survey have been since quite depopulated, and every memorial of them lost, so that many other places which are now of consequence did not exist in the time of the Conqueror. Manors continued to be created till the statute of "Quia Emptores," which passed in the eighteenth year of Edward the First, and numerous parcels of land which now form Manors of themselves, at the time of the Domesday Survey must have been parcels of other Manors still in existence.

The Seals both of Edward the Confessor and William are frequently noticed in the Survey. Once we have a mention of the Seal of Odo bishop of Baieux and Earl of Kent; unquestionably the earliest specimen in England of a Baronial Seal. An engraving of it will be found in the first Volume of the Archaeologia of the Society of Antiquaries. Odo is represented on one side as an Earl, in armour, on horseback.

II.—PRINCIPAL MATTERS NOTICED IN THIS RECORD.

SECT. I.—PERSONS.

Principal Matters
noticed
in this Record.
§ 1. Persons.

i. AFTER the Bishops and Abbats, the highest persons in rank were the Norman BARONS. In Domesday, the "Barones Regis" are but rarely noticed: and even then, in most cases, we are to understand the King's justices, before whom the claims on property were litigated. (1) From one or two entries, however, there can be little doubt that the designation was generally applied to the King's immediate freeholders, the tenants in capite. In the account of Wareham in Dorsetshire, it is said, "De parte S. Wandregisili s*ic* ibi. x*xi*.v. dom*us* stantes. 7 x*vii*. s*ic* vast*us*. De partib*us* aliis Bar*on* s*ic* ibi. xx. dom*us* stantes. 7 i*x*. s*ic* destr*uct*æ." (2) And, in the account of Warwick, it is said, "habet Rex in d*omi*no suo. c*xiii*. dom*us*. 7 Barones regis h*ab*ent c*xii*. de quib*us* om*ni*b*us* rex habet geld*um* suum." An enumeration of the persons holding these manors follows; after which it is said, "H*ab*et man*us* p*ar*tem ad tras q*ui* ip*si* Barones ten*ent* extra burg*um*. 7 ibi ap*pr*eciat*ur* sunt." (3) "Barones regis" occur continually for Tenants in chief in the Exeter Domesday. (4)

a. The TAINI, Tegni, Teigni, Teini, or Teinni, are to be next mentioned, because those of the highest class were, in fact, the Nobility, or Barons of the Saxon times. The Thanes of the Saxon times, says Kelham, were divided into Thani Regis, Thani mediocres, and Thani minores. The Thani mediocres were equal to the lesser Barons or lords of manors, Selden says to the Vassals, of the Normans. The Thani inferiores are said to have made up the lowest class of Freeholders. (5)

Although the name of Baron appears, in time, to have supplanted that of Thane, yet, not merely in the beginning, but to the very end of the Conqueror's reign, the title of Thane existed, and was acknowledged. (6) Nor was it likely that the use of language could have been so suddenly altered, that the title of Baron only should have immediately superseded it. Archbishops, Bishops, and Abbats, as well as the great Barons, are also called Thanes. (7)

<sup>1</sup> Under Thorp in Suffolk we read, "hanc t*er*ra inuadiuit Abbas [S. Edm.] c*um* Barones Regis. scilicet W. ep*iscopu*m. Engelric*um*. 7 Rad. Stalr*um* pro c*um*." And, again, in the same County, upon the Bishop of Baieux's property at Asfelda, "h*ab*et inuenit Barones Regis in pace inter Ro*ger*um bigot 7 Hugon*em* comit*em*." tom. ii. fol. 367 b. 377.

<sup>5</sup> See Kelham, Domesd. Book Illustr. p. 343. Compare also Tyrrel, Introd. Hist. Engl. p. 76. Selden, Tit. Hon. p. 625.

<sup>6</sup> There are many Charters of William the First, both in English and Latin, in which they are mentioned. The Chartulary of the Abbey of St. Peter Westminster MS. Cotton. Brit. Mus. Faust. A. iii. affords numerous instances. As, fol. 112 b. "Willem King gret Bondi Stallere, and Sawold Sirefen, and alle mine Thegnas on Oxenfordc*ire* freondlice." And again, in the same folio, "Willem King gret Stigan Arcebis*cop* and Eustacius eorl, and all mine Thegnas on Surreya freondlice." In the Latin Charters the word Ministri is frequently made a substitute.

<sup>7</sup> Domesd. tom. i. fol. 56 b. "Hi subscripti TAINI de Oxenfordc*ire* habent t*er*ra in Walingeford. Lanfranc Archiep*iscopu*s. Remig*us* ep*iscopu*s. Abb*as* de S. Albano. R*ob*ertus Comes Hugo. Walter*us* Gifard. Rob*ertus* de Oligi. Libert*us* de Laci. Roger*us* F. Scitridi. Orgar. Hugo de Bolebec. Hugo Grando de Sco*cia*. Drogo. Rob*ertus* Armenteres. Wazo." From the "Judicia Civitatis Londoniæ sub rege Ric*ardo* primo edita." Wilk. LL. Anglo-Sax. p. 71. we learn that the Saxons had three p*er*sones 7 populi p*er*sones, Ministri ecclesiastici and Ministri seculares.

Sir Henry Spelman <sup>(1)</sup> and Wilkins <sup>(2)</sup> seem to make but two kinds of Thanes. "A Thane," says Sir Henry, "was (in like manner with an Earl) <sup>(3)</sup> not properly a title of dignity, but of service: so called in the Saxon of ðenian ferveire, and in Latin, Minister à ministrando. But as there be many degrees of service, some of greater estimation and some of less, so those that served the King in places of eminency, either in Court or Commonwealth, were called Thani majores and Thani Regis; and those that served under them in like manner as under Dukes, Earls, and other great Officers of the Kingdom, and also under Bishops, Abbats, and the greater Prelates of the Church, were called Thani minores, or the lesser Thanes. And, as the titles of honourable office and service in Dukes, Earls, &c. became at length to be made hereditary; so this of Thanes descended at last, with their fathers land, upon their children and posterity; and continued thus till after the Conquest, as appears by some writs and charters of the Conqueror." "Buchanan," <sup>(4)</sup> Sir Henry Spelman continues, "describing the quality of their persons, calleth them Præfatos Regionum sive Nomarcas et Quæstores rerum capitalium, Governours of places, principal Ministers of Justice, Chequer-men, Sheriffs, &c. But we will take them as the Saxons themselves describe them in the place above mentioned, where it thus followeth, gŕ Ceopl Ʒe ðeah Ʒ he heƷbe fullice Ʒŕ hyba ægeneŕ lanbe, &c. if a Churl or Husbandman throve, so that he had fully five hides of his own land, a Church and a Kitchen, a Bell-house, and a Gate-house, a feat and a several office in the King's hall, then he was from thenceforth worthy of the rights of a Thane: meaning (as I understand it) he was then one of the greater Thanes or King's Thanes. For the lesser Thane is by and by described also in that which followeth, viz. And gŕ ðegen Ʒeðeah, &c. And if a Thane himself so prospered that he served the King, and rid upon his Message as others of his Court, and then had a Thane (i. e. an under or lesser Thane) that followed him, which had five Hides (or Plough-land) chargeable to the King's expedition, and served his Lord in the King's Court, and had gone thrice upon his errand to the King: he (this under Thane) might take an oath instead of his Lord, and at any great need supply the place of his Lord. And, if a Thane did so thrive as he became an Earl, he had the rights of an Earl. And a Merchant might become a Thane, &c. <sup>(5)</sup> Mr. Lambard <sup>(6)</sup> conceiveth this place to discover but three Degrees among the Saxons, viz. Earls, Thanes, and Ceorls, not admitting the Under Thane to be a several Degree. The words seem otherwise, and the Saxon division before recited maketh four degrees, Earl, Ceorl, Thegn, and Thæoden or under Thane. Some therefore distinguish Thanes into majores and minores, some into majores, minores (otherwise called mediocres) and minimi, whom Canutus in his Forest-Laws, calleth Minuti and Timemen. The Saxon division first mentioned, I find to be pursued by Norman terms in the Laws of Edward the Confessor and William Conq. delivered by Ingulfus, viz. Count, Baron, Valvafor, and Villain; where he placeth Count instead of Earl, Baron instead of King's Thane, Valvafor instead of Theoden or lesser Thane, and lastly Villain instead of Churl; as though the division both of the Saxon and Norman times did hold analogy one with the other, and both of them with ours at this Day, viz. of Earls and Barons of the Kingdom, including the greater Nobility; Barons of Towns and Manours, including the lesser Nobility or Gentry; and that of our Yeomen, including the Husbandmen."

§ 1. Personæ.

At the end of many Counties in Domesday there is a Title for Thani, Servientes, and Ministri Regis; but the Thani are generally distinct from the Servientes and Ministri, as seeming to be of a superior degree, and holding offices of a less servile nature than the others. (1)

References to entries in the Survey in which the Teigni Regis are mentioned will be found in great abundance in the Index Rerum. We have also Teigni Regine, Teigni Herald Comitis, Teigni Stigandi Archiepiscopi, Teigni Comitis Algari, Teigni homines Alrici filii Goding, Teigni liberi, and in one instance "unus francus Teignus." (2) The Taini Scire, whose testimony appears so often to have decided the Returns of the Commissioners in the appropriation of property (3) were, no doubt, of the order of "mediocres." In the account of the Manor of Wicheburne in Nottinghamshire, it is said "Dnas bou de hac tra tenuet. v. taini. unus eorū erat senior aliq." (4)

3. The VAVASSORES, in dignity, were next to the Barons and higher Thanen. Selden says, they either held of a mesne lord, and not immediately of the King, or at least of the King as of an honour or manor, and not in chief. (5) Vavassores, however, are mentioned but twice in the first volume of the Survey, at least under that denomination. At Avicetone in Hampshire we read, "Ibi manet qda uauaffor<sup>9</sup> hñs. 11. uac." (6) And at Caldecote in Buckinghamshire it is said, "Ibi sunt n. uauaffores redd xxxii. fol. 7 vi. den." (7) At the close of the account of Suffolk, however, we find a distinct title of "Terra Vauafforum," (8) the perusal of the contents of which satisfactorily proves that throughout the greater part of the Survey the title was sunk in the general name of Liberi homines.

"The Grantees" says Sir Henry Spelman, "that received their Estates from the Barons or Capitanei and not from the King, were called Valvafores (a degree above Knights,) and were unto their Lords (the Capitanei or Barones Regis) as they the Capitanei were unto the King: and did in like manner subdivide their Lands among their Socmen and military followers, who in old time were called Valvafini; whom I take to be the same at this day that are the Lords of every Manour, if not those themselves that we call Knights, as owners of a Knight's Fee. For in this, the feudal Law itself is doubtful and various, as of a thing lost by antiquity or made uncertain by the differing manners of several nations. Inasmuch that Valvafores and Valvafini grew to be confounded, and both of them at last to be out of use, and no other military Tenures to be known amongst us than teneres per Baroniam, and teneres per Feodum militare. But in a Charter of Henry I. (9) it is said: 'Si exurgat Placitum de divisione Terrarum, si interest Barones meos Dominicos, tractetur in Curia mea; et si inter Valvafores duorum Dominorum, tractetur in Comitatu,' &c. where the Valvafores were also, and the Barons themselves suitors and attendants. (10) Bracon mentioneth them in Henry III.'s time, to be Viri magnæ dignitatis. (11)

Fleta, whose Book was written after the thirteenth of Edward the first, places the Vavaſſores next to the Milites. The Relief of the Vavafor will be hereafter given. In the Conqueror's Laws it follows that of the Baron. (4)

4. THE ALOARI, Alodarii, or Alodiarii, Tenants in Allodium, are the next to be mentioned. "The tenure of Allodium," ſays Kelham, "refers to the tenants and poſſeſſors chiefly before the Conqueſt. It ſignifies an hereditary and perpetual eſtate, free and in the power of the poſſeſſors to diſpoſe of by gift or ſale, but ſubject to the common and conſtant land-tax of hidage; (5) and, in Kent, the King on the commiſſion of particular offences was entitled to pecuniary mulcts from all the allodial tenants and their men. He was alſo on the death of an allodial tenant entitled to Relief." (6) Entries relating to this tenure are found in the Survey in Kent, Suffex, Surrey, and Hampſhire, and a few times in Berkſhire.

One or two entries in Suffex ſeem to repreſent allodial property, at leaſt in England, as of a more qualified nature than Sir William Blackſtone, who follows the opinions of the feudists abroad, is willing to allow. Under Bercheham it is ſaid "Goduin comes tenuit de rege E. ſicut Alodii." (7) At Briſtelmeſſune we are told, "Tres Aloarij tenuer[unt] [vi. hid 7 un[um] v] de rege E. 7 potuer[unt] ire quibet." (8) And in another inſtance they occur as under-tenants to Earl Goduin, in Lanewice in Suffex. (9) At Codintone in Surrey we read, "Leuvin comes tenuit. T[er]re ſe deſid[er]at p[er] xxx. hid. De q[ui]b[us] teneſ com[ite] xxx. hid 7 x hid teneſ Alodiarij uillæ q[ui] cū ſuis tris quo uoleb[ant] recede poterant." (10) At Solafel in Berkſhire we find Alodiarii ſtill exiſting as tenants at the formation of the Survey. "Ibi ſunt v. Alodiarij cū ii. caſ 7 bord uno." (11)

§ 1. Persons.

Of the description of Allodial Tenants were the DRENCHS or Drenghts, mentioned upon the lands between the Ribble and the Mersey in Lancashire. Sir Henry Spelman considers them as military vassals, "Tenentes per servitium Militare:"<sup>(1)</sup> and, from the few entries in which they occur, (*) it certainly appears that the allotments of territory they possessed were held as manors. Sir Edward Coke calls them free tenants of a Manor.<sup>(2)</sup> The DINGES, mentioned tom. i. fol. 298. are supposed to have been persons of the same description.

5. MILITES. The term Miles appears not to have acquired a precise meaning at the time of the Survey. Sometimes implying a soldier, or mere military servant, and sometimes a person of higher distinction. The "Miles Regis dominicus" occurs once in the account of Berkshire: (*) and in another entry, under Dorsetshire, "Bricfi miles Regis Edwardi" occurs. (†) In fol. 4. of the Survey, after "Terra Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis," we have "Terra Militum ejus," under which title we find Hamo the Sheriff, and even the Earl of Ow, holding land. (‡) In the account of Wiltshire, at Poterne, among the possessions of the Bishop of Salisbury, it is said, "De ead' tra huj' 10 ten. 11 angli. vi. hid. 7 unā v. tra. Vn' ex eis ē Miles jussu Regis, 7 nepos fuit Hermannī epī." (†) At Giltelworde in Middlesex we have, "Francig 7 qdā anglicus. 111. hid 7 sunt Milites pbatī. Sub eis manent int' uiff 7 bord. xii." (†) Another entry which appears to relate to the Milites of higher consequence occurs in the return of the Lands between the Ribble and the Mersey. "Int' Ripā 7 Merham vi. Hund. Modo tenet Rex 7 hī in dñio xii. caſ 7 ix. Milites feudū tenentes. Int' eos 7 eoſ hoēs. sunt cxxv. caſ. 7 iii. boues. Qd dedit militib; 7 xx. lib. 7 xi. solid' appciatur." (†) The Barons and greater persons who held under the Archbishop of Canterbury, were probably his milites in consideration of taking the command of his soldiers jointly with their own, when brought into actual service. Many of the Milites who held under the Bishops appear to have had larger allotments of land than under other tenants in capite. (10) to the particular municipal Customaries of France there was, in that country, Alodium Nobile and Alodium Villanum: the former not obnoxious to feudal service. See Berault Coutume de Norm. art. 102.

"Edwinus [de Sharnburne] et quidam alii qui ejeti fuerunt [ē terris suis] abierunt ad Conquestorem, & dixerunt ei, quod nunquam ante Conquestum, nec in Conquestu suo, nec post, fuerunt contra ipsum regem in consilio et auxilio, sed tenuerunt se in pace. Et hoc parati sunt probare, quomodo ipse Rex vellet ordinare. Per quod idem Rex fecit inquiri per totam Angliam si ita fuit. Propter quod idem rex precepit ut omnes illi qui sic tenuerunt se in pace in forma predicta, quod ipsi rehaberent omnes terras et dominationes suas, adeo integre et in pace, ut unquam habuerunt vel tenuerunt ante conquestum suum. Et quod ipsi in posterum vocarentur Drenges." The authenticity of the account here quoted is rejected by Camden in his Britannia, as well as by Brady in his Introd. pp. 12. 270. It is even inconsistent with the Accounts of Sharnburne in the Survey itself. On Drengage also, compare Nicolson's and Burne's Hist. of Westmorl. and Cumberl. vol. i. pp. 21, 22.

in this Record.
§ 1. Person.

Of the entries in which the Milites appear as mere foldiers, and in which they are sometimes classed with the inferior orders of tenantry, the following, taken as they occur in the record, may serve as specimens. Under the manor of Wingham in Kent, belonging to the Archbishop, it is said, "De hoc tē<sup>1</sup> Wilt<sup>1</sup> de Arcis. l. folin. in Fletes. 7 ibi hē in dūio. l. car. 7 iiii. uiltos. 7 un<sup>1</sup> militē cū l. car." (1) Under "Terra Eccl. Augult. Cant." at Tanet, it is said, "De isto tē<sup>1</sup> iiii. milites tant<sup>1</sup> de t<sup>1</sup>ra uillanog. qd<sup>1</sup> ua<sup>1</sup> ix. lib<sup>1</sup> quando pax e<sup>1</sup> in t<sup>1</sup>ra. 7 ibi bn<sup>1</sup>t. iii. car." (2) At Meldone in Surrey, among the lands held of Richard Fitz Gilbert by Robert de Wateville, we read, "De his hid<sup>1</sup> ten<sup>1</sup> un<sup>2</sup> miles l. hid. 7 unā v. 7 ibi hē. l. car. 7 l. uiltm. 7 uñ bord. 7 l. acram prai." (3) At Heorthis, in Wiltshire, under "Terra Hugonis Comitis," "Ibi l. miles. 7 iii. cofceaz. 7 v. aē pti." (4) In Devonshire, at Ratreu, "De hac t<sup>1</sup>ra ten<sup>1</sup> ii. milites unā v<sup>1</sup> t<sup>1</sup>ra." (5) The Milites belonging to the Abbey of Westminster, in Middlesex, appear to have resided on the demesne of the Monastery, "in Villa ubi sedet ecclia S. Petri" "Silua c. porc. 7 xxxv. dom<sup>2</sup> militum Abb<sup>1</sup>is 7 alioz hūum. qui reddt viii. fol. p annū." (6) At Hichetone in Hertfordshire, it is said, "In ead uilla ten<sup>1</sup> ii. milites de comite [Eustachio] xx. acras." (7) Among the Bishop of Worcester's lands at Crumbe in Rippel, in Worcesterhire, we find a singular entry. "Hanc t<sup>1</sup>ra tenuit Sirof de e<sup>2</sup>po T. R. E. quo mortuo ded<sup>1</sup> e<sup>2</sup>ps filiā ei<sup>2</sup> cū hac t<sup>1</sup>ra cuidā suo militi. qui et matrē paceret 7 e<sup>2</sup>po inde seruiret." (8) On the lands of Turchil de Warwic at Cestretton in Warwickshire, we find, "v. milit<sup>1</sup> Angl<sup>1</sup> hites iiii. car<sup>1</sup> 7 dimid." (9) At Saint Edmundsbury in Suffolk, we find, "xxxiii. milites int<sup>1</sup> Fr. 7 Angl<sup>1</sup>. 7 sub eis xxii. bord." (10) The word Milites, as used by Matthew Paris in his account of the Survey, must undoubtedly be understood as of Soldiers. Among the customs of Berkhire, we have a passage which clearly proves this. It relates to their pay. "Si rex mitteb<sup>1</sup> alicubi exercitū<sup>1</sup> de v. hid tant<sup>1</sup> un<sup>2</sup> miles ibat. 7 ad e<sup>2</sup> uicū t<sup>1</sup> stipendiū de unaqua<sup>1</sup> hida dabant<sup>1</sup> ei. iiii. folidi. ad ii. menses. Hos uero denar<sup>1</sup> Regi n<sup>1</sup> mittebant<sup>1</sup> fed militib<sup>2</sup> dabunt<sup>1</sup>." (11) In the account of Colchester in Essex, the word Soldarii is used as a substitute for Milites. "Est autem consuetudo unoq<sup>1</sup>q. anno quinto decimo die post pascha reddunt burgenfes regij duas marcas argenti 7 hoc p<sup>1</sup>ntent ad firmā regis. P<sup>1</sup> ea de unaqua<sup>1</sup> domo p annum. vi. denarios. quaz<sup>1</sup> redde potest ad uicū foldari<sup>1</sup> regis. vñ ad expeditionē t<sup>1</sup>re ut maris; & hoc n<sup>1</sup>. ē. ad firmā. Et prop<sup>1</sup> hos. vi. denarios tota ciuitas ex omib<sup>1</sup> debitis reddebat tēp<sup>1</sup>. r. e. xv. lib. 7. v. fol. 7. iii. d. in unoquoq. anno." (12)

6. LIBERI HOMINES appears to have been a term of considerable latitude; signifying not merely the freemen or freeholders of a manor, but occasionally including all the ranks of society already mentioned, and indeed, all persons holding in military tenure. Many of the liberi homines were tenants of the King in capite. (1) We find the same latitude of expression in the Conqueror's laws: (1) and the term is used in a sense equally general by William of Malmesbury, even at a later period. (2)

The ordinary freemen, before the Conquest, says Kelham, and at the time of compiling Domesday, were under protection of great men; but what their quality was, further than that their persons and blood were free, that is, that they were not natives or bondmen, it will give a knowing man trouble to discover to us. (3) These freemen under protection, are called in the Survey Liberi homines commendati. They appear to have placed themselves by voluntary homage under this protection; their Lord or Patron undertook to secure their estates and persons; and for this protection and security they paid him an annual stipend, or performed some annual service. (4) The great similarity of this bond of homage to that of the Patron and Client among the Romans, will not be overlooked by the most ordinary reader. The origin of this "Commendatio" is unquestionably to be sought for in the Roman civil law.

According to the Returns of the Survey, some appear to have sought a patron or protector for the sake of obtaining their freedom only: such, the Liberi homines commendationis tantum may be interpreted. According to the Laws of the Conqueror a quiet residence of a year and a day, upon the King's demesne lands, would enfranchise a villein who had fled from his lord. "Item si Servi permanferint sine calumnia per annum et diem in Civitatibus nostris vel in Burgis in muro vallatis, vel in Castris nostris, a die illa liberi afficiuntur et liberi a iugo servitutis sue sint in perpetuum." (5)

The Commendati dimidii, says Kelham, were persons who depended on two several lords, and were to pay half their annual rent for their protection to one, and half to the other. Sub-Commendati were such as, like under-tenants, were under command of those who were themselves depending on some superior Lord. Sub-Commendati dimidii were those who were under the Commendati dimidii, and had two patrons or protectors, and the same as they had. (6) Liberi homines integri are occasionally mentioned as those who were under the full protection of one lord, in contradistinction to the Liberi homines dimidii, whose homage was divided. Under Vlueftuna in Suffolk, we have a singularly minute division of the Commendatio. "Aluin<sup>o</sup> pbr. lib. hō. 7 sexta pars cōm'dationis sue erat cuidam Commendato." (7)

<sup>6</sup> LL. Will. Conq. 66. Wilk. p. 229. Blomefield, in his History of Norfolk, vol. i. p. 657. fol. edit. quotes a remarkable instance of the Appeal to this Law. Sir John de Clavering, in 1312, sued William Fitz and seventeen others, villanes of his Manor of Coffey, for withdrawing themselves, their goods and chattels, out of his manor, and dwelling in other places, to his and the King's prejudice, upon which a writ was directed to force them to come and dwell in the Manor, and bring all their goods with them, upon execution of which, six of them pretended to be free-men, and came to their trial, and pleaded that they came by their freedom in this manner, viz. by being citizens of the City of Norwich, having lived there, and paid foot and lot for above thirty years with the free citizens there, and two of them pleaded they were born in the walls of the City, and as such produced the Conqueror's Charter, in which it was contained that if any Servants or Villanes lived without claim of their Lords, (i.e. without paying Chevage, or a fine for licence so to do) for a year and a day, in any of the King's Cities, walled Towns, or in the Camp, from that day they should be free-men, and their posterity for ever, upon which these six were declared Free-men, and an Appeal from the King's Charter was not admitted; and two more pleaded and obtained their Freedom, by proving that Edward I. granted their Fathers houses and lands in Norwich, to hold of him and his heirs, according to the custom of the City, and that they were their fathers heirs; but all the rest were forced to return and live in Villenage under their Lord. This Commendatio appears in the Domesday Survey under different forms, exclusively in the second Volume, and principally in the Descriptions of Norfolk and Suffolk. (*) From numerous entries in both counties it appears to have existed in the time of King Edward the Confessor. (†) It is possible that it might have fallen into disuse after the Conquest as a separate and distinct reciprocal duty, in consequence of the prevalence of military tenure. Commendatio sometimes signified the annual rent paid for the protection.

§ 1. Personæ.

Liberi homines ad nullam firmam pertinentes were those who held their lands independent of any lord. Of others, it is said, "qui remanent in manu regis." (†)

In a few entries of the Survey we have LIBERÆ FEMINÆ; (*) and one or two of liberæ femina commendatæ. At Aspeleia in Bedfordshire it is said, "Hoc tñ. tenuit Leueua cōmdatā Wallef comitis 7 quo uoluit cū terra sua recedere potuit." (†)

7. The SOCHEMANNI, or Socmens, says Nichols, were those inferior land-owners who had lands in the Soc or franchise of a great baron; privileged villans, who, though their tenures were absolutely copyhold, yet had an interest equal to a freehold. Their services were fixed and determinate. They could not be compelled to relinquish these tenements at their lord's will, nor against their own: et ideo, says Bracton, denominantur liberi. (†) It seems idle, Nichols adds, to suppose that they took their name from the foca or plough; (†) for it no where appears that they held by plough service. Such men were actual freeholders, and a certain number of them were necessary in every manor to hold the pleas of the Manor Court. Socmen were, of consequence, those who owed suit and service to the lord's court; and it is from the word Soc, which gave them their name, that we must derive our tenures in free and common socage. (†)

Domesday, however, exhibits different conditions of Socmen; sometimes enjoying the usufruct within the foke freely, and sometimes performing certain inferior services of husbandry. On the manor of Bochetone in Yorkshire, it is said, "In hac uilla ē foca de xii. carucatis 7 vi. bouatis ad gl'd. (<sup>1</sup>) In the five wards of Stamford in Lincolnshire, it is said, "sunt lxxxvii. mañs fochemanos qui hñt tras suas in dñio. 7 qui petunt dominos ubi uolunt. sup quos rex nichil aliud hñ nisi eſtadationē forisfacturæ eoſ. 7 herietie. 7 theloneū." (<sup>2</sup>) "Sochemanni cū omni cūetudine" occur several times in Norfolk. Among the lands of Roger Bigot in Norfolk we read, "In Hadeſcou unus fochemanus Edrici de Laxfelda xxx. acras et iii. bordarios. 7 una carruca & dimidia. vi. acra prati. & iiii. libos homines sub illo xix. acras. tē uat. x. folidos? modo. xiii. & iiii. d. Ibi ē & iam paſtura ad l. oues. hic focheman<sup>o</sup> coſtadavit ſe Aluino tempore. Withi regis. & erat inde ſaiſitus quando rex dedit terram Rogero bigoto." (<sup>3</sup>)

Lord Lyttelton ſays, by miſtake, that in Domesday Book the Socmen are diſtinguiſhed from other free tenants called there liberi homines, by not having the power, which theſe enjoyed, of giving away or ſelling their eſtates without leave of their lords. (<sup>4</sup>) This certainly was the caſe with a deſcription of Socmen different from thoſe which have been juſt noticed: but it is not a general deſcription of tenure in ſocage. At Widemondefort in Eſſex, it is undoubtedly ſaid, "Iſti Sochemani ſiſ comitat<sup>o</sup> teſtar. non poſant remouere ab illo man." (<sup>5</sup>) At Holeslea in Eſſex, it is ſaid, "Huic manerio ptinent v. foc. de lvi. acr. Hñ. v. non potuer uendere trā ſuam nec dare alicui." (<sup>6</sup>) and at Brumefwella, in Suffolk, "In eaſ. i. foc. xxx. acr. 7 ſi potuit uendere nec dare." (<sup>7</sup>) Theſe appear rather like exceptions from the general condition of the Socmen.

The following entries afford proofs that the Socmen ſometimes performed ſervices of Huſbandry: "In Soca de Walecote," in Lincolnſhire, it is ſaid, "Ibi. i. focli arat. ii. bob." (<sup>8</sup>) On the manor of Brocheleſbi in the ſame county, it is ſaid, "Ibi Nigellus hñ Iuoñ hñ ii. focli cū. ii. bob<sup>o</sup> arantes." (<sup>9</sup>) And in Taveleſbi in the ſame county, we find, "iii. focli arantes v. bob." (<sup>10</sup>)

8. Of this deſcription of tenantry alſo were the RACHENISTRES or Radcheniſtres, who appear likewiſe to have been called RADMANNI, or Radman. From the following, which appear to be the principal entries relating to the Radcheniſtres, it will be ſeen that like the Sochmen ſome were leſs free than others.

<sup>4</sup> Hiſt. Hen. II. 4<sup>o</sup> Lond. 1767. vol. ii. p. 251. "Potuit ire cum terra quo uolebat," is a phraſe which frequently occurs in the Domesday Survey. The tenant could either part with his land, or place himſelf under the protection of any lord he pleaſed. So again, "recedere non poterat a domino ſuo," he could not depart from his lord; or, as Dr. Nalli interprets it, he was unalienable from the manor; he could not ſeparate himſelf from the manorial foke, the court-baron of later times. Among the cuſtoms of the Lands between the Ribble and the Merſey, we find a heavy compenſation paid by thoſe who withdrew from the King's protection. "Si quis de tra regis recedere uolebat. dab. xi. fol. 7 ibat quo uoleb." tom. i. fol. 269 b. Of Contune in Hampſhire, it is ſaid, "Quing. teini tenuer. de rege E 7 quo uoluer ire potuerunt." tom. i. fol. 48 b. 9. VILLANI. The cleareſt notion of the tenure of the VILLANI is probably to be obtained from Sir William Blackſtone's Commentaries. "With regard to folk-land," ſays that learned writer, "or eſtates held in Villanage, this was a ſpecies of tenure neither ſtrictly feudal, Norman, or Saxon; but mixed and compounded of them all: (12) and which alſo, on account of the Heriots that uſually attend it, may ſeem to have ſomewhat Daniſh in its compoſition. Under the Saxon government there were, as Sir William Temple ſpeaks, (13) a ſort of people in a condition of downright ſervitude, uſed and employed in the moſt ſervile works, and belonging, both they, their children, and their eſſects, to the lord of the ſoil, like the reſt of the cattle or ſtock upon it. Theſe ſeem to have been thoſe who held what was called the folk-land, from which they were removable at the lord's pleaſure. On the arrival of the Normans here, it ſeems not improbable that they, who were ſtrangers to any other than a feudal ſtate, might give ſome ſpark of enfranchiſement to ſuch wretched perſons as fell to their ſhare, by admitting them, as well as others, to the oath of fealty; which conferred a right of protection, and raiſed the tenant to a kind of eſtate ſuperior to downright ſlavery, but inferior to every other condition. (14) This they called Villanage, and the tenants Villeins, either from the word villi, or elſe, as Sir Edw. Coke tells us (15) a villa; becauſe they lived chiefly in villages, and were employed in ruſtic works of the moſt ſordid kind.

"These villeins, belonging principally to lords of manors, were either Villeins regardant, that is annexed to the manor or land; or else they were in grofs, or at large, that is, annexed to the person of the lord, and transferrable by deed from one owner to another. (*) They could not leave their lord without his permission; but, if they ran away, or were purloined from him, might be claimed and recovered by action, like beasts or other chattels. They held, indeed, small portions of land by way of sustaining themselves and families; but it was at the mere will of the lord, who might dispossess them whenever he pleased; and it was upon villein services, that is to carry out dung, to hedge and ditch the lords' demesnes, and any other the meanest offices: (*) and these services were not only base, but uncertain both as to their time and quantity. (*). A villein could acquire no property either in lands or goods; but if he purchased either, the lord might enter upon them, oust the villein, and seize them to his own use, unless he contrived to dispose of them again before the lord had seized them; for the lord had then lost his opportunity. In many places also a fine was payable to the lord, if the villein presumed to marry his daughter to any one without leave from the lord: (*) and, by the common law, the lord might also bring an action against the husband for damages in thus purloining his property. (*) For the children of villeins were also in the same state of bondage with their parents; whence they were called in Latin Nativi, which gave rise to the female appellation of a villein, who was called a neife. (*) In case of a marriage between a free man and a neife, or a villein and a free woman, the issue followed the condition of the father, being free if he was free, and villein if he was villein; contrary to the maxim of the civil law, that partus sequitur ventrem. But no bastard could be born a villein, because by another maxim of our law he is nullius filius; and as he can gain nothing by inheritance, it were hard that he should lose his natural freedom by it. (*) The law, however, protected the persons of villeins, as the King's subjects, against atrocious injuries of the lord."

"Villeins," continues Sir William Blackstone, "might be enfranchised by manumission, which is either express or implied: express; as where a man granted to the villein a deed of manumission: (*) implied; as where a man bound himself in a bond to his villein for a sum of money, granted him an annuity by deed, or gave him an estate in fee, for life, or years: (*) for this was dealing with his villein on the footing of a freeman; it was in some of the instances giving him an action against his lord, and in others vesting an ownership in him entirely inconsistent with his former state of bondage. So also if the lord brought an action against his villein, this enfranchised him; (*) for, as the lord might have a short remedy against his villein, by seizing his goods, (which was more than equivalent to any damages he could recover) the law, which is always ready to catch at any thing in favour of liberty, presumed that by bringing this action he meant to set his villein on the same footing with himself, and therefore held it an implied manumission. But, in case the lord indicted him for felony, it was otherwise; for the lord could not inflict a capital punishment on his villein, without calling in the assistance of the law."

"Villeins by this and many other means, in process of time, gained considerable ground on their lords; and in particular strengthened the tenure of their estates to that degree, that they came to have in them an interest in many places full as good, in others better than their lords. For the good-nature and benevolence of many lords of manors having, time out of mind, permitted their villeins and their children to enjoy their possessions without interruption, in a regular course of descent, the common law, of which custom is the life, now gave them title to prescribe against their lords; and, on performance of the same services, to hold their lands, in spite of any determination of the lord's will. For, though in general they are still said to hold their estates at the will of the lord, yet it is such a will as is agreeable to the custom of the manor; which customs are preserved and evidenced by the rolls of the several courts baron in which they are entered, or kept on foot by the constant immemorial usage of the several manors in which the lands lie. And, as such tenants had nothing to shew for their estates but these customs, and admissions in pursuance of them, entered on those rolls, or the copies of such entries witnessed by the steward, they now began to be called tenants by copy of court roll, and their tenure itself a copyhold.<sup>(1)</sup>

in this Record.

§ 1. Perfont.

"Thus copyhold tenures, as Sir Edward Coke observes, <sup>(1)</sup> although very meanly descended, yet come of an ancient house; for, from what has been premised, it appears, that copyholders are in truth no other but villeins, who by a long series of immemorial encroachments on the lord, have at last established a customary right to those estates, which before were held absolutely at the lord's will. Which affords a very substantial reason for the great variety of customs that prevail in different manors, with regard both to the descent of the estates, and the privileges belonging to the tenants. And these encroachments grew to be so universal, that when tenure in villenage was abolished, (though copyholds were reserved,) by the Statute of Charles II. there was hardly a pure villein left in the nation. For Sir Thomas Smith testifies, <sup>(1)</sup> that in all his time (and he was Secretary to Edward VI.) he never knew any villein in grofs throughout the realm; and the few villeins regardant that were then remaining were such only as had belonged to bishops, monasteries, or other ecclesiastical corporations, in the preceding times of popery." <sup>(4)</sup>

There are, however, numerous entries in the Domesday Survey which indicate the Villani of that period to have been very different from Bond-men. <sup>(1)</sup> They appear to have answered to the Saxon Ceopls, while the Servi answered to the Deopar or Eyrnen. By a degradation of the Ceopls and an improvement in the state of the Eyrnen, the two classes were brought gradually nearer together, till at last the military oppression of the Normans thrusting down all degrees of tenants and servants into one common slavery, or at least into strict dependance, one name was adopted for both of them as a generic term, that of Villeins regardant.

"In hoc manerio erat tē tēporis quidā lib homo de dimidia hid qui n effect<sup>9</sup> e' unus de uillanis." He was a yeoman and became a tenant.

§ 1. Persons.

It has been already noticed, that "vī. uillani uniuersūque villæ" formed a part of the Jury or Inquest who made the Domesday Returns. (1) The Relief of a Villane will be noticed in a future Section. The Dimidii Villani appear to have been persons who held moieties only of villenage tenements (2): or who were half liberi and half villani.

10. The BORDARII of the Survey appear at various times to have received a great variety of interpretations. Lord Coke calls them "boors holding a little house with some land of husbandry, bigger than a Cottage." (3) Some have considered them as cottagers, taking their name from living on the borders of a village or manor: (4) but this is sufficiently refuted by Domesday itself, where we find them not only mentioned generally among the agricultural occupiers of land, but in one instance as "circa aulam manentes," dwelling near the manor house; and even residing in some of the larger towns. In two quarters of the town of Huntingdon, at the time of forming the Survey as well as in King Edward's time, were a hundred and sixteen burgesses, "7 sub eis" it is said "fuit c. bordarii qui adjuvant eos ad perfolutionē geldī." (5) In Norwich there were no less than four hundred and eighty bordarii, "q̄ ppt̄ pauperiū. nullā reddunt cūctudinē." (6) And of twenty bordarii in Thetford it is said, "De sup̄dictis bord. habet rex scoti de suo capite tantū." (7)

Bishop Kennett says "The Bordarii often mentioned in the Domesday Inquisition were distinct from the Servi and Villani, and seem to be those of a less servile condition, who had a bord or cottage with a small parcel of land allow'd to them, on condition they should supply the Lord with poultry and eggs, and other small provisions for his board and entertainment." (8) Such also is the interpretation given by Blomefield in his History of Norfolk. (9) Brady says "they were drudges, and performed vile services, which were reserved by the lord upon a poor little house, and a small parcel of land, and might perhaps be domestic works, such as grinding, threshing, drawing water, cutting wood, &c." (10)

Borp, as Bishop Kennett has already noticed, was a Cottage. In a Charter of King Edgar printed in the Monasticon we read "quinque videlicet manfas cum xv. carucis terre, cum xviii. fervis, et xvi. villanis; et x. Bordis cum lx. acris prati." (11) Bordarii, it should seem, were Cottagers merely: and in the Ely Manuscript, we find bordarii where the Breviate of the same entry in Domesday itself reads Cotarii. Their condition was probably different on different manors. In some entries in the Survey we have "Bordarii arantes." At Evesham, on the abbey demesne, we have "xxvii. Bordarii servientes curie." (12) On the demesne appertaining to the castle of Ewias were twelve Bordarii "opantes una die ebdomad." (13) At St. Edmundsbury in Suffolk the Abbat had a hundred and eighteen "homines," "7 sub eis lxx. bord. a q̄b̄ ab̄ potest habere aliqd̄ adjutorū." (14)

The COSCETS, Cofcets, Conets, or Conex, were apparently the same with the COTTARII and COTMANNI; cottagers who paid a certain rent for very small parcels of land: although, tom. i. fol. 71. we have there mentioned distinctly, "xiii. cofcets. 7 ii. cotar." The shade of difference is undiscoverable. At Tateshale in Yorkshire "xvi. COTARI" occur. (15) Bishop Kennett says, "Spelman and Du Fresne make Cotarius and Coterellus to be both servile inhabitants. But I think in the Domesday Register and other ancient Manuscripts there does appear a distinction, not only in their name, but in their tenure and quality. The Cotarius had a free socage tenure, and paid a firm or rent in provisions or money, with some customary service. But the Coterellus held in absolute villenage, and had his person and goods disposed at the pleasure of the lord." (<sup>1</sup>) Coterellus however does not occur in Domesday. In a solitary instance, at Stoches in Shropshire, "xx. Femina Cotar" occur. (<sup>2</sup>)

§ 1. et seq.

11. The Burges, Buri, or Burs, are noticed in the first Volume of Domesday itself as synonymous with Coliberti. In an entry relating to the manor of Dene in Hampshire, fol. 38. "1 Bures" is an interlineation, in a cœval hand, above the word Colibdi. (<sup>3</sup>)

The name of the COLIBERTI was unquestionably derived from the Roman Civil Law. They are described by Lord Coke as Tenants in free socage by free rent. (<sup>4</sup>) Cowel says, they were certainly a middle sort of Tenants, between servile and free, or such as held their freedom of tenure under condition of such works and services; and were therefore the same landholders whom we meet with [in after times] under the name of Conditionales. (<sup>5</sup>) In Du Cange's Glossary the tenure of the Coliberti is discussed at considerable length. (<sup>6</sup>)

Such are the different descriptions of Tenantry, and their rights, more particularly noticed in Domesday.

12. Servi. It is observed by Bishop Kennett, and by Morant after him in his History of Essex, that the Servi and Villani are, all along, in Domesday, divided from each other; but that no author has fixed the exact distinction between them. The Servi, Bishop Kennett adds, might be the pure villanes, and villanes in gross, who without any determined tenure of land were at the arbitrary pleasure of the lord appointed to servile works, and received their wages and maintenance at the discretion of the lord. The other were of a superior degree, and were called Villani, because they were Villæ et glebæ adscripti, i. e. held some cottage and lands, for which they were burthened with such stated servile works as their lords had annexed to them. (<sup>7</sup>)

"Our Northern Servi," says Bishop Kennett, "had always a much easier condition than the Roman slaves. 'Servis nos in nostrum morem descriptis per familiam ministeriis utuntur. Suam quisque fedem, suos penates regit. Frumenti modum Dominus, aut pecoris, aut vestis, colono injungit, et servus hæcenus parat.' Tacit. de Morib. German. which plainly describes the condition of our Saxon and Norman Servants, Natives, and Villanes."

The Saxon name for Servus was Ḫne. The amelioration of the Servi from any thing like absolute slavery, forms a strong feature in the Anglo-Saxon laws: and we have the authority of Bracton, at a later period, for asserting, that, however unhappy the condition of the Servi was in other respects, yet their lives and their limbs were under the protection of the laws; so that if the master killed his bondman, he was subject to the same punishment as if he had killed any other person. (<sup>8</sup>)

The form for emancipation of the Servi is minutely described in the laws of the Conqueror. (') And, we have one instance, at least, in Domesday, where such an emancipation took place. "In Terra Will'i Levric" at Heile in Gloucestershire, it is said, "Ibi erant xii. servi quos Will's liberavit fecit." (*)

The ANCILLÆ of the Survey were females under circumstances nearly similar to the Servi. They were disposed of in the same way at the pleasure of the lord. The laws, however, protected their chastity; they could not be violated with impunity even by their owners.

At Witelavesford in Warwickshire, the Abbey of Evesham is said to have had "v. servi. 7 ii. ancillæ 7 iiii. uillani in dñio." (')

13. CENSARII, CENSORES, or CENSORII, were also among the occupiers of land. They appear to have been free persons cenfum reddentes. (') The Relief of such persons is noticed in the Conquerors Laws. (')

14. PORCARI. Although in one or two instances in the Domesday Survey, mere Swine-herds seem to have been intended by Porcarii, (') yet in the generality of entries in which they are mentioned they appear in the rank of free occupiers, who rented the privilege of feeding pigs in the Woodlands, some for money (') and some for payments in kind. (')

15. The HOMINES, who are so frequently mentioned, included all sorts of feudatory tenants. They claimed a privilege of having their causes and persons tried only in the Court of their Lord: (') to whom they owed the duty of submission and professed dependence. (')

That the tenure of a Manor was not incompatible with the service of a Homo, may be seen in an entry in the account of Huntingdon. "Dicunt [homines qui juraverunt in Hunteidune] trā Wluini chit de Westone p se fuisse maneriū. 7 non pertinuisse ad Kenebaltone. fed tam eū fuisse hoēm haroldi comitis." (')

The Angli and Francigenæ were alike called upon in the valuation of property before the Conqueror's Commissioners, as we learn from the Ely Inquest. ## SECT. 2.—LANDS.

I. Their Denominations.

noticed
in this Record.

§ 2. Lands.

IN the Domesday Survey, four principal descriptions of Land are mentioned: Terra; Silva; Pastura; and Pratum.

TERRA, put simply, uniformly signifies arable land, as distinct from wood, meadow, and common pasture." (*)

"Cultura Terræ," "Frustrum Terræ," "Lucrum Terræ," "Membrum Terræ," "Particula Terræ," and "Parum Terræ," were names for inferior parcels or slips of land. Among the King's lands in the Isle of Wight, it is said, tom. i. fol. 39 b. "In insula hī rex uñ frustū trā. unde exeunt vi. uomeres." "Plān," "Planum," or "Plana tra," was plain, or open ground, opposed to woods and coppices. In Worcesterhire, tom. i. fol. 176 b. it is said, "T. R. E. fuit numerata pro xv. hid. int silua 7 plani."

In folio 8. of the first volume of the Survey, we read of "ii. Manfura trā in Cantuaria de xii. denar." as appertaining to the manor of Otringdene. Haisted says that these were pieces of land of no determined size. Thorn, Script. X. Twyld. p. 180 b. speaks as if the Solidata and Manfura terræ were the same, sub ann. 1144. "Illas uero tres solidatas terræ quas monachi in curia Romana conventionati sunt reddere, sicut exitus ipse probat, prædicti abbas et monachi de proprio jure suo dederunt præfato Archiepiscopo et Ecclesiæ suæ extra aquilonalem portam civitatis Cant. tres videlicet Manfuras simul conjunctas contra felicet australem angulum cimiterii Sancti Gregorii juxta magistrum viam a dextris sicut itur in civitatem."

SILVA and NEMUS are the usual terms in the Survey for wood: and in a few entries SILVULA. The woodland appears to have been every where carefully entered. "Not that the timber was at that time of great value," says Nichols, "but principally on account of the acorns and beech mast, which, when the country was in a very imperfect state of cultivation, had a degree of importance of which we can form a very inadequate idea at this time. (*)

At Brotham in Kent, tom. i. fol. 3. we have, "Silua qdo fructific. q'ngent porc." At Marovrde in the same county, fol. 14. "tant silua unde exeunt. lxx. porc de pafnag." At Seneorde in Hampshire, fol. 44 b. "Silua de iiii. porc. maxima pars ej<sup>o</sup> uento corrui." Of the manor of Adelingham in that county, fol. 50. it is said, "De isto D. ē una hida in foresta regis. 7 tantū silua unde exibant. xx. porc de pafnag." At Fuleham in Middlesex, fol. 127 b. on the land in the Bishop of London's demesne, "Silua mille porc" occurs; and on the tenemental land of the See held by Fulcheredus on the same manor, "Silua ccc. porc." At Totehele in the county of Middlesex, we have, "Silua cl. porc;" and at Westminster, "Silua c. porc." Ibid. 127 b. 128. At Mundene in Hertfordshire, "Silua cl. porc 7 altera Silua unde. cc. porc. pascere." At Cestrehunt in the same county, "Silua mille cc. porc 7 xl. denar." Ibid. fol. 137.

* See Kennett, Glossar. Far. Antiq. Terra arabilis, however, is nevertheless occasionally mentioned several times in Yorkhire and Lincolnshire, and once in Essex. In one or two entries in the first Volume of the Survey, "terra arabilis duplex" or "ad duplum" occurs: and once, "terra dupliciter ad arand." Once, the phrase occurs "xl. ac. de aratura." tom. ii. fol. 2 b. Tom. i. fol. 306. we find "campus arabit."

° Diff. on Domesday Book. introd. Vol. Hist. Leic. p. xliii.

Pannagium, or Pannage, had a double acceptation in the Survey. It meant first the running and feeding of Hogs in the Woods, and, in a secondary sense, the price or rate of their running. In one or two entries it is termed Pastio.

in this Record.

§ 2. Lands.

In Huntingdonshire, under the possessions of Thorney Abbey, the abbot of Bury is stated to have held of that monastery a fishing vessel, two fisheries, two fishermen, and a virgate of land, "7 p his dat pastione sufficientē cxx. porcis. 7 fi pastio deficit de annona pascit & impingat lx. porcos:" (1) and at Stanlei in Warwickshire we have "pasti ad ii mit porc." (2) Among the rents of Patricefy, belonging to the abbey of Westminster, it is said "De uisio habente x. porc. uñ porc. si min<sup>9</sup> nil dat." (3) And again at Leofminstre in Herefordshire, "Quisq. uillanus hñs x. porcos dat uñ porcū de pafnagio." (4) Under Cedesfelle in Suffex, we have "Silua iii. porc. 7 herbag v. porc." (5) So at Chercheffelle in Surry, "Silua cxl. porc de pafnag. 7 de herbagio xl. porc." (6) and in numerous other instances. Under Wochinges in Surry, it is said, "Iltud t̃ habet 7 habuit c̃uetudinē in filua regis de Wochinges hoc ē qđ dñs uillaz huj<sup>9</sup> potest habe in ipfa filua cxx. porc sine pafnagio" (7)

"Silua infructuosa," "Silua inutilis," "Silua ad ignem tantum," "Silua nil reddens," and "Silua sine pafnagio," are terms of frequent occurrence in the Survey, indicating that the woods so described afforded nothing that could, comparatively speaking, become an object of attention. The Saxons, Nichols observes, even estimated the value of a tree by the number of Hogs that could lie under it. (8) In the laws of Ina, it is said, "Si quis autem detruncet arborem sub qua triginta porci consistere queunt, et fiat convictus, solvat sexaginta solidos." (9) Even trespasses on the woods were punished with severity. "Si quis in querceto suo porcum absque Domini venia inueniat, fumat tunc sex solidos pignoris pretium. Si ibi non fuerint plus una vice tunc unum solvat solidum proprius ejus Dominus, et confirmet per capitale suum, quod amplius non fit intraturus ibi. Si duo ibi fuerint, solvat duos solidos. Si pafnagium a porcis fumatur, de tridigitali tertius, de duo digitali quartus, de pollicis crassitudine quintus porcus fumatur." (10) The laws of Hoel Dha, Nichols observes, which were written not long before the time of the Survey, seem to have been made with the same view.

It must not however be passed over that wood, such as might be useful, even for domestic purposes, is occasionally particularly specified in Domesday. "Silua ad claufuram," for making fences, is commonly noticed: as well as "Nemus ad fepes reficientas," "Nemus ad fepes et domos," "Nemus ad domos Curie," and "Silua ad faciendos domos," also occur. "Silua in defenso," or "in defenso Regis," implied that it was fenced in to secure its growth. "Silua minuta" or "modica" was under-wood, or

This custom," he adds, "obtained in England, and was here called Tack. coppice. Once we have "Risalia ad sepes." (1) And in a few entries "Broca" or brushwood, (2) and "Grava." "Alnetum" occurs several times, and at Spallinge in Lincolnshire, "Silua alnorum." (3) "Fraxinetum," a grove of Ash trees, a furlong both in length and breadth, is mentioned at Langeport in Northamptonshire. (4) "Querc." Oaks, are mentioned by name but three times: yet the great encouragement which the cultivation of them received is not proved merely by the entries already quoted concerning pannage. In Dorsetshire, under Bridetone, it is said "Bofcus ten Havocumbe. pūn ad Bridetone, ita qđ T.R.E. duas partes ej<sup>9</sup> erant in firma. regis ticia ū pars ticia quercus erat Edwini comitis quæ m pūnet ad Frantone tō S. Stefani cadoñsis." (5) At Tovetune in Nottinghamshire we have "paruum Salictum," and in Ciluelle in the same County "III. ac Salicē": plantations of Ofiers. (6) "Spinetum" occurs several times, according to Kelham for thorney ground, (7) or perhaps for a Spinney, as it is provincially called, or young plantation. (8) In two entries we have "Virgultum": and once, "x. ac runcen." (9) "Dena Siluæ," a Valley or low ground of Wood, occurs in different entries in both volumes of the Survey. At Tarentefort in Kent we have "de Silua viii. denæ paruæ. 7 III. magnæ." (10) We have also "Silua pascilis per loca," in many instances, where the Woods appear to have been mixed with pasturage.

In the mention of "Effaræ" we have probably the earliest notices of increasing cultivation. In the account of Merchelai in Herefordshire we read, "In eod tō sunt LVIII. acræ træ pjectæ de silua. 7 ppositus 7 alii II. hoēs tēn plures acs de ipsa trā." (11) Under Leofminstre it is said "de Exfartis siluæ exeunt XVII. foliō 7 III. denar." (12) At Wibelai in the same county "trā ad i. cañ de Effaræ" occurs. (13) Effaræ was a forest-phrase for a cultivated spot, from the French affartir to make plain. (14)

PASTURE was another of the leading features into which the Domesday Survey appears to have divided the face of the country. "Pastura ad pecuniam Viitæ" perpetually occurs, (15) and in a few instances "Pasturæ communes." Of a small parcel of land at Svere in Dorsetshire we read "prius erat pascualis in feminabilis." (16) At Sunburne in Hampshire the King's bailiff claimed for the manor a virgate of land and "pascuū quā vocant dunā," a Down. (17) "Herbagium" is a term also used for feed.

"PRATUM bobū" or "Carrucis," is to be interpreted Meadow sufficient for the Oxen employed in tilling the arable land, or proportionable to the ploughlands. At Fuglemære in Cambridgeshire we have "Ptūm omīb<sup>9</sup> car." (18)

MARESC, Merſe, or Mora, is Marsh or Fen Land, and occurs principally in Cambridgeshire, Huntingdonshire, and Lincolnshire, the rent being chiefly paid in eels.

<sup>2</sup> In Dorsetshire at Licheſ "Brocæ i. Ieū in lē 7 lat" occurs: tom. i. fol. 80 b, and at Bortone in Lindsey we have "LIX. ac brocæ:" tom. i. fol. 347.

Forests, Parks, &c.

FORESTS, being no objects of assessment, and being of private and special jurisdiction, are rarely noticed in the Domesday Survey; the names of four only, exclusive of the New Forest in Hampshire, being discoverable in that Record: viz. Windfor Forest in Berkshire, (1) the Forest of Grauelinges in Wiltshire, (2) Winburne in Dorsetshire, (3) and Hucheuuode, or Whichwood in Oxfordshire. (4)

in this Record.
§ 2. Lands.

The formation of The New Forest has added much to the load of reproaches laid on the memory of the Conqueror. Our historians concur in accusing him of laying waste the country in Hampshire to a very large extent, of expelling the inhabitants from their houses, seizing their property, and even destroying Churches, without giving the sufferers any compensation for the injury. Knyghton, who makes William Rufus a partner in the devastation with his father, represents opinion to have varied in the number of Churches destroyed, from twenty-two, beside dependant Chapels, to fifty-two. (5) Domesday undoubtedly bears testimony to the afforestation; and numerous entries occur in which portions only of Manors appear to have been afforested. Under Borgate we read, "Silua huj<sup>9</sup> m. ē in foresta regis": (6) under Avere, "Tot nem<sup>9</sup> huj<sup>9</sup> m est in foresta regis" (7) under Bichetone, "Pastura huj<sup>9</sup> m est in foresta Regis. 7 quedam pars siluas": (8) under Riple, "De isto m. sunt iii. hidæ in foresta regis. 7 totū nemus": (9) under Effele, "Siluā huj<sup>9</sup> m. de viii. porc. ten<sup>4</sup> rex in sua foresta." (10) Besides these, the lands "in Nova Foresta et circa eam" form a distinct division of Hampshire in the Survey, in the Hundreds of Rodbridge, Rodedic, Egeiete, Rincuede, and Bovre. (11) The enquiry after the condition of property in the time of Edward, and the circumstance that numerous plots of land were in part only afforested, were perhaps the reasons why so much notice was taken of the forest.

On the destruction of Churches by the Conqueror, we have only to observe that the fact is allowed even by his own chaplain, Willielmus Gemeticensis; who, speaking of the death of William Rufus and his brother Richard, (12) in the Forest, says, "Ferunt autem multi, quod ideo hi duo filij Willielmi Regis in illa silva iudicio Dei perierunt; quoniam multas villas et Ecclesias, propter candem Forestam amplificandam, in circuitu ipsius destruxerant." A Forest also in Herefordshire, but without a name, is several times alluded to, foll. 179 b. 181. 184. 186. In Langebrige Hundred in Gloucestershire, another Forest is mentioned. Lewis, in his "Historical Inquiries concerning Forests and Forest Laws," 4<sup>o</sup> Lond. 1811. p. 2. says, "At the time of the Conquest, the number of Forests in this kingdom, according to Cowel, was sixty-eight." Cowel, however, only says that "besides New Forest, there are sixty-eight Forests in England." He took his list from Spelman's Glossary, and Spelman says nothing of the Conquest.

§ 2. Lands.

It is remarkable, that out of seventy-three allotments of territory noticed in this part of the Survey of Hampshire, two Churches only occur, one at Melleford, and the other at Brocette, while, in the rest of the county, we find no fewer than a hundred and fifteen.

It has been clearly proved that the names of places, such as Church Place in one walk, and Church Moor in another, Castle Malwood, Peel Hill, Castle Hill, Lucas Castle, the castle in Burley, Thomson's Castle, Roe Castle, and Queen's Bower, are not the only indications of former edifices within the present circuit of the Forest. These different spots, by ridges and inequalities of surface, and by fragments of building materials which have been found within them, upon digging, shew strong marks of former foundations. At the castle in Burley the foundation of a church or chapel is said to have been formerly visible. (*)

Gough in his edition of Camden, (†) and Warner in his Topographical Remarks relating to the South Western parts of Hampshire, (‡) gave, each, a tabular estimate of the quantum of injury which William was supposed really to have occasioned to the population and agriculture of this part of England by the afforestation, abstracting the quantity of land in hides, virgates, and acres, with the respective values of the different allotments of property in the Confessor's and the Conqueror's reigns. A third tabular arrangement has been made by the Rev. Mr. Bingley, among his preparations for a history of Hampshire. From this table it appears, that at least a hundred and forty hides had been afforested between the time of Edward the Confessor, and that of the Survey. These, reckoning four virgates in each hide, and thirty acres to make a virgate, will amount to nearly seventeen thousand acres. The greater part of the additions, thus made, appear to have been on the borders of an anterior forest, mentioned by several writers under the name of Ytene, and, in the making of them, there can be little doubt of the destruction of numerous habitable places. The latter is evident, from the names of many of them terminating in ham and ton, or tune: as Truham, Greteham, Adelingham, Wolnetune, Bermintune, and others, all indicating former villages or hamlets. Two hundred and fifteen hides, four virgates, four acres of land, producing in the reign of Edward the Confessor £363. 19. 10. appear to have been reduced by the Conqueror to seventy-six hides, one virgate, twenty-six acres, yielding only £129.

Gough's Table was the least extensive of the three already mentioned; taking in only that part of the Survey which in itself purported to relate immediately to the New Forest and its environs, and omitting all the other parts of the Survey of the county in which lands are stated to have been afforested: thus reducing the quantity of land really added by the Conqueror almost an half.

Of certain manors in the Hundred of Broctone, it is said, “De istis 3 habebat olim p̄positus mel 7 pasturā ad firmā suā. 7 siluā ad faciendas domos. Modo hñt 11 forestarij. p̄positi nichil.” (*) Under Edlinges, we read, “T. R. E. ualb. xxxviii. lib. 7 viii. solid 7 iiii. den. 7 post 2 similis. Modo 2 xx. lib. 7 tanū reld. l.ii. lib. 7 vi. fol 7 vii den. cū illis rebz quæ cadunt in Foresta.” (‡)

The VENATORES in the Survey are numerous. They appear frequently among the officers of the great barons. Waleran the huntsman is entered in Hampshire as holding several manors in that county in capite: with still larger possessions held in chief in Wiltshire and Dorsetshire. (†) He also held lands in Hampshire under the abbey of Saint Peter Winchester. (‡) Croch the huntsman likewise occurs among

(2) Wlavinus and Wigot are mentioned as huntmen to the Confessor. (3) Aluain<sup>o</sup> was the Venator to Editha the Confessor's Queen. (4) Richard the Forester, who is also called Richard Venator and Richard Chinen, is said to have held his lands in Warwickshire, of the gift of the Conqueror, by the service of keeping the forest of Kenoc in Staffordshire, and paying to the King ten marks yearly. § 2. Lands.

Among the customs of Berkshire, as existing in the time of Edward the Confessor, it is said, "qui monitus ad stabilitationem venationis il libat. l. fot regi esibabat." (6) The "Stabilitio in filua" mentioned under Hereford, will be noticed among the customs of the Burghs. The "Stabilitio Venationis" also occurs in the account of Shrewsbury. (7) Stabilitio meant stalling the Deer. To drive the Deer and other Game from all quarters to the centre of a gradually constructed circle where they were compelled to stand, was stabilitio. Malmesbury, Script. post Bedam. edit. 1596. p. 44. speaking of the mildness of Edward the Confessor's temper, says, "Dum quadam vice venatum isset, et agreffis quidam STABULATA illa, quibus in cafes cervi urgentur, confudisset, ille sua nobili percitus ira, per Deum, inquit, et matrem ejus tantundem tibi nocebo, si potero."

At Fledberie in Worcestershire, the Bishop of Worcester had a Wood, "ii. lew lē 7 dimid laē. de qua hī ep̄s quicquid de ea exit in venatione et melle." (8) Among the lands of Osbern Fitz Richard, "in Marcha de Walis" it is said, "Excreuer filua in quibz isd Ostnus venationē exercet. 7 inde hī qd cape potest. Nil aliud." (9) At Chingestune in Herefordshire, upon the King's demesne, we read, "Ibi filua nōe Trieline. nullā reddens cūctudinē nisi venationem. Vili T. R. E. ibi manentes. portab venationē ad Hereford. nec aliud feruitū facieb ut scira dicit." (10)

The Forests, consisting of woody and desert tracts which had never been disposed of in the first distribution of lands, were considered, even in the Saxon times, as belonging to the Crown. Freeholders, however, had the liberty of sporting on their own territories, as is fully expressed in the following law of King Canute: "Volo etiam, ut quilibet homo sit dignus venatione sua in sylva, et in agris sibi propriis, ac abstineat quilibet a venatione mea ubicunque pacem haberi volo pro plena multa." (11) So, also, in the laws of the Confessor: "Et omnis sit venatione sua dignus in nemore, in campo, in dominio suo, et abstineat omnis homo a venariis Regis, ubicunque pacem eis habere voluerit, super plenam vitam, i. e. Forisfacturam." (12)

These laws, it is probable, gave rise to the PARKS, which we find entered in the Survey; some of which were of considerable extent. The persons who are enumerated as holding Parks, beside the King, are the Bishop of Baieux, the Earl of Ow, Earl Roger, the Bishop of Winchester, Erulf de Hefding,

Hugh de Grentemaifnil, Peter de Valongies, Walter Giffard, Urfo, Roger de Laci, the Countess Judith, Hugh de Belcamp, Suein of Essex, the Earl of Moretaine, Robert Malet, and Robert Blund. The usual term is "Parcus," "Parcus bestium filuaticarum," or "Parcus ferarum filuaticarum." The monastery of Saint Alban appears to have had a Park in the vill adjoining. (') Stow, in his Annals, (') and Sir William Dugdale in the History of Warwickshire, appear to have been misled by John Rofs into the opinion that the Park of Woodstock in Oxfordshire, said to have been made by King Henry the First, was the earliest in England. (')

The HAIE noticed in the Survey occur chiefly in Worcesterhire, Herefordhire, Shropshire, and Cheshire. In the first of these counties, under Chintune, we find, "1. Haia in qua capiebant feræ." (4) In Herefordhire, under Rvifcop, it is said, "Ibi ē una Haia in una magna filua:" (5) and under Bernoldune, "Silua ē ibi magna. sed q̄itas n̄ fuit dicta. Ibi ē una Haia. in qua qd̄ potest cape captat." This is among the lands of Hugh Lafne. (6) In Shropshire, at Lege, "III. Haie firmæ" are noticed: (7) at Wrdine, "Silua in qua sunt III. Haie:" (8) at Cortune, "Ibi ē Haia capreolis capiend:" (9) and at Lingham, on the land of Ralph de Mortemer, "III. Haie capreol capiendis." (10) In Cheshire, at Wivreham, "II. Haie capreolorum:" (11) at Chingessie, "III. Haie." (12) In Warwickshire, upon the Earl of Mellent's lands at Dornelei, we read, "Ibi Haia h̄is dimitt leuū l̄g. 7 tantū lat." (13) At Lailand in Lancashire, among the lands between the Ribble and the Mersey, it is said, "Hōes huj⁹ 7 de Salford non opabunt ad aulā regis. Tantū. i. haia in filua facieb." (14) and, among the possessions of Saint Peter Gloucester at Hamme and Nortune in Gloucestershire, it is said, "Ibi habuit Æcclia venationē suā p̄ III. haia." (15) Beasts were caught by driving them into a hedged or palead part of a wood or forest, as Elephants are in India, or deer in North America. This is the Haia. (16)

In one instance only, at Hache in Lincolnshire, on the lands of Earl Alan, we have WARENNA LEFORUM. (17)

Vineyards.

A Controversy arose a few years ago, relating to the culture of the Vine in England. Agard first started a doubt, whether by Vineæ we were not to understand Orchards. (18) The lovers of paradox encouraged the interpretation, which was patronized by Sir Robert Atkyns in his History of Gloucestershire, (19) and pursued at considerable length by Barrington, first in his Observations on the Statutes,

§ 2. Land.

Domesday furnishes, at least eight and thirty times, in the different counties, entries of Vineyards, which are usually measured by the Arpent, or Arpena. (') At Bistefham in Berkshire, on the land of Henry de Ferrieres "xii. arpendi vineæ" are entered. (") At Wilcote in Wiltshire, "Ecce noua 7 dom<sup>o</sup> optima 7 vinea bona." (') At Holeburne in Middlesex, it is said, "With Camerarius redd uicecomiti regis p annum vi. fol. p terra ubi sedet uinea sua." (") In the village of Westminster, at Chenetone in Middlesex, and at Ware in Hertfordshire, Vineyards recently planted occur. (') At Hantun in Worcesterhire, "uinea nouella." (') Under Rageneia, in the second volume of the Survey, among the lands of Suein of Essex, we have the most remarkable of all. "M. i. parç<sup>o</sup> 7 vi. arpenni uineæ. 7 reddiit xx. modios uini f<sup>i</sup> bene procedit." (') At Wdelesfort in Essex, on the land of Ralph Baignard, "ii. arpenni uineæ portantes. 7 alij ii portantes" are entered. (") Again, under Stabinga, "ii. arpenni uineæ 7 d. 7 dimidi<sup>o</sup> portat:" (") and lastly, on the property of Alberic de Ver, at Belcamp in Essex, "M. xi. arpenni uineæ i. portat." (") In four instances, Vineyards are measured by the acre. (")

That our records and historians were as well acquainted with the words Pomerium and Hortus as with Vinea, cannot be questioned. Pomerium, indeed, occurs but once in the Domesday Survey, but that once is quite sufficient for our purpose. At Nottingham, it is said, "Witmo Peurel cecellit rex x. acras terræ ad faciendū Pomeriū." (")

Horti, Orti, and Hortuli, occur in the Survey. At Warwick, it is said, "Extra burgū. c. borā cū hortulis suis reddt l. solid." (") Our word Orchard is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word Orceapb, and that from an elder word Ort-geapb, or ƿeort-geapb, a plantation of Herbs; so that its application to fruit trees is of later date.

Vopiscus carries the antiquity of the Vine in England at least as far back as A.D. 280. He informs us that the Emperor Probus, toward the latter part of his reign, restored the privilege of the Vineyard to most of the provinces to the North and West. "Gallis omnibus, et Hispanis, ac Britannis hinc permittit ut vites haberent vinumque conficerent." (") We have the authority of Bede, for the existence of the Vine <sup>3</sup> In several entries in Wiltshire the Arpenz or Arpenni are used as measures of Meadow-land. tom. i. fol. 73. 74 b. and once we find "ii. arpenz siluæ." ibid. fol. 74 b. The Arpen, Arpent, or Arpena, properly signified an Acre or Furlong of Ground. Cowel, however, quotes the Register of Wormley Priory in a passage where it seems to be a quantity something less than an Acre. In England, probably, as in France, the measure of the Arpena was various. See Spelman and Du Cange's Glossaries. The latter, from Gregory of Tours, Hist. lib. v. cap. 29. says, "statutum fuerat ut possessor de propria terra unam Amphoram Vini per Aripenne redderet." Quoting the Vetus Regestum Camerac Computor. Paris, the same Writer says, vide ACRA, "xl. perticæ terræ faciunt virgatam: due virgatæ faciunt Arpentum." Compare also the Glossary to the Codex Legum antiquarum of Lindenbrogius, p. 1358. v. ARIPENNIE.

amongst us in the middle of the eighth century: and Vineyards are noticed in the Laws of Alfred. (<sup>1</sup>) Exclusive, however, of the testimony of Vopiscus, or Bede, or Alfred's Laws, the following passage in Malmebury's History "de Gestis Pontificum," lib. iv. affords a decisive proof, if any were wanting, that the difference between the Vineyard and the Orchard was sufficiently known in the Norman times. He is describing Gloucestershire, "Terra omnis frugum opima, fructuum ferax hic et sola naturæ gratia, illic culturae solertia, ut quamvis tædium per focordiam provocet ad laboris illecebram, ubi centuplicato fœnore responsura sit copia. Cernas tramites publicos uglitos pomiferis arboribus non infictiva manus induit, sed ipsius folius humi natura. . . . Regio plusquam aliæ Angliæ provinciæ Vinearum frequentia densior, proventu uberior, sapore jucundior. Vina enim ipsa bibentium ora tristia non torquent acedine, quippe parum debeat Gallicis dulcedine." (<sup>2</sup>) In another passage, relating to Thorney, he describes the very growing of the Vine. "Nulla ibi vel exigua terræ portio vacat, hic in pomiferas arbores terra se subigit; hic prætexitur ager VINIS quæ vel per terram repunt, vel per bajulas palos in celsum surgunt." (<sup>3</sup>)

From the entries in the Survey, and from other authorities, we learn that in the Norman times few of the great Monasteries were without their Vineyards. (<sup>4</sup>) Vinitor, a vine-dresser, once occurs in the Survey. (<sup>5</sup>)

The compiler of the life of Balleyn, in the last edition of the Biographia Britannica, says, "It is affirmed we have still upon record some treaty of peace between France and England, in which it is stipulated, that we should root up our Vineyards, and be their customers for all our Wine. If such extirpation of the English Vineyards was not owing to this, it might be to the falling of Gascony into the hands of the English, whence Wine was imported cheaper and better than we could make it." (<sup>6</sup>)

Other proofs beside these which Domesday affords might certainly be brought, that Wine of native growth was formerly used in England.

Mills.

In Domesday Book wherever a Mill is specified we generally find it still subsisting. (<sup>7</sup>) Mills antiently belonged to Lords of Manors; and the tenants were permitted to grind only at the Lords Mill. This circumstance sufficiently accounts not only for the great number of Mills noticed in the Survey as objects of profit to the landholder, but for the large sums which they are continually stated to yield. Sometimes even the site of a Mill is mentioned, which had formerly existed, no doubt as a valuable capability. In one instance, "fract<sup>o</sup> molin<sup>o</sup> q<sup>uod</sup> nichil redd<sup>it</sup>" a broken Mill, or one out of repair, occurs: (<sup>8</sup>) and at Merchelai in Herefordshire, "Molin<sup>u</sup> nil redd<sup>it</sup> nisi tant<sup>u</sup> uictu<sup>m</sup> ej<sup>us</sup> qui eū custodit." (<sup>9</sup>) The "Molinum hiemale nō sestivum" meant a Mill, the water-course of which was dry in summer.

The produce of Mills is variously stated in the Survey; sometimes in money, sometimes in grain, sometimes partly in money and partly in grain, and occasionally from the fishery in the Mill stream. In one instance we have "1. Molli de v. Ores." (1) At Loringeston in Kent we have, "Uñ Molli. de xv. solid. 7 cl. anguill." (2) At Wichendone in Buckinghamshire, "1. molli de xx. fol. 7 q<sup>t</sup> xx. anguill." (3) At Maurdine in Herefordshire, "Molli de xx. solid. 7 xxv. siches anguill." (4) At Ayreton in the same county, "Molli redd. iiii. modios annonæ 7 xv. siches anguill." At Wafmertone in Warwickshire, it is said, "Ibi molli de xx. fol. 7 iiii. sūm sat. 7 mille anguill." (5) At Dovere in Kent "Hugo ten<sup>t</sup> uñ molli. qui reddit. xlviii ferlingels de fructu. 7 ii pñ<sup>t</sup> ulli Manerio." (6) At Arundel Castle, we have "Uñ molli reddens x. modia fructu. 7 x. modia grosse annonæ. Infup. iiii. modia." (7) The average value in Suffex, where were a hundred and forty-eight Mills, was eight shillings and two-pence.

§ 2. Lands.

In the very first page of the Survey, we are told, "In introitu portus de Douere est unū molendū. qd<sup>o</sup> oñs pene naues confringit p magnā turbationē maris. 7 maximū dñū facit regi 7 hominib. 7 non fuit ibi. T. R. E. De hoc dicit nepos Herberti. quod eps baiocensis concepit illū fieri Auunculo suo Herberto filio Iuonia." This could scarcely be any but a Tide-Mill; either afloat, or worked by a reservoir filled at high water.

Another complaint relating to a Mill erected after the time of Edward the Confessor, occurs among the Clamores in Lincolnshire. "In Crobi debet habere Wilts blund<sup>o</sup> unū hortū. in tra Iuonia talleboc<sup>o</sup> sed impedit<sup>o</sup> ppt<sup>o</sup> Molendū qd non fuit ibi T. R. E." (8)

Barrington, in his Observations on the Statutes, (9) says, "less is to be found with regard to Mills in the laws of England, than perhaps [in] those of any other European country. (10) The Statute de Pistoribus, between the 51st of Hen. III. and 13th of Edw. I. is the first in which they are mentioned.

Mills are mentioned, in Records of a later date, as things of considerable value. In Stratford upon Avon, the Bishop of Worcester had in the year 1291, two carucates of land rated at twenty shillings, and one Mill yielding a hundred shillings. In the year 1299, part of the Bishop's revenues there was eleven score acres and an half of arable and, at five pence per acre yearly; twenty-seven acres of meadow at two shillings and sixpence per acre yearly; seven acres of pasture value seventeen shillings and eight-pence; his Mills there nine pounds per annum. See Nash's Observ. on the Return of Domesday for Worcesterhire, p. 12. from Dugd. Warw. edit. by Thomas. p. 683. col. 2.

In the eleventh and twelfth years of K. Henry III. the bishoprick of Durham was in the King's hands. Master Stephen de Lucy accounted to the Crown for the issues and revenues of it arising in the vacancy. He answered to the King, amongst other issues, "de DCCCC & xxvj. l. xij. s. & v. d. ob. de firmis Molendinorum de eodem tempore" See Madox, Hist. <sup>10</sup> Mills form one of the principal heads of the Law of Scotland. To thirl, in the Scottish dialect, which in its primary sense signifies to enslave or thrall, in a secondary meaning signifies "to bind, by the terms of a lease, or otherwise, to grind at a certain Mill." Thirlage is the Scottish term for the servitude by which lands are so attached. The jurisdiction attached to a Mill, or that extent of ground, the tenants of which are bound to bring their grain thither, is called in the Scottish Law the Sucken of a Mill. Probably from the Anglo-Saxon poene, privilegium. Compare Jamieson's Etym. Dict. of the Scottish Language. See also Erskine's Instit. B. ii. tit. 9. f. 20. § 2. Land.

The toll is directed to be taken according to the custom of the land, and according to the strength of the water-courfe, either to the twentieth or four and twentieth Corn. (¹)

At Cetelingei, in Suffex, we find the miller valued with the Mill. (²) Molinarii occur, tom. i. foll. 176 b. 180 b. 260 b. 264. The "Molini reddentes plumbas ferri" were Mills belonging to Iron Works. (³)

Salt Works.

The frequent occurrence of Salt Works in the Domelday Survey, requires explanation. Those mentioned in counties bordering on the coasts, were, unquestionably, ponds and pans for procuring Marine Salt by evaporation. Those in more inland parts were what are called the Refineries of Brine or Salt Springs. At the time of forming the Survey, Rock or Fossil Salt was not known in England. The first Pits of it were accidentally discovered in Cheshire, on the very spot where Domelday mentions Brine Springs, as late as the year 1670. (⁴)

In the Returns for Kent and Suffex, Salinæ occur frequently: though in Surrey, Hampshire, Dorsetshire, Devonshire, Buckinghamshire, Gloucestershire, Herefordshire, Warwickshire, and Shropshire, we find them more sparingly entered. In the earlier counties returned in the Survey, the Salt Works do not seem to have been objects of the greatest importance; sometimes yielding scarcely any thing. Two hundred and eighty-five Salinæ in Suffex averaged at two shillings and five-pence halfpenny. At Stollant in Dorsetshire, (⁵) thirty-two Salt Pans yielded only forty shillings. In Devonshire, at Flueta, eleven Salinæ yielded but eleven pence per annum. (⁶) At Ermentone in the latter county, however, we have a Salina yielding thirteen pounds ten shillings "ad penā 7 arfurā." (⁷)

Berkshire, Wiltshire, Cornwall, Middlesex, Hertfordshire, Oxfordshire, Cambridgeshire, Huntingdonshire, Northamptonshire, Leicestershire, Staffordshire, Derbyshire, and Yorkshire, seem to have been some almost, and some entirely, without them. At Sopeberie in Gloucestershire, it is said, "Ad hoc 8 ptū una 5 in Wiche. quæ reddeþ. xxv. sext falis. Vrfus uicecom ita uastauit hoēs. qđ m redde 8 possunt fal." (⁸)

In Worcestershire, the Salinæ are very numerous. At Bremesgrave, in the King's demesne, thirteen Salt Works were appendant to the Manor, and three Salinarii, wallers or boilers of the Salt, (⁹) who rendered three hundred mitts, or measures, for which, in the time of King Edward, three hundred cart loads of wood were given by the managers of the timber. In the Conqueror's time here were fix "plumbi," or leaden vats for boiling the Salt. (¹⁰) In Wich, in the same county, also in the King's

Dr. Borlase speaks of a place in the parish of Sennen, near the Land's-end, where traces of Salt Works were to be seen; and adds, that, according to the tradition of the place, the Works were discontinued, not through any deficiency of materials, or incongruity of situation, but through the neglect or dishonesty of the persons employed." ## GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

demesne, King Edward is stated to have had eleven houses, and his share in five Salt Pits. At one Pit, Upewic, fifty-four Salinae and two Hocci yielded six shillings and eight-pence. At another Pit, Helperic, were seventeen Salinae. At a third Pit, (') Midelwic, twelve Salinae and two portions of a Hoccus, or lesser Pit, (') yielding also six shillings and eight-pence. At five other Pits there were fifteen Salinae. Of all these, it is said, King Edward had for rent fifty-two pounds. In these Pits Earl Edwin had fifty-one Salinae and a half, and from the Hocci six shillings and eight-pence. The whole paying twenty-four pounds rent. At the time of forming the Survey, King William had in his demesne both the share of King Edward and that of the Earl. The Sheriff, to whose care the Salt Works seem to have been assigned, paid thence sixty-five pounds (') and two measures of Salt, when he was allowed wood. If the wood (used in boiling the Salt) was not allowed, the rent went unpaid. (')

in this Record.

§ 2. Lands.

In Terdeberie were seven Salinae and two Plumbi, paying twenty shillings and a hundred measures of Salt. (') In Norwiche in the same county, a Salina paid a hundred measures of Salt for a hundred cart-loads of wood. (') Dr. Nash observes that a Salt-pan in Droitwich was worth four shillings, when a house at Worcester was valued at one. (')

The Salt Works of Cheshire, however, were those of the greatest consequence. The detail of the laws and customs of the Cheshire Wiches form a singular and a very curious article in the Survey.

In Warmundestrou hundred, it is said, in King Edward's time, was a Wich with a Pit for making Salt, and eight Salinae. Of the rents and profits of these Salinae, King Edward had two portions, and Edwin Earl of Chester the third: beside which, the Earl had a Salt Work of his own adjacent to the Manor of Acatone, from which his own household was supplied. If the Earl sold any from it, the King had two-pence as toll, and the Earl the third penny. The owners of private Salt Works were also permitted to have Salt, for the use of their families, toll free; but paid toll for all which they sold, whether at the works or in any other part of the county of Chester. The Salinae, both in and out of demesne, were encircled in one part by a stream, and on the other by a fols. In King Edward's time the rent of this Wich, including the profits of the hundred, amounted to twenty pounds. When Earl Hugh received it, one Salina only was productive: the rest of the Wich was disused. At the time of forming the Survey the rent was reduced to ten pounds. In Mildestvich, now Middlewich Hundred was another Wich, the Salt Works of which had also belonged jointly to King Edward and Earl Edwin, though none were in demesne. In King Edward's time this Wich had yielded a rent excluding the profits of the Hundred, of five pounds. When Earl Hugh received it, in King William's time, the disuse of the Wich had reduced the rent to twenty-five shillings. A third Wich, called Norwich, in Mildestvic hundred, likewise belonging in the Saxon time to King Edward and Earl Edwin, also produced eight pounds. When Earl Hugh received this Wich it was totally unproductive; but at the time of making the Survey it produced thirty-five shillings. (')

It is probable, say the authors of the new Magna Britannia, that the chief exportation of Salt at this early period, from Cheshire, was to Wales; the people of which country are said to have called Nantwich, Hellath Wen, or the White Salt Pit, from the whiteness of the Salt there made. (')

§ 2. Lands.

It is singular, that at Lentune, now Lymington, in Hampshire, no Salt Works are entered in the Survey, although in the year 1145 a tithe of the Salt manufactures there was granted by Richard de Redvers to the abbey of Quarre in the Isle of Wight. (') Lymington has still the most considerable manufacture of Marine Salt of any place upon the Southern coast of England.

In fol. 265 b. of the first volume of the Survey, William Malbedeng is said to hold Aftune of Earl Hugh, "7 in Wich. l. domū quietā ad sal faciendū." At Spallinge in Lincolnshire "Area Salinarum" occurs. (')

In Essex and Norfolk, in the second volume of the Survey, the Salinæ are numerous: but not so numerous in Suffolk.

The Measures of Salt noticed in the Survey, are Ambra, Bulliones, Menfura, Mitta, Sextaria, and Summa.

An Ambra was four bushels. (') At Walsington, in Suffex, we have "v. falinæ de cx. ambris falis." (') Bulliones occur but once in the Survey: fifteen are said to have made a Summa or Horfe-load of Salt. (') Menfura are mentioned at Mucelude in Gloucestershire: "xxiiii. menfura Salis in Wich." (') The Mitta, according to some writers, was ten bushels. (') At Hadeore in Worcestershire, seven Salinæ yielded a hundred and eleven Mits of Salt. (') The Sextarium appears to have been of uncertain quantity. In most of the entries in the Survey in which it occurs, it is mentioned as a measure of honey, (') and two or three times for corn or flour. (") The Summa, Seme, or Horfe-load, is used in the Survey for Salt, Corn, Flour, Malt, Peas, and Fish. (") Its relative quantity for Salt has been already noticed under Bulliones.

<sup>1</sup> Dugd. Mon. tom. i. pp. 760. 763. Warner in his "Topographical Remarks relating to the South-Western parts of Hampshire," vol. ii. p. 28. speaking of Hurst Castle, says, "The coast from hence to the westward, for four or five miles, was anciently occupied in some degree by salt-works, as appears from Domesday Book, in which mention is made of the Salinæ, both in Milford and Hordle manors. They have long since disappeared; though by certain wooden flakes, which may be discovered at very low ebbs, as I am informed, their former situation is nearly ascertained."

<sup>3</sup> See the Registr. Honoris de Richm. App. p. 44. where in an Extent of the Manors of Crowhurst and Fyrlsham, in Suffex. 8 Edw. I. we read "xxiiii. Ambra falis, quæ faciunt xii. quarteria secundum mensuram Londoniæ." Ibid. p. 258. it is added "Quarterium Londoniense octo Modios five Bushellos continet, Ambra igitur quatuor modios." It is singular that Cowel, and Kelham in his Domesd. Book Illustr. p. 154. should represent the Ambra as a Measure the quantity of which is not now known. Wilkins, LL. Anglo-Sax. Glossar. p. 389. considered the modern Firkin as coming nearest to it.

<sup>9</sup> For honey, at least, there seem to have been sextaries of different capacities. In King Edward's time, the city of Gloucester, among other rents, paid "xii. sextaria mellis ad mensurā ejusd. burgi." Domesd. tom. i. fol. 162. Under Chenemartune in the same county, we have "viii. sextaria mellis ad mensuram regis." Ibid. fol. 166. And in the account of Warwick, it is said, "Modo inter firmā regaliū Manerioꝝ 7 placita Comitatus — redd xiiii. sextar mell cū majori mensura. 7 de Burgo. vi. sextar mell. Sextar scilicet pro. xv. denar." Ibid. fol. 238.

See Kennett's MS. Glossary. Spelman says Summa Annone was an horse-load or eight London bushels. Mat. Paris. in anno 1205, says "Suma frumenti duodecim solidis vendebatur."

Iron and Lead Works

The circumstance that the arts of refinery and working Metals could not have been unknown even in the Saxon times, renders it singular that so few notices should occur in the Domesday Survey concerning the mineral productions of the country. No mention whatever of Tin occurs in that part of the Survey which relates to Cornwall; (<sup>1</sup>) but Iron is mentioned in different Counties: and Blomes, Maffes, and Plumbas of Iron, are several times noticed as rents. In Somersetshire, under "Terra Regis," at Sudperet, we read, "Huic  $\overline{\text{D}}$  reddebat T. R. E. de Cruche p anū cūetudo. hoc. ē. vi. oues cū agnis totidē. 7 qsq. lib hō. i. blomā ferri." (<sup>2</sup>) In the same county, under the head of "Terra Epī Sarīberienfis," under Seveberge and "Seveberge alia," it is said, "jacuē in Crvche  $\overline{\text{D}}$  regis. 7 qui teneb inde n poterant separti. 7 reddeb in Crvche p cūuetud. xii. oues cū agnis. 7 una bloma ferri de unoq. libo homine." (<sup>3</sup>) Among the Earl of Moretaine's lands, at Stantune, we have, "cclx. ac siluē. 7 l. ac pasture redd. iiii. blomas ferri:" (<sup>4</sup>) at Bichehalle, "Hoc  $\overline{\text{D}}$  debet p cūuetud in Cvri  $\overline{\text{D}}$  regis. v. oues cū totidem agnis 7 qque lib hō unā blomā ferri:" (<sup>5</sup>) and at Aldedeford, "de uitis. viii. blomas ferri." (<sup>7</sup>) At Pulcrece in Gloucestershire, belonging to Glastonbury Abbey, it is said, "Ibi x. ferui. 7 vi. hoēs reddt c. massas ferri. x. minus." (<sup>8</sup>) In Herefordshire, at Merchelai, in the King's demesne, we find a single hide yielding fifty masses. "Re hoc  $\overline{\text{D}}$  est una hida ad Turlestone quaz T. R. E. reddeb l. massas ferri. 7 vi. falmones." (<sup>9</sup>) The plumbas ferri occur in two entries only, in Somersetshire. Among the lands of Earl Eustace at Lechefwrde, we read, "Ibi. ii. molini reddt. ii. plūbas ferri;" (<sup>10</sup>) and at the same place, in the enumeration of the possessions of

§ 2. Lond.

<sup>1</sup> The conquest of Cornwall by Athelstan, it will be remembered, was not completed till the year 935. In 997 the province was ravaged by the Danes: and again in 1068 by Godwin and Edmund the sons of Harold, in their return to Ireland. These convulsions will probably account for the neglect of the Cornish Tin Mines in the Eleventh Century. Certain it is, that from the time when Cornwall was governed by its native Earls, till after the formation of the Domesday Survey, its product of Tin must have been inconsiderable. Had Edward the Confessor received any revenue from the Mines, there can be no doubt but it would have been noticed in the Survey.

Madox informs us, (Hist. Excheq. 4th edit. vol. ii. p. 132.) that "in the tenth of K. Richard I. William de Wrotham accounted at the Exchequer for the ferm and issues of the Mines of Devonshire and Cornwall, and for several receipts as well in money as in tin, for one whole year." Mag. Rot. 10 R. I. rot. 12 b. He adds, "In the fourteenth year of K. John, William de Wrotham accounted for CC. marks, the ferm of the Stannary of Cornwall for the 13th and 14th years of that King; and for CC l. the ferm of the Stannary of Devonshire for the same space of time; and for Dxlj l. v s. for the Marks proceeding from the Tin of Cornwall and Devon for the 13th year, and for Dclxviij l. xij s. ix d. for the like for the 14th year." Mag. Rot. 14 Joh. rot. 8 b. post Devenesciram. These seem to be the earliest notices we have of the Tin Mines of Cornwall, during the reign of the Norman Princes.

From a Sow of Iron rolled into the fire, the workmen melt off a piece called a Loop, which they beat with iron sledges, and then hammer it gently, which forces out the cinder and dross, and then beat it thicker and stronger till they bring it to a blom, which is a four square mass of about two feet long. This operation they call shingling the Loop. Kennett's Glossary, MS. Lanf. num. 1098. fol. 43. Bloomary or Bloomery is still the name for the first forge in an Iron work, through which the metal passes after it is melted out of the Ore.

§ 2. Lead.

Baldewin de Execestre, "Ibi molū redd. ii. plūbas ferri." (*) In Cheshire, in the Hundred of Atiscrofs, we find Robert de Roelent holding, beside a Moiety of the castle and burg of Roelent, "medietatem æccie 7 monetæ. 7 Minaria ferri ibid<sup>o</sup> insuēta. 7 medietatē aquæ de Cloith." &c. (*) In Lincolnshire, at Westbitham, seven foreigners appear to have held two carrucates of land and three Iron-forges, yielding forty shillings and eight-pence. "Ibi vii. francigene hñt ii. car. 7 iii. fabrīcas ferri de xl. solid 7 viii. den." (*)

Fabri, smiths, occur several times in the Survey, as will be hereafter noticed; but in two instances, in the Return for Northamptonshire, from the great sums paid, they seem to have been rather Iron-workers. At Norton in that County, it is said, "Fabri reddēs vii. lib. T. R. E." In the same page, (*) at Tovecestre, "Fabri reddēs c. fol m nichil."

The LEAD-WORKS mentioned in the Survey are all upon the King's demesne in Derbyshire. In Meistesforde, we read, "Ibi viii. æ pti 7 una Plūbaria." (*) In Wercheworde, "Ibi sunt iii. plumbaria." "In Badeqvela, una plumbaria." (*) In Aisseford, una plumbaria." (*) After Badeqvela, Aisseford, and Hope, it is said, "H. tria Maneria reddebant T. R. E. xxx. lib. 7 v. festarios mett 7 dimidiū 7 v. plaufratas plūbi de l. tabulis. Modo reddunt. x. lib. 7 vi. solid. Wills Peurel custodit." (*) Kelham translates "v. plaufratas plūbi de l. tabulis," five cart-loads of Lead of fifty tables. Pilkington, speaking of the pieces, or blocks of Lead cast in moulds, of which two make a pig, says "Lead is not always disposed of in this state and form. Sometimes it is first rolled into sheets at works erected for that purpose in the neighbourhood of the furnaces." (*) The Tabula of Domesday Book, for roofing Cathedrals, must have been cast at the Foundry.

Fisheries.

FISHERIES form another of the more important sources of rent noticed in the Domesday Survey. Where the produce in kind is mentioned it seems to have consisted chiefly in Eels, Herrings, or Salmon.

The rent in Eels appears sometimes to have been paid numerically, as, at Thapellav one of the Bishop of Bayeux's manors in Buckinghamshire, "De piscar. mille anguill." (*) At Archelov in Shropshire, we have, "Piscaria de mille 7 qngent 7 ii. anguill magnis." (") and in Yorkshire, under Bevreli, "Piscar. vii. millū Anguillarū." (") Sometimes they were paid by sticks or sticks, every stick having twenty-five. (") Among the Bishop of Lincoln's dependants at Dorchester in Oxfordshire, we find,

"Piscator redd. xxx. flicli anguill." (1) At Leofminstre in Herefordshire ninety fliches were paid to the King, which were not included in the computation of the rent of the manor. (2) The payment of Eels in rent from mills has been already noticed in a former page; it was then that they were usually measured by fliches. At Patriceham in Surrey, we have, "Piscar de mille anguill 7 mille Lampridut." (3)

in this Record.
§ 2. Lands.

The Herring Fisheries occur in Kent and Suffex, once in Norfolk, and very numerous in Suffolk. Sandwich in Kent, which belonged to Christ Church Canterbury, yielded annually forty thousand Herrings for the refectory of the monks. (4) The church of Saint Peter Winchester, had thirty-eight thousand five hundred Herrings from the villeins on their manor at Lewes in Suffex. (5) William de Warene had sixteen thousand Herrings from the burgesses of Lewes. (6) He had also four thousand "de gablo" from the villani and bordarii of Bristelmestune. (7) The manor of Beccles in Suffolk, in King Edward's time, yielded thirty thousand Herrings to the abbey of Saint Edmund. This rent in the Conqueror's time was increased to sixty thousand. (8) Hugh de Montefort's manors in Suffolk yielded numerous rents of Herrings. (9)

Salmon are mentioned in the Survey, by name, but in few entries. Among the possessions of Judhel de Totenais in Devonshire, we find two Fisheries, one at Lodefville, and the other at Corneorde, each yielding thirty Salmon, as rent. (10) Both in the time of Edward, and in King William's time, the Church of Saint Peter Gloucester received sixteen Salmon in part of rent from its own burgesses in the city. (11) A hide of land belonging to Merchelai in Herefordshire, in the time of King Edward, yielded six Salmon, in part of rent to the crown. (12) Earl Hugh had a Fishery at Etone in Cheshire, which yielded annually a thousand Salmon. (13) Fisheries in the Severn and the Wye, no doubt principally for Salmon, are frequently noticed in Gloucestershire. Under Tedeneham, among the lands belonging to the crown, we find, "In Sauerna. xi. piscarias in dñio. 7 xlii. piscarias uillanoꝝ. In Waia. i. piscaria. 7 uillanoꝝ ii. piscarias 7 dimidia. Roger<sup>9</sup> comes creuit in Waia ii. piscarias." (14)

At Mortelage in Surrey, "Una Piscaria sine censu" occurs. It is added, "Hanc Piscariā habuit Heraldus comes in Mortelaga T. R. E. 7 Stigand<sup>9</sup> archi habuit diu. T. R. W. 7 tañ dñt qđ Herald<sup>9</sup> ui confruxit eā T. R. E. in terra de Chingestune. 7 in terra S. Pauli. (15) This Fishery was a Weir. There are Haize for fishing at Kingston now.

At Saham in Cambridgeshire, we find, "vii. Piscatores reddentes regi pñtation† Piscū ter in anno scdm quod possunt." (16) The abbey of Ely appears to have enjoyed great advantages from the fisheries in the two Hundreds of Ely: as, "v. Dodinton. De piscariis. xxvii. mit anguill. 7 cl. De pñtationib<sup>9</sup> xxiiii. fol." "v. Litelport. De piscar. xvii. mit anguill. De pñtation† piscū 7 xii. fol 7 ix. den." "In Stuntenci. De Piscar. xxiiii. mit Anguill. De pñt. xviii. fol. (17) At Saham, also, "una naus quæ piscat in mara p consuetud†" is reckoned, with the demesne there, belonging to the Abbat. (18) At Saham too, the abbat of Saint Edmund had his Fishery. "In Sahā ten ipse abb. vi. acras trā.

2. Measurement of Land.

THE following is Biſhop Kennett's definition of the HIDE. "Hide of Land. Not as Polydore Vergil fancies, from the hide of a beaſt, as if an Engliſh hide of land were like the extent of Carthage, Quantum taurino poſſint circundare tergo; but from the Saxon hýb, a houſe or habitation, from hýban to cover: the word was ſometime taken for a houſe, as we ſtill preferve the word Hut for a cottage. And what Bede calls Familias (which Familia ſeems to have been a circuit of ground ſufficient for the maintenance of a family) his Saxon interpreter King Alfred calls hýbelanber. (") The quantity of it was afterwards deſcribed to be as much as was ſufficient to the cultivation of one plough. 'Hida Anglice vocatur terra unius Aratri culturæ ſufficiens,' whence our term of Ploughland. The quantity of a Hide was never expressly determined. The Dialogus de Scaccario makes it one hundred acres. <sup>(1)</sup> The Malmibury manuscript cited by Spelman, computes it at ninety-six acres: one hide four virgates, and every virgate four acres. And yet the history of the foundation of the Abbey of Battle <sup>(2)</sup> makes eight virgates go to one hide. But Polydore Vergil blunders most, who reduces a hide to twenty acres. The truth seems to be that a hide, a yardland, a knight's fee, &c. contained no certain number of acres, but varied according to different places. In the Domesday Inquisition the first enquiry was how many hides." <sup>(3)</sup>

Selden says, the just value of a hide that might fit the whole kingdom never appears from Domesday, and was ever of an uncertain quantity. <sup>(4)</sup> From an entry in Buckinghamshire, one would suppose the hide in that county at least had been measured with peculiar exactness. In Lateberie, it is said, "ten Eps Liliacensis de Eps Baiocensi i. hid v. pedes minus." <sup>(5)</sup> Hutchins, in his Dissertation on Domesday Book, prefixed to the History of Dorsetshire, says, "The Hide was the measure of land in the Confeſſor's reign; the Carucate that to which it was reduced by the Conqueror's new standard." Among the possessions, however, of Goisfridus de Werce in Leicestershire, we read, "Ipse G. ten Medelone. Ibi st. vii. hidae 7 una car trā 7 una bouata. In unaq. hida. st. xiiii. car trā 7 dimid." <sup>(6)</sup> In the same county, under Cilebi, we read, "Ogerus Brito ten de rege. ii. partes unius hidae. id est xii. car trā." <sup>(7)</sup> And, in the lands between the Ribble and the Mersey in Lancashire, it is expressly stated, "in unaquaque hida sunt. vi. caruc trā." <sup>(8)</sup> Even at Odetun in Dorsetshire, we read, "Bricci tenuit. miles regis E. 7 geldb p xii. hid. Tra est xvi. car. De ea st in dñio iiii. carucatæ." <sup>(9)</sup>

Agard takes considerable pains to prove, that both before and after the Conquest, six score acres went to the Hide. He quotes a manuscript entitled, "Restauratio ecclesiæ de Ely," in which were these words: "Et non inuenerunt de terra quæ mulieris jure fuisset, nisi unam HIDAM per sexies xx. Acras, et super HIDAM xxiv. Acras:" and again, "In Wilberham emit Abbas ab Alifuino et uxore ejus duas HIDAS duodecims xx. Acrarum, et totum Hundredum unius cujusque emptionis fuit in testimonium." <sup>(10)</sup>

In illustration of the same measure, as having been used for the Hide subsequent to the Conquest, Agard quotes the "Placita de Jur. et Affil. coram Joh. de Vallibus et aliis Justic. Itin. apud Cant. 14 Edw. I. Dicunt quod sunt in Hokinton xii. Hidae terræ, quarum quælibet HIDA continet in se sexies viginti acras terræ." <sup>(11)</sup>

So, before, in the same folio, "In Civitate Lincolnie erant tēpore regis Edwardi novies centū 7 lxx. mansiones hospitatæ. Hic numerus Angliæ computat. i. centū p c. xx." Hence probably the old Saw,

§ 2. Lands.

Under Caplefore, in Herefordshire, a distinction is made in Domesday between the Englſſ and Welſſ Hides. (1) Bishop Kennett says, that in the 45th of Henry the second, A.D. 1169, a hide of land at Chelsterton contained sixty-four acres. He adds, the yearly value of a hide of land at Blechingdon in Oxfordshire, in the 35th of Henry III. was forty shillings. (2)

The CARUCATA, which is also to be interpreted the plough-land, was as much arable as could be managed with one plough and the beasts belonging thereto in a year; having meadow, pasture, and houses for the householders and cattle, belonging to it. (3) The Carucate was of Norman introduction, and usually, in the Domesday Survey, follows the measure of the hide. Thus every place is said to have paid geld for so many hides T. R. E. and then follows its present measure of so many carucates. It has been already shewn that with reference to the Hide the measure of the Carucate was various, even in the Survey. It probably differed according to the nature of the soil, or the custom of husbandry in every county. Agard thought that in those counties of Domesday where no Hides are mentioned, the Carucate and the Hide were co-extensive: (4) as in Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire, Rutlandshire, Yorkshire, and Lincolnshire. (5) He quotes Walter Wytlesley, a monk of Peterborough, who, as far as one county is concerned, writes, "In provincia Lincolnie non sunt Hida sicut in aliis Provinciis, sed pro Hidis sunt Carucatæ terrarum, et non minus valent quam Hida." He also cites a passage from Knyghton "de qualibet Hida, id est Carucata terræ." Bishop Kennett informs us from a Deed in the Monasticon that a Carucate in the reign of Richard the first was computed at sixty acres. (6) "Yet," he adds, "another charter, 9 Rich. I. allots a hundred acres to a Carucate. And Fleta temp. Edw. I. says, if land lay in three common fields, then nine score acres to a Carucate, sixty for winter tillage, sixty for spring tillage, and sixty for fallow. But if the land lay in two fields, then eight score acres to a Carucate, one half for tillage, and the other for fallow." (7) "The measure of a carucate," he continues, "was different according to time and place. In 32 Edw. III. one carucate of land in Burcester in Oxfordshire, contained a hundred and twelve acres; and two carucates in Middleton were three hundred acres." (8)

In abbreviating the Domesday returns, the Norman scribes appear occasionally, even in the same county, to have used the contraction car or car both for caruca and carucata: although the one signified the plough and team, and the other, as Dr. Nash expresses it, the team's tillage. The omission to observe this has led many of the translators of Domesday into error.

In different parts of the Survey we have frequent intimations that the land could maintain more ploughs, that is, was capable of improvement. As in Herefordshire, at Bertune, "In diſio poſſent eſſe ii. car<sup>9</sup> pluſquā ſunt." (9) Again, at Monetai in the same county, "una car<sup>9</sup> plus poteſt eſſe." (10)

In Yorkshire the entries of this description are extremely numerous. As "x. carucatæ 7 vi. car<sup>i</sup> pos<sup>s</sup> esse:" "xii. carucatæ 7 vii. car<sup>i</sup> pos<sup>s</sup> esse:" "xxv. carucatæ 7 xiii. carucatæ pos<sup>s</sup> esse:" "quaf<sup>i</sup> xx. 7 xvi. carucatæ t<sup>r</sup>as in q<sup>u</sup>o pos<sup>s</sup> esse l<sup>x</sup>. carucatæ." (1) These latter entries are perhaps to be ascribed to the slow recovery of Yorkshire from devastation. In Norfolk, at Caustituna, after the description of the manor in the time of King Edward the Confessor, it is said, "T<sup>u</sup>nc 7 p<sup>o</sup> iiii. car<sup>i</sup> in d<sup>i</sup>no. m<sup>o</sup> iiii. & due possint restaurari." "T<sup>u</sup>nc 7 p<sup>o</sup> xxvi. car. hom. [belonging to the tenemental lands] n<sup>o</sup> xvi. & alie possint restaurari." (2)

§ 2. Land.

The SOLIN is a measure of land only found in Kent. In the Register of Battle Abbey, preserved among the Cotton Manuscripts in the British Museum the Manor of Wi in Kent, which was given to that monastery by the Conqueror, is noticed, "cum omnibus appendiciis suis septem Suolingarum, id est HIDARUM." (1) In the second folio of the Survey of Kent is this entry: "In cōmuni t<sup>r</sup>a S. Martini funt cccc ac<sup>r</sup>e 7 dimid. quæ funt ii. SOLINOS 7 dimid." "Now," says Agard, "this word dimidium first named, must have relation to half an Hundred, and not to half an Acre. For in all the whole book there is not named half an Acre." (2) And then I take it, that a Solin of Ground, after English account, containeth two hundred and sixteen Acres. If after Norman tale, then nine score Acres. And to this agreeth somewhat near a Note taken out of a Leiger Book, which the Bishop of Norwich D<sup>r</sup>. Redman hath, in these words: "Item Abbas dicit quod in libro vocato Domesday Sancti Edwardi apud Westm. sic habetur, Abbas Sancti Augustini tenet Manerium de Langeport. Ibi est unum Solin et unum Jugum, &c. Et ulterius idem Abbas dicit secundum interpretationem antiquorum terminorum unum Solin continet cc Acres." (3)

The Carucate bore the same variety of proportion to the Solin as to the Hide. Sometimes, when it is said of land "p<sup>o</sup> uno Solin se defd." it is added "Terra ē vi car<sup>i</sup>." At others, "T<sup>r</sup>a ē iiii. car<sup>i</sup>." "T<sup>r</sup>a ē v. car<sup>i</sup>." "T<sup>r</sup>a ē iiii. car<sup>i</sup>." "T<sup>r</sup>a ē ii. car<sup>i</sup>."

On the JUGUM, or Yoke of land, a measure likewise confined to Kent in the Survey, the opinions of writers also differ. Matthew Paris, Ralph de Diceto, Bromton, and the Annalist of Dunstaple, write as if the Jugum and the Hide were the same. But this is not the case in the Domesday returns. Agard notices a passage in which the Jugum appears to have been equivalent to half a Carucate. It is among the entries relating to the property of the Bishop of Baieux. "Odo tē de epō in Hadone i. jugum. T<sup>r</sup>a ē dim car<sup>i</sup>." (4) From another entry, however, it should seem as if four Jugs went to the Solin. "Hugo de Montfort tē uñ w<sup>o</sup> Estwelle. qd tenuit Frederic de rege E. 7 p<sup>o</sup> uno Solin se defd. Tria Jugs sunt infra divisionē Hugonis. 7 q<sup>u</sup>rtū jugū ē extra. 7 ē de feudo epī Baioc." (5)

The VIRGATE, it is probable, differed from itself in different places at the time of the Survey, as much as at subsequent periods. In the Account of Oxford, the "uirg quæ cōsuetudinariæ erant T.R.E." are mentioned. (6) Webb, from the consideration of the Ely and Exeter Manuscripts, decides that four virges or virgates must have formed the Hide of the Survey: (') although the Regifter of Battle Abbey, (') which is of early authority, says eight Virgates made the Hide. Agard says, "Virgata is taken diversly, as I find in a Regifter Book of Ely, which now the Dean hath, in fundry towns fundry meafures, as in Leverington a Yard-land is LX. acres, in Fenton xxx. acr. in Tyd xxxii. acr. In bundello Efchaet. 26° E. i. infra Turrim Lond. sunt ibi vii. Virgata terræ in dominico continentes quinquies xx. & xii. acras, quarum quolibet Virgata valet vii. s. prec. Acr. vi. d. Ergo xvi. Acr. pro Virgata. In Coln Virgata operabilis xv. Acr. And in another Town, not named by my note, xx. Acr. And fo I have feen in Extents." (1) Dr. Nash says, the Virgata is explained in a MS. i. Hen. V. to contain thirty acres, fometimes twenty-four, and fometimes fifteen. He adds, in the Receipt of the Exchequer is an antient Deed from John Wace to St. Mary's of Stanleig of a Virgate of land in Henton, where the Virgate appears to be eighteen acres. (4)

The BOVATA, or Oxgang, was originally as much as an Ox-Team could plough in a year. Eight bovates are usually faid to have made a Carucate: but the number of acres which made a Bovate are variously stated in different records, from eight to twenty-four. Dr. Nash says, "Bovata terræ continet viii. acras terræ in campis Doncastræ." Trin. 21 Edw. I. Rot. 26 Ebor. coram Rege. "Una Bouata de xvi. acris, et alia bovata continet xvii. acras." Trin. 26 Edw. I. Ebor. de Banco. (5)

In a few entries of the Survey we find the FERDING mentioned as a measure of Land. At Dolvertune in Somersethire, it is faid, "Huic 8 st additæ. ii. hidæ træ dimid ferding min<sup>9</sup>." (6) It is, no doubt, the fame with the FERLING which occurs several times in Somersethire and Devonshire, and evidently in its original fignification meant the peopelung, or fourth part. (7) From a comparifon of different entries it will be found to be lefs than either the Hide or the Virgate. Agard confidered it of the fame dimensions with the Oxgang, about fifteen Acres. (8) Lord Coke is certainly wrong in making the Ferling and Quarentena the fame. (9)

ACRA an acre, from the Anglo-Saxon Æceþ a field, and that from the Roman Ager, appears originally to have fignified no determined quantity of land. It is mentioned however as a measure at a very early period; and from a paffage in the Battle Abbey Regifter, fo often quoted, it appears that the Normans had an Acre confefedly differing from that of the Saxons. We find a grant in it of "triginta acras prati, ad menfuram Normanniæ dimenfas, in fundo manetii fui vocabulo Bodeham." (10) The different proportions of the Acre in the time of King Edward the firft, with the intermediate admenfurations, are laid down in the "Statutum de Admenfuratione Terrarum:" when the Acre was ten perches in length, it was to be sixteen in breadth; and when eighty perches in length, to be two in breadth. (11) The elementary Acre, however, was forty perches long by four perches wide.

The PERCA, or PERTICA, according to the Register of Battle, consisted of sixteen feet. <sup>(1)</sup> Agarde says, in the Arrentations of Affairs for Forests, made in the reigns of Henry the third and Edward the first, for forest ground the commissioners let the land "per perticam x.x. pedum." <sup>(2)</sup> Spelman says, the Pertica Regis upon the Clofe Rolls of the 11th of Henry the third was of twenty-four feet. <sup>(3)</sup> Different measures of the Perch, from ten to twenty feet, may be found in deeds in the Monasticon. <sup>(4)</sup> Abroad, it extended to twenty-five, and even twenty-seven feet. <sup>(5)</sup> By the Statutum de Admensuratione Terrarum five yards and a half of the Ulna Regis, or yard of three feet, were to make a Perch. <sup>(6)</sup>

§ 2. Land.

The LEUCA and QUARENTENA of the Survey were most commonly applied to Woodland. The LEUCA, LEUGA, and LEUUA, according to the Register of Battle Abbey, consisted of four hundred and eighty perches, or twelve Quaranteines. Ingulphus, however, who is good authority, speaks of the Leuca as a mile. <sup>(7)</sup> The ordinary mile of England, it will be remembered, in former times, was more of a traditionary than an ascertained Measure. It was nearly a mile and a half of the present standard. <sup>(8)</sup>

The QUARENTENA, called Quadrigenaria in the Exeter Domesday, was the Forty long, or Furlong: from the French Quarente, forty. A measure of forty Perches. <sup>(9)</sup>

THE different Computations of Money in the Survey are by the Libra or Pound, the Mark, the Ora, the Shilling, the Penny, the Half-penny, the Faring, and the Minuta.

The Libra, or Pounds, appear to have been of three kinds, the Libra ad numerum, the Libra ad penum, and the Libra ad ignem et ad penfam. The Libra ad numerum, was the pound of ready money, made up not of shillings but of Oræ, and, as we ascertain by different entries, was valued at the rate of twenty-pence to the Ora. The Libra alba, de albo argento, blanca, candida, de albis denariis, denariorum candidorum, alborum nummorum, or candidorum nummorum, appear to have been the same <sup>8</sup> Blomefield, in his History of Norfolk, renders Leuua a league, meaning by the term an extent not exceeding two miles, which appears to have answered in the generality of places he examined as to their extent. It must not be forgotten that LEUUA or LEUCA has another meaning in a few Entries of the Domesday Survey. The Leuua or Lowy as it is called, of Tonbridge Castle in Kent, will be found noticed in p. lxvii. See a particular account of the "Leuga S. Wilfridi," in Yorkshire, Domesd. tom. i. fol. 303. The "Carucata S. Johis liba a geldo regis" in Beverley, ibid. fol. 304. was the same thing.

with the Libra ad numerum, as may appear from several quotations, in which they are likewise valued at twenty-pence to the Ora. (') The Libra ad pensum, were by weight. The Libra ad ignem et ad pensum, arsae et peniatae, or ad pensum et arsuram, formed the payment when the coins offered at the Exchequer were defective in fineness as well as in weight. On this occasion the Receivers at the Exchequer either melted a sample of the money paid, or received fixpence or a shilling over every twenty in lieu of actual combustion. Madox tells us, that in cases where the money had a baser alloy than ordinary, the King's officers required even a larger sum than the shilling in every pound for a compensation. The money so melted, or having the supplemental payment added, was said to be dealbated or blanchied. (') Brady, in his History, says, "When Domesday was compiled, there was always a fire ready in the Exchequer, and if they liked not the alloy of the money, they burnt it, and then weighed it." (') One of the entries of money paid ad pensum et arsuram seems to indicate a great depreciation of the currency at the time of the Survey. Under Boteham in Suffex we read, "Totū T. R. E. 7 post : ualuit xl. lib. Modo similiter xl. lib. Tām reddit l. lib. ad arsurā 7 pensū quae ualent lxxv. lib." (') Under Godalminge in Surrey, it is said, "T. R. E. ualib xxv. lib 7 post : xx. lib. Modo xxx. lib ad numerū 7 tam reddit ad pensū 7 arsurā xxx. lib." (')

The Marka Auri is noticed in the following and probably in other passages. Tom. i. fol. 23. Of the Manor of Salletone in the County of Suffex, it is said, "Modo appiciat qt xx 7 xiii. lib. 7 unā mark auri. Tām redd cxx. lib. 7 unā mark auri." Fol. 32. At Totinges in Surrey, "Hanc trā accepit Comes Wallef de Swan. p<sup>o</sup> mortē regis E. 7 innadiavit p 11. mark auri Alnodo Lundoniensi." Fol. 50. Of a small portion of land at Herlei in Hampshire it is said "Qui ten hanc trā dicit qā emit eā de Witto

<sup>1</sup> Tom. i. fol. 164. we read "xxv. lib de xx. in ora 7 albas." Again, xl. lib albos nūmō de xx. in ora. And, in a third passage, xxxiii. lib candidos nūmō de xx in ora." Tom. i. fol. 39 b. "redd xii. lib blancas de xx in ora." Madox Hist. Excheq. edit. 4<sup>o</sup>. 1769. tom. i. p. 284, makes a variation in some cases between the payments blank and de numero. He recites some precedents wherein the two are compared together, but acknowledges his inability to adjust the difference. He ascribes it to the temporary corruptness of the money paid; and considers the difference to have varied in some measure after that proportion. In one instance in Domesday, tom. i. fol. 220. we have "xl. lib ad pondus de xx in ora."

Madox says, "As the Revenue in ancient times was wont to be paid in at the Exchequer, sometimes by weight, and sometimes by tale; so there were proper officers and utensils provided there for weighing, telling, essaying, and laying-up of the Money. There was a Pesar or weigher, a Fufor or melter, Goldsmiths, and others." Hist. Excheq. ut sup. Among the Eſcheats in the County of Southampton, temp. R. Joh. Harl. Lib. i. cap. 6. "Quid ad Militem Argentarium. Porro Miles Argentarius ab inferiori Scaccario ad superius deferret loculum examinandi argenti, cujus supra meminimus; quem cum intulerit signatum sigillo Vicecomitis, sub omnium oculis effundit in Scaccario quadraginta quatuor solidos, quos de acervo sumptos prius signaverat, factaque commixtione eorundem, ut ponderis respondeant, mittit in unum Vasculum trutinæ libram ponderis, in alterum vero de denariis quod oportuerit, quo facto numerat eorundem, ut ex numero constare possit, si legitimi ponderis sint; cuiuscuque vero ponderis inventi fuerint, feofum mittit in Ciffum libram unam, hoc est xx. fol. ex quibus examen fiat; reliquos vero xxiiij. fol. mittit in loculum. Item duo denarii præter libram examinandam, dantur Fufori, non de fisco sed de parte Vicecomitis, quasi in premium sui laboris. Tunc eliguntur a Præsidente, vel a Thesaurario si ille absens fuerit, alii duo Vicecomites, ut simul cum Argentario nec non et Vicecomite cujus examen faciendum est, procedant ad ignem; ubi Fufor ante præmonitus preparatis necessariis eorum præstolatur adventum: ibi iterum presente Fufore et hiis qui a Baronibus missi sunt, diligenter computantur, et fufori traduntur. § 3. Money.

The Marka Argenti occurs several times in the first page of the Survey of Dorsetshire. In the account of Bertvne in Gloucestershire (') it is said "Hoc 7 Britow reddit regi c. 7 x. mark argenti. Burgenfes diit qd eps G. hī xxxiii. mark argenti 7 una mark auri pter firmā regis."

The Half-Mark, both of Silver and Gold, occurs in numerous passages referred to in the Index Rerum. Both the Mark and the Half-Mark were computations of money only.

Such also was the Ora, whatever it might have been in other parts of Europe. In the Domesday Survey, and (as Dr. Hickes assures us) in many articles of bargain and sale, it is used for the ounce, or twelfth part of the nummular pound. (')

The Shilling of the Domesday Survey, like the Pound, the Mark, and the Ora, was only Money of account. Tom. i. fol. 180. we have "c. fol. de alb denar." The Saxon Shilling consisted of five pence. (') That of Domesday Book is always twelve-pence.

The Penny was the only coin known in England till long after the date of Domesday Book. In the Survey it is usually called Denarius; but in a few instances Nummi occur for Denarii. (')

<sup>1</sup> Wilkins LL. Anglo-Sax. <sup>3</sup> Clarke on the Connexion of the Roman, Saxon, and English Coins. 4<sup>o</sup>. Lond. 1771. p. 316. says, "The perpetual valuation of the Ora at twenty pence is, as Ducange has observed, an abundant proof that there were, or had been, several sorts of *Ora*s then in use; and therefore, to prevent all ambiguity or dispute between the Crown and the subject, the sums payable to the Exchequer were fixed at a certain value in their current cash. In Domesday, tom. i. fol. 2 b. "cxi. solidi de den. xx. in Ora." Fol. 11 b. "cxcv. lib 7 x fol de xx. in Ora." Fol. 64 b. And, in the same page, of Tochintune, "Modo redit xxi. lib candidoz nūmoz de xx in Ora." Fol. 189 b. Under Chavelai in Cambridgeshire, "1111. den de albis nummis." Tom. ii. fol. 5. Under Stanuega in Essex, "reddebat unozq anno huic maner xxxii. nūmos." Fol. 309 b. In Coteduna in Suffolk, "v. acr 7 uat. decē nūmos."

The "Denarii S. Petri" are only once noticed, tom. i fol. 87 b. They are mentioned in the Laws of William the Conqueror. Wilk. p. 222.

The Wardpeni also occurs but once; under Lidlington in Cambridgeshire, "Hoc 7 tenuit com Algar". Hōcs huj 7 reddeb Warpenā vicecomiti regis, aut custodiam faciebant." tom. i. fol. 190. It occurs in different Charters of the Conqueror. See Madox. Formul. Anglic. p. 176. Monast. Anglic. tom. i. p. 622. tom. ii. pp. 14. 16. 17. 134. 827. "Wardpeni, Wardepeni, Warpeni, Denarii Vicecomiti, vel aliis Castellanis p̄solvi soliti, ob castrorum wardar seu custodias." Du Cange.

The "Denarius tertius Comitatus," or "de Scira," is thus commented on by Bishop Kennett. "In the fines and other profits arising from the County Courts, two parts were allotted to the King, and a third part or penny to the Earl of the County, who either received it in specie, at the Assizes and Trials, or had an equivalent composition paid from the Exchequer." Glossar. Par. Antiq. Madox, Baron. p. 137. says, the most ancient way of creating Earls was by Charter; the King thereby granted the Earl "tercius Denarius Comitatus," the third penny of the County, and then

§ 5. Money.

In one entry we read of the penny of Rouen. Of the manors of Otrei and Rovrige in Devonshire belonging to St. Mary's Church at Rouen, it is said, "H. 11. Maner. reddt p annū Lxx. lib denar rodmenfium." (1) The Exeter Domesday p. 178. reads "Rothomagenfium." Libræ Rodomenfes are more than once mentioned by Ordericus Vitalis, Hiſt. Norm. Script. antiq. fol. Par. 1619. pp. 468. 583.

The Obolus, or Halfpenny, and the Ferding, Ferdine, Ferting, or Quadrant, were literally fractions, or broken parts of the penny. Parcels of Coins, from the Saxon times to the reign of Edward the Third, are rarely found without containing ſome of theſe. A remarkable inſtance occurred a few years ago at Winterflow in Wiltſhire; where an earthen pot was diſcovered, containing a large aſſemblage of pennies from the Saxon times to the reign of Stephen, many of which were found neatly and accurately cut into halves and quarters. The crofs, ſometimes double, which appears on the reverſe of ſo many of our early pennies, was intended to facilitate the breaking of the ſilver.

The Minuta occurs once only. (2) From the circumſtance of its being mentioned in Cheſhire, it is ſuſpected to have been the ſmall copper coin uſed by the Northumbrian Kings, called the Styca. (3)

It is curious that the Etymology of the word Money (from Pecus cattle) ſhould be its uſual meaning in Domesday Book, ſo that the word Pecunia appears to occur but three times as denoting Money. Tom. i. fol. 40 b. "per pecuniam ſuam habuit a rege." fol. 196 b. Under Papeuorde in Cambridgeſhire, "Hanc trā Ricard⁹ ſup regē occupavit 7 de ea xx. ſot pecuniæ accepit." fol. 376 b. "Archieps Ældrid⁹ adq̄ſiuit Lauintone 7 Schillintone cū Berew Harduic. de Viſ tope fune p pecuniā ſuā quā ei dedit uidente Wapenl. 7 poſtea uideſ ſigillū regis." &c. (4) In one inſtance it ſeems to imply property in general: tom. i. fol. 176. "Si quis morte præuentus non diuiſiſſet quæ ſua erant ⁊ rex habet offem ei⁹ pecuniā." In all the reſt it implies Cattle. "Paſtura ad pecuniam uille" (for the cattle of the village) is a common entry in the accounts of Middleſex, Hertfordſhire, Herefordſhire, Cambridgeſhire, Huntingdonſhire, and Bedfordſhire. (5)

As an appendage to this ſection the Aurum Regine, or Queen Gold, muſt be introduced. The following are the principal paſſages of the Survey in which it is noticed. At Leſtone, in Bedfordſhire, under Terra Regis, we read, "Int totū redd p annū xxii. lib ad penſum. 7 dimid diē ad firmā regis. in girded him with the ſword of the County or Earldom. See Kelham, p. 193. In Domesd. tom. i. fol. 69. in Wiltſhire, under "Redditus Edwardi Saritbet." we read, "Edward⁹ uicecomes hē p annū de denar⁹ q̄ p̄tin ad uicecomitū. cxxx. porc. 7 xxxii. bacones. So in Cheſhire, under Macleſfeld, "T̄cius denarius de Hundret p̄tin huic W. T. R. E."

3 The words "duo Minuta" in the Latin Goſpels, Mark xii. 42. are tranſlated in the Saxon verſion twegen ſcytw. Leake, in his Account of Engliſh Money, Introd. p. 14. ſpeaking of the Saxons, ſays, "They had copper Styces alſo, ſmaller than the Penny, having the King's name on one ſide, and coiner's on the other, eight of which made a penny, and ſerved them for ordinary change. Of theſe, a vaſt quantity were found at Rippon in Yorkſhire in the year 1695, before which we had much fewer of braſs than ſilver." Compare alſo Hickes, Theſaur. Pars iii. Diſſert. Epit. pp. 164, 165. tab. x. The Northumbrian Styces are the only ones we are now acquainted with.

4 In the Exeter Domesday, p. 19. Pecunia is uſed for money, with a ſpecification of pounds, ſhillings, and pence.

5 Tom. i. fol. 32. we read "Ej⁹ pecunia cōputat ſupius cū alia." Fol. 63. "Ipſe q̄q. tranſportauit hallā 7 alias domos et pecuniā in alio W." Fol. 68. § 3. Money.

Prynne wrote "Aurum Reginae; or a Compendious Treatise and Chronological Collection of Records in the Tower and Court of Exchequer, concerning Queen Gold:" dedicated to Katherine Queen-Confort of King Charles II. 4<sup>o</sup>. Lond. 1668. He defines it to be "a royal debt, duty, or revenue, belonging and accruing to every Queen-Confort, during her marriage to the King of England, due by every person of what quality or calling soever within the realms of England or Ireland, who hath made a voluntary oblation or fine to the King amounting to ten marks or upwards, for any privileges, franchises, dispensations, licenses, pardons, grants, or other matters of royal grace or favour conferred on him by the King, arising from and answerable to the quantity of such his oblation or fine; to wit, one full tenth part over and above the entire fine or oblation to the King; as one mark for every ten marks, and ten pounds for every hundred pound fine, and so proportionably for every other sum exceeding ten marks; or one mark of gold to the Queen for every hundred marks fine in silver to the King, which sum becomes a real debt and duty to the Queen by the name of Aurum Reginae, by and upon the parties bare agreement with the King for his fine, without any promise to or contract with the King or Queen for this tenth part exceeding it, which becomes a debt on record to the Queen by the very recording of the Fine." Lord Coke, in the twelfth part of his Reports or Institutes, having "over-much clipped this Gold Coin, and mistaken or misapplied some Records concerning it," Mr. Prynne wrote his Book upon the subject. During the reigns of Edward the Sixth, Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth, a period of sixty years, there being no Queen-Confort, this duty was suspended, but it was again claimed in the fourth year of King James the First by Queen Anne, and, upon a reference to the Judges, it was determined to be her undoubted right. It was also claimed by Henrietta Maria the Queen of King Charles the First. The oldest account of Queen Gold is that in the Dialogus de Scaccario, (²)

Payments "de Gerfama Reginae," as a free-gift to the Queen, are mentioned in the entries relating to the customary rents of the Counties of Oxford and Warwick, (³) as well as in what relates to Norwich in the second Volume of the Survey. (⁴) In the account of the rents from Northamptonshire we have "de dono Reginae 7 de feno x. lib. 7 v. oras." (⁵)

2. Moneyers, and the Liberty of Coinage.

FROM the Laws of Æthelstan, we learn that a mint was antiently one of the usual privileges of a Burgh. In Canterbury, it is said, there are seven Moneyers, four belonging to the King, two to the Bishop, and one to the Abbat; in Rochester three, two belonging to the King, and one to the Bishop; in London eight; in Winchester six; in Lewes two; one at Hastings; one at Chichester; two at [South] Hampton; two at Wareham; two at Exeter; two at Shaftsbury; and one in the other Burghs. (⁶)

In the Domestday Survey, payments de Moneta, (⁷) for the privilege of coining, are mentioned at Pevensey, Lewes, Malmesbury, Bath, Taunton, Oxford, Gloucester, Roelent, Nottingham, and Thetford:

§ 3. Money.

and Monetarii occur at Lewes, Wallingford, Dorchester in Dorsetshire, Bridport, Wareham, Shaftsbury, Oxford, Worcester, Hereford, Huntingdon, Leicester, Shrewsbury, Chester, Nottingham, York, Lincoln, Colchester, Norwich, Tingo, Sudbury, and Ipswich. The workmen who were employed in coining did not enjoy the same liberty with other artists, of following their own fancies, and making such coins as they pleased; but they received all their dyes from the Exchequer, and they wrought under the inspection of officers, who were called "Examinatores Monete," and "Custodes Cuneorum," Effayers and Keepers of the dyes, whose business it was to take care that their coins were of the standard weight and fineness. (1)

At Hereford there were seven moneyers, one of whom belonged to the Bishop. On a re-coinage, the royal moneyers paid twenty shillings to the King, and the Bishop had the same sum from his moneyer. When the King went there, the moneyers were to make as many pennies of the King's silver as he pleased. The seven moneyers had their own locus and facies. If any one of the King's moneyers died, the King had twenty shillings for a relief: and if he died without having disposed of his effects the King became possessed of his property. (2) At Shrewsbury, the King had three moneyers, who, after they had purchased their dyes like the other moneyers of the country, on the fifteenth day, gave, each, twenty shillings to the King; and this was done while the money was in coining. (3) At Chester, there were, in the time of Edward the Confessor, seven moneyers. At Norwich, the Bishop was allowed a moneyer if he wished for one. (4)

It is a fact worthy of remark that many places of mintage occur upon the coins both of Edward the Confessor and the Conqueror, which are not noticed as such in the Domesday Survey. Exeter, Hastings, London, Rochester, Southampton, Southwark, Stamford, and Winchester, occur upon the coins of both Monarchs. Aylebury, Bedwind, Clichester, Hertford, Hornidune, and Maldon, are found on those of the Confessor only. Bridgenorth, Bricfi, (supposed to be Britol,) Canterbury, Dover, Hithe, Marlborough, Salisbury, Stafford, Wilton, and Witney, occur on those of the Conqueror.

§ 4. *Territorial
Jurisdictions and Franchises.*

SECT. 4.—TERRITORIAL JURISDICTIONS AND FRANCHISES.

Their Denominations.

Counties—Their Subdivision and Customs.

THE greater Subdivisions of the Shires or Counties in the Domesday Survey appear to have been Tredings, or Ridings, Lefts, Reps, Wapentakes, Hundreds, Half-Hundreds, and Half-Lefts.

The TREDING, or Riding, is only found in Yorkshire and Lincolnshire, and implies a third part (5).

Qui vero super eas dominabantur, vocabantur þrithungesjar; ad hos deferabantur cause quæ non poterant definiri in Wapentachiis. Sicque quod Angli vocabant Hundredum, isti Wapentachium: et quod Anglice vocabant 3 vel 4 Hundreda, isti vocabant þrithung. In quibusdam vero Provinciis Anglice vocabantur Leas, quod isti dicunt trihinge: quod autem in þrithungo definiri non poterat ferebatur in Scyram." LL. Edw. Conf. § 34. Wilk. Leges Anglo-Sax. p. 204.

It had its court, inferior to that of the county, but superior to the jurisdiction of the wapentake (*). These Ridings in Yorkshire still have distinct Lieutenancies and Commissions of the Peace; the three parts of Lincolnshire the latter only.

§ 4. Territorial
Jurisdictions and
Franchises.

The LEST, Laß, or Lathe, is stated in the laws of Edward the Confessor to have been the same with the Riding. It could not, however, have comprised the third part of the shire, as, in Kent, the only county in which it is named, no less than seven distinct Lafts occur. It derived its name from the Saxon gelaðian to assemble: and Spelman cites a passage in his Glossary (*), from the "Ordinatio Marici Romeneiensis," p. 73. where it has a similar signification. "Si aliquis super hoc convincatur per testimonium ballivi et juratorum in communi LASTO, amercietur in x. solidis." (*)

The RAPE of Suffex appears to have answered generally to the Left or Lathe of Kent. Lye, in his edition of Junius's Etymologicon, calls it "Comitatus portio, cujusmodi sunt sex portiones in agro Suffex." (*)

We have no mention in the Domesday Survey of any Mote or Court attached to the Rape: nor is there any reference to its testimony, as in the case of the Hundred. Indeed the Rapes seem to have been intrusted to the jurisdiction of individuals: for in the account of Suffex, in the Survey, we read of Rapum Comitis de Moritonio, Rapum Willielmi de Braiose, Rapum Comitis de Ow, Rapum Willielmi de Warene, and Rapum Comitis Rogerii (*). The Rapes mentioned by their own names are those of Arundel, Hastings, Lewes, and Penevefel. (*) Chichester Rape does not appear. It was under Earl Roger's authority; but perhaps usurped from the Bishop. Hreppar means District in Iceland to this day: and it is not improbable that the Rapes of Suffex were military districts for the supply of the Castles which existed in each.

The WAPENTAKE occurs in the Northern Counties, and is synonymous with the Hundred in the Counties of Nottingham, York, and Lincoln to this day. The best explanation of the Wapentake is given in the laws of King Edward the Confessor: "De Hundredis et Wapentachiis. Ewerwickshire, Nicolthire, Nottinghamshire, Leycestershire, Northamptonshire, usque ad Watlingstrete, et octo miliaria ultra Watlingstrete sub lege Anglorum sunt. Et quod Angli vocant Hundredum, supradicti comitatus vocant Wapentachium: et non sine causa: cum quis enim accipiebat præfecturam Wapentachii, die statuto in loco ubi consueverant congregari, omnes majores natu contra eum conveniebant, et descendente eo de equo suo omnes assurgebant ei. Ipse vero erecta lancea sua ab omnibus secundum morem fœdus accipiebat: Omnes enim quotquot venissent cum lanceis suis ipsius hastam tangebant, et ita se confirmabant per contactum armorum, pace palam concessa. Anglice enim arma vocantur pæpnu, et "Tessificant hōes de Calnodethou Wap̄ consentiente toto Treding qd̄ &c." The Court belonging to the Treding, or Trihing, was called the Tridingmot. In a Charter of King Henry the First to the Church of St. Peter York, it is said, "Nemo de terra Canonicorum S. Petri Wapentacmot, nec Tridingmot, nec Shirefmot sequebatur, sed calumpnians vel calumpniatus ante osium Monasterii S. Petri reſtitutionem et recipiebat et faciebat." See Cowel's Law Interpr. edit. 1727. Compare also Spelman, Of the ancient government of England, pp. 50, 52.

‡ Bishop Kennet in a manuscript Glossary among the Laudowne MSS. No. 1098. p. 235, says, "The annual Court at Dimchurch in Romney Marsh, held for the election of a Bailiff and other Officers, is called Dimchurch-Latb."

§ He adds: "Somnerus derivat à sap̄ funis. Ego malum derivare ab Ill. repp̄ vel ripp̄, quod, teste Verelio, districtum vel tractum terre notat." Sir Thomas Smith, in his Work, "De Republica Anglorum" lib. ii. cap. 9. gives etymons of Lathe and Rape of too ludicrous a kind to be gravely quoted.

taccapē confirmare; quāsi armorum confirmatio vel, ut magis expresse secundum linguam Anglicā dicamus Wapentac, armorum tactus est; pæpnu enim armā sonat, tac tactus est. Quamobrem potest cognosci quod hac de causā totus ille conventus dicitur Wapentac, eo quod per tactum armorum fuorum ad invicem confederati sunt." (')

Ranulphus Cestrensis tells us ('), "quod quoties novus esset Hundredi Dominus ei in subjectionis signum arma redderent Vassalli:" an explanation which, in some measure, connects the English Wapentake with the Wapinschap, or Wapinschawing, of the Scots (').

That the Wapentake was one of the earliest terms used by the Saxons in this Country for a district of territory, seems more than probable. It may be traced among the more ancient tribes of the North. Professor Ihre tells us that among the Goths Wapntak implied the manner in which decrees were passed by the people at large, by the clashing of their arms. Tacitus, he adds, has described the usage in his time. He further informs us that Wapntak also denoted the confirmation of a judicial edict by the touch of arms. The votes being collected, the Judge reached forth a spear, by touching which all his assessors confirmed the sentence. (')

The Gemote, or judicial assembly in the different Wapentakes, is expressly defined in the Laws of Æthelred. "Et ut habeantur Conventus in quolibet Wapentachio, et exeant Seniores XII Thani et Prefectus cum eis, et jurent super Sanctuarium quod eis in manus datur, quod nolint ullum innocentem accusare, nec aliquem noxium celare. (') That the Wapentake was in every respect the same, and paid the third penny like the Hundred, is evident from a passage in the very first page of the account of Nottinghamshire, fol. 280. where it is said, "Duo nūmi regis 7 ticius Comit̃s qui exeunt de Apletreu Wapent sunt in manu vicecomitis testim duarū scirarū."

The division of the HUNDRED has been variously accounted for by our antiquaries and historians. In the Dialogus de Scaccario, it is said, "Hundredus vero ex Hydarum aliquot centenariis fed non

"2. Notat confirmationem sententiæ in Judicio prolata per concussum armorum: lectis enim suffragiis hastam Judex proferebat, quam Assessores omnes tangentes sententiam confirmabant." Sir Thomas Smith gives an explanation of the Wapentake more consonant to the practices of later times. He says, "Wapentachium è Danorum aut Saxonum sermone emanavit. Totidem quippe ex oppidanis in unum locum convenerunt, ubi Armorum (Anglice Weapons) delectus habebatur; quique idoneis fidejussoribus de probe et pacate in posterum vivendo non satisfiabant, illis arma detrahebantur." De Repub. ut sup. Dr. Wilkins, in his Glossary upon the Anglo-Saxon laws, derives Wapentake from peapan arma and veacan docere: as the district where a given number of persons in each county were accustomed to meet and train themselves in the use of arms.

In a very ancient Leiger-Book of Peterborough abbey, preserved in the Library of the Society of Antiquaries, is the following enumeration of the Hundreds of Northamptonshire and their contents, referring to the time of King Edward the Confessor: in which every Hundred is made to consist of a hundred hides; the hides paying gold being particularly distinguished from those in the royal occupation, and the waste or uncultivated land:

Villages. (1) The origin of the Hundred is usually ascribed to King Alfred; though we find it among the oldest of the Saxon institutions on the Continent. (2) The Centenary, or Hundredor, an officer who was retained among the Franks, Lombards, and Wifigoths, as well as the Anglo-Saxons, is termed in the Survey Custus, Prefectus, or Prepositus de Hundret. (3)

Exclusive of what is said in the Survey relating to the legal privileges, services, and transgressions (4) in the different Towns and Burghs, we find the customs of some of the Shires occasionally entered separately; in many instances after the enumeration of the principal burgh-customs in each have been given. The customs agreed upon by an inquest of four of the Leifs in Kent are enumerated (after what relates to Dover) in the very first page of the larger Volume. Those of Berkshire in the time of King Edward follow the account of Wallingford, fol. 56 b. Those of Wiltshire, fol. 64 b. The customs of Oxfordshire, in the time of William, are given at fol. 154 b. The customs and services of Worcesterhire follow the account of Worcester, fol. 172 b. Northamptonshire follows Northampton, fol. 219. And the customs of Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire precede the list of Tenants in capite of the former county, in fol. 280. Beside which, the Customs of the Hundred of Ofwaldeslow in Worcesterhire are given separately in folios 172 b. and 174. The "Conseutudines Walensium in Arcenefeld," in the time of King Edward, in the account of Herefordshire, fol. 179. The Laws of the Wiches of Cheshire, fol. 268. And the Customs of the Lands between the Ribble and the Mersey, in folios 269 b. and 270. No account of the Services and Customs of the Shires of Essex, Norfolk, or Suffolk, occur in the Second Volume of the Domesday Survey.

Cities and Burghs, and their Customs.

The Services, Charges, and Customs of the Cities and Burghs noticed in the Survey, form a valuable illustration of the Saxon laws. A comparison of the two shows in how small a degree the Normans interfered with the ancient institutions of the people. (5)

At Dover, the Burgeſſes appear to have had a Guild-Hall. They ſupplied the King with twenty ſhips for fifteen days once in every year, each-veſſel having twenty-one perſons on board, and this, becauſe he had granted them ſac and ſoc. When the King's Meſſenger arrived they paid three pence in winter, and two in ſummer for transporting his Horſe. They alſo found a pilot and his affiant. Whoſoever, conſtantly reſiding in the town, paid his customary rent to the King, was free of toll through England. It is expreſſly added that theſe customs were found here at the King's coming. The burning of the town at the Conqueror's firſt arrival in England prevented any computation of its value at the time it was given to the Biſhop of Baieux. When the Survey was formed it was appreciated at forty pounds though it paid conſiderably more.

In Canterbury the larger portion of land held by the burgeſſes was in the tenure of Allodium : a ſpecies of free-hold which will be hereafter explained.

At Lewes, if the King ſent a force to keep the ſea, twenty ſhillings were collected of every burgeſſe, which were paid to thoſe who manned the veſſels. Whoever ſold a horſe in the town paid a penny to the bailiff, and the purchaſer paid another : for an ox, a halfpenny : for a man four-pence, whereſoever the purchaſe might have been made within the Rape. For blood-fied, ſeven ſhillings and four-pence were made the mulct : for adultery or rape, eight ſhillings and four-pence by each of the parties ; and, as in Kent, for adultery, the man became the property of the King, and the woman of the archbiſhop.

The customary ſervices of Taunton in Somerſetſhire, a burgh belonging to the Biſhop of Winchester, were, " Burgherith, Latrones, Pacis infraſtio, Hainfare, Denarii de Hundret, et Denarii S. Petri, Circietii, ter in Anno Placita Epifcopi fine ammonitione, Profeſtio in exercitum cum hominibus Epifcopi (")."

At Oxford, in the time of King Edward, the burgeſſes in the room of toll, gable, and all other customary rents, paid the King twenty pounds and fix ſextaries of honey ; and to Earl Algar ten pounds beſides the mill which he had within the city. When the King went on an expedition twenty of the burgeſſes went

(1) For the liberty of London, ſee Mat. Paris, and the London Charters. It is ſingular that Ciltecumbe, now Chilcomb, a mile and half from Winchester, which, according to the Abſtract of Anſwers and Returns to the Population Act of 1811, contains but twenty Houſes, ſhould be entered in the Survey as having nine Churches. tom. i. fol. 41. The manor was " de viſtu Monachorum Wint." There is no accounting for the difference between the ſtatement of the Domeſday Survey and that of the Population Act concerning Chilcomb, without adverting to the probability that it muſt have formerly included a part of the ſuburbs of Wincheſter. The petition of the City of Winchester to King Henry the fixth in 1450, printed in the firſt volume of the Archaeologia, enumerates no fewer than ſeventeen Churches and nine hundred and ninety-ſeven " houſeholdes " which had fallen down, chiefly, within the eighty years preceding.

with him for the rest, or they paid twenty pounds that all might be free. At the time of forming the Survey the city paid sixty pounds in tale, every ora of the value of twenty pence. Within and without the walls of the city two hundred and forty-three houses paid geld; and, beside these, four hundred and seventy-eight houses were so desolated that they could not pay geld. The King held twenty mural mansions, which in the time of the Confessor had been Earl Algar's, paying thirteen shillings and ten pence. They were called mural mansions, because, if need required and the King commanded, the tenants were bound to repair the city wall. A hundred and ninety-one mansions belonging to individuals, "liberæ propter reparationem muri" are also enumerated, of which eighty are stated to have been "vastræ ('')."

In Hereford, in the time of Edward the Confessor there are said to have been a hundred and three tenants settled within and without the wall of the city, whose customs are very fully enumerated. If any one wished to depart from the city, with leave of the bailiff he might sell his manure, or house and plot of land adjoining, to any other person who engaged to perform the proper service, and then the bailiff had the third penny of the sale. But if any one from poverty could not perform service, he relinquished his house to the bailiff without reward, who took care that no house remained untenanted, and that the king did not lose his rent. Every entire manure within the wall of the city paid seven-pence halfpenny, and four-pence toward hiring horses, and the tenants did the personal service of reaping at Maerdine three days in August, and of gathering hay, one day, wherever the sheriff directed. Whoever had a horse went three times in the year with the sheriff to the County and Hundred Courts at Wmlaia. When the King went to hunt, one person went from each house to the stand or station in the wood. Other tenants, not having entire manures, found three men to guard the king when he came into the city. When a burgess serving [in the army] with his horse died, the King had his horse and arms; or, if he served without a horse, ten shillings, or his land and houses. If any one had not devised his property before his death, the King had the stock belonging to his land. Every man whose wife brewed, either within or without the city, paid ten pence. Six smiths paid every one a penny for his forge, and made a hundred and twenty nails from the King's iron. Each received three pence by custom; and these smiths were free from all other service. The moneyers, who will be more particularly noticed hereafter, were seven in number, and performed a service not altogether unfamiliar: when the King came to the city, they were bound to coin as much of his silver into pence as he demanded, and had sac and soc. When a moneyer died, the King had twenty shillings for a heriot; or, if he died without having disposed of his effects the King had all. When the sheriff went with an army into Wales the tenants of the burgh went with him: or if any one who was called upon did not go, he paid forty shillings to the King.

<sup>1</sup> The extraordinary number of houses specified as desolated at Oxford requires explanation. If the passage is correct, Matthew Paris probably gives us the cause of it, under the year 1067, when William the Conqueror subdued Oxford in his way to York. "Eodem tempore Rex Willielmus urbem Oxoniā sibi rebellem obsidione vallavit. Super ejus murum quidam, stans nudato inguine, sonitu partis inferioris auras turbavit, in contemptum videlicet Normannorum, unde Willielmus in iram conversus, civitatem levi negotio subjugavit." Mat. Par. ed. Watts. sub. ann. 1067. p. 4. See also William of Malmesbury, Script. post Bedam, p. 58. whom Matthew Paris copies. It must not however be concealed, that although the Manuscripts of Matthew Paris (MS. Reg. 14 C. vii. and MS. Cotton. Nero D. v.) read Oxoniā, three Manuscripts of William of Malmesbury (MS. Cotton. Claud. C. ix. and Harl. MSS. 447. 528.) read Exoniā. The siege of Exeter in 1067 is also mentioned by Simeon of Durham, col. 197; Hoveden, col. 258; Ralph de Diceto, col. 482; Florence of Worcester, fol. Francof. 1601. p. 635, and Ordericus Vitalis, p. 510. In the account of Lincoln, Domeid. tom. i. fol. 336 b. there is a remark, which deserves attention, on the "Mansiones vastræ," enumerated in that city. "Reliquæ lxxxiii. vastræ sunt extra metam Castellī, non propter opprobrium vicinitatis et miserie, sed propter infortunium, et paupertatem, et ignium exustionem."

The King had three forfeitures in his demesne; the breach of his Peace, Heinfara, and Forestel. Whoever was guilty of either, was mulcted a hundred shillings to the King, notwithstanding his being under the protection of any tenant in capite. At the time of making the Survey, Hereford was the King's demesne. The English burgesses continued with their former customary services. The foreigners who were burgesses paid twelve pence for all forfeitures beside the three above mentioned. (*) This city paid sixty pounds by tale to the King "de candidis denariis."

§ 4. Territorial Jurisdictions and Franchises.

At Cambridge, the customary payments amounted to seven pounds; and, for Landgable, seven pounds and two oxen and two pence. The burgesses in King Edward's time lent their ploughs to the sheriff six times in the year: though at the time of forming the Survey nine turns were exacted. In the time of King Edward they found neither ploughs nor carts, but both appear to have been required by the sheriff at the formation of the Survey. Picot the sheriff had as a heriot of the Lagemen in the town, four pounds, a palfrey, and the arms of a knight. When Aluric Godricson was sheriff, it is said, he exacted twenty shillings for a heriot.

The city of Leicester in King Edward's time paid yearly to the King thirty pounds by tale, every ox of the value of twenty pence, and fifteen sextaries of honey. When the King marched with his army through the land, twelve burgesses of that borough went with him. If the King went over sea against the enemy, they sent from that borough four horses as far as London, to carry arms or such other things as circumstances required. At the time of forming the Survey, King William had, for all Rents from that city and county, forty-two pounds and ten shillings in weight. Instead of one hawk, he had ten fowls by tale; and instead of a baggage or sumpter horse twenty shillings.

At Warwick the King had a hundred and thirteen houses, and his barons a hundred and twelve, of which the King had the geld or tax. The residue of the manors in the city, nineteen in number, belonged to many burgesses, who enjoyed them with sac and soc, and all customs, as they had done in the time of King Edward. In the time of the Confeffor the shrievalty of Warwick, with the burgh and royal manors, paid fifty-five pounds and thirty-six sextaries of honey, or twenty-four pounds and eight shillings in lieu of the honey. But, at the time of the Survey, in the firm of the royal manors, they paid yearly one hundred and forty-five pounds in weight, twenty-three pounds for the custom of dogs, twenty shillings for a sumpter horse, ten pounds for a hawk, and a hundred shillings to the Queen as a fine or gift. Beside this, they paid twenty-four sextaries of honey, of the greater measure, and the Burgh six sextaries, viz. fifteen pence a sextary, and five shillings. The custom of Warwick was, that whenever the King went in person in any expedition by land, ten of the burgesses went for all the rest. Whoever was summoned to give his attendance and did not go, paid a hundred shillings to the King. If the King went against his enemies by sea, the burgesses provided four barfueins, (*) or paid four pounds in money.

At Stafford, in the time of King Edward, the town paid nine pounds in money for all customary payments. Two portions were the King's; the third belonged to the Earl. At the time of the Survey, the King received seven pounds as rent from the burgh between himself and the Earl: a moiety of the King's own part was paid to Robert de Stadford by grant.

1 These foreigners must have taken up their residence in Hereford after the arrival of the Conqueror: they would otherwise have continued with the same customary services as the English burgesses. Among the Conqueror's Laws there is one which explains this point. "§ 4. De jure Normannorum qui ante adventum GUILLELMI ciues fuerant Anglicani. Et omnis Francigena qui tempore Edwardi propinqui nostri fuit in Anglia participet consuetudinum Anglorum, quod ipsi dicunt an hinc & an proce, perfolvat secundum legem Anglorum." Wilk. LL. Anglo-Sax. p. 228.

§ 4. Territorial
Jurisdiction and
Franchises.

Shrewsbury had two hundred and fifty-two houses belonging to the same number of burgesses, paying seven pounds sixteen shillings and eight-pence by way of rent. The Customs as they stood in the reign of Edward the Confessor are very minutely enumerated. If any one knowingly broke the peace which the King had given under his hand, he was outlawed. If any one broke the peace which the Sheriff preserved, he was fined a hundred shillings: and he gave the same for Forestel or Heinfare. The three forfeitures, it is added, the King had throughout England, exclusive of rents. When the King resided in the city, twelve of the principal inhabitants formed his guard; and, in like manner, when he took the exercise of hunting, the principal burgesses who had horses attended him armed. The Sheriff sent thirty-six men on foot to the deer-stand while the King remained there. He also found, by custom, thirty-six men for eight days at the park of Marfelde. When the Sheriff went into Wales, where he was called upon to attend him and did not go, paid forty shillings as a forfeiture. A widow received a husband, paid twenty shillings to the King; a maid paid ten shillings. If any burgess's house was not, either by negligence or accident, he paid a forfeiture of forty shillings to the King, and two shillings each to his two nearest neighbours. When a burgess in the King's demesne died, the King had ten shillings for a heriot. If any burgess broke the time assigned him by the Sheriff, he paid ten shillings. Whoever was guilty of bloodshed, paid forty shillings. When the King (at any time) left the city, the Sheriff furnished him with twenty-four horses, and the King took them as far as the first house in Staffordshire. The English burgesses of Shrewsbury complained that, at the time of forming the Survey, they paid the whole geld, or civil tax for the support of the state, as it was paid in the time of King Edward, although the cattle of Earl Roger had occupied the site of fifty-one manures, and fifty others were laying waste. In the time of King Edward too, forty burgesses, who were francigene, held taxable manor and Earl Roger had given to the abbey at its foundation thirty-nine burgesses, who formerly had paid tax with the rest.

The laws of Chester as they stood in the time of the Confessor are enumerated at greater length than those in almost any other city; and they are as full upon the rights allowed to the Earl as upon those of the Crown. The forfeitures upon breaking the King's peace are first enumerated. If any free-man committed burglary, and murdered a man, all that belonged to him became a forfeiture to the King, and he was himself declared an outlaw. The Earl had the same forfeiture of any of his own hqagers. No outlaw, however, could be restored to the King's peace but by the King. Whoever was guilty of bloodshed between Monday morning and the ninth hour on Saturday, was to forfeit ten shillings; or, from the ninth hour on Saturday to Monday morning twenty shillings. The same punishment of twenty shillings fine was inflicted for the twelve days of the Nativity, the day of the Purification of the Virgin, the first days of Easter and Whitsuntide, Ascension Day, the Assumption or Nativity of the Virgin, and the feast of All Saints. On these holidays, whoever slew a man forfeited four pounds; though, on other days, only forty shillings. Whoever committed Heinfare or Forestel on these days or on Sunday, also forfeited four pounds; but on ordinary days, forty shillings. For Hangewithe the forfeiture was ten shillings, or if the King's or the Earl's bailiff was the person, the forfeiture became twenty shillings. Whoever was guilty of Revelach, Latrocinium, or violence toward a Woman, was to forfeit forty shillings. A widow, "si alicui se non legitime commiscebat," forfeited twenty shillings. Whoever seized upon, or laid claim to, the land of another within the city, and could not prove his right to it, forfeited forty shillings. Whoever wished to have relief either for his own or a relation's land, paid ten shillings; and the same sum was to be forfeited by him who neglected to pay his gable or rent at the regulated time. If a fire happened in the City, the person at whose house it broke out forfeited three Oxæ of twenty pence in the Oxæ, and to his nearest neighbour two shillings. Of all these forfeitures two parts were the King's. The third belonged to the Earl. If any vessels came to or departed from the haven of the City without the King's licence, the King and the Earl had forty shillings from each person on board. If, contrary to the King's peace, and against his prohibition, a ship arrived, both it, the persons on board, and the cargo, were forfeited to the King and the Earl. If, however, a vessel came with the King's licence, those who were in it were allowed to trade, but, at its departure, the King and the Earl had four-pence duty upon every last of the cargo. If the cargo was of Marten skins the King's bailiff was to order, under the penalty of forty shillings, that none should be sold till he had examined them. Any man or woman giving false measure, or brewing adulterated beer, forfeited four shillings, or was placed in the dung chair (*) and paid four shillings to the bailiffs. This forfeiture was received by the officers of the King and the Earl in the City, of every person, whether under the protection of the Bishop or of any one else. At this time there were twelve Magistrates of the city selected from the homagers of the King, the Bishop, and the Earl. For the repairs of the city-wall and the bridge, one labourer was demanded by the bailiff for every hide in the county. Whoever neglected to send his homager on this occasion forfeited forty shillings to the King and the Earl. This forfeiture was exclusive of rent. The city paid forty-five pounds as rent and three timbers of Marten skins. At the time of making the Survey the bishop of Chester had also his customs in the City. If any free-man worked on a holiday the Bishop received eight shillings as a fine; and from a fervus or a maid servant, four shillings. If a trader came into the city with his pack, and opened it, between the ninth hour on Saturday and Monday, or on any festival, without licence from the bishop's officer, he forfeited four shillings. If one of the bishop's homagers found a stranger carting goods (**) within the leua of the city, the bishop had a forfeiture of four shillings, or two Oxen.

§ 4. Territorial
Jurisdiction and
Franchises.

At Nottingham, the Trent and the way to York were in the custody of the Town. If any one prevented the passage of vessels in the river, or ploughed, or dug a ditch within two perches of the King's high way, he forfeited eight pounds.

In Derby there were, at the formation of the Survey, a hundred burgesses, and forty others who are called minores. At Marinmas the burgesses paid the King twelve thraves of corn, of which the abbot of Bertone had forty theaves. The King had eight mares in the town with sac and soc.

In Tork the burgesses were exempt from payments for relief.

In Lincoln and Stamford Lagemen occur, as distinct from burgesses. These were an order of men recognised in the laws of King Edward the Confessor. (!) In both towns the number of twelve only is mentioned; so that they probably answered to the XII. Judices Civitatis of Chester, and the XII. Labmen mentioned in the "Senatus Consultum de Monticulis Wallie." They have been already noticed in Cambridge. Their privileges in Stamford are minutely set down. They were reduced to nine in number in that town at the formation of the Survey.

At Torksey, whoever possessed a mansion in the vill was free of toll at entering or departing from it. When the King's Messengers came there, the watermen of the place conducted them as far as York, the Sheriff supplying the provisions for both "ex firma sua." If any burgess removed from the town he could sell his house without licence from the bailiff.

At Calchefer there were, in common, among the burgesses, fourscore acres of land, and round the wall of the town eight perches, of all which the burgesses, at the time of forming the Survey, had sixty shillings a year for the King's service, if necessary; but if not, they divided it in common. And the custom was, every year, on the fifteenth day after Easter, for the King's burghesses to pay two marks of silver. This belonged to the King's ferm. Likewise fixpence a year was paid out of every house which might be applied either for the maintenance of the King's foldiers, or for an expedition by sea or land. This payment, it is said, did not belong to the King's ferm.

Norwich, in the time of Edward, paid twenty pounds to the King, and ten pounds to the Earl; and, beside these payments, twenty-one shillings and four-pence for measures of provender, six sextaries of honey, a bear, and six bear-dogs. At the time of forming the Survey, it paid to the King seventy pounds by weight, and a hundred shillings by tale as a free gift to the Queen, a palfrey, and twenty pounds of silver uncoined to the Earl, and twenty shillings by tale as a free gift to Godric. The manumission of Slaves, Turner observes, increased the numbers of the independant part of the lower orders: and, while some of the emancipated became agricultural labourers, and took land of the clergy and the great, many went to the burghs and towns, and as the King was the lord of the free, they resided in these under his protection, and became free burghers or burghesses. (1)

From the entries relating to the different Cities and Burghs it appears that some of their inhabitants were under other lords beside the King. In Romenel eighty-five burghesses belonged to the Archbishop. (2) In Bath, beside the burghesses belonging to the King, ninety are enumerated belonging to other persons, who paid sixty shillings. (3) At Buckingham, we have a particular enumeration, not only of the superior Lords of the burghesses in that town at the time of forming the Survey, but the names of the persons to whom they had belonged in the time of King Edward. (4) Hamo Dapifer had fifteen burghesses in Colchester who had belonged in Edward's time to Thurbernus. (5) Many burghesses were attached to particular manors, and some even in the most privileged cities. (6) In Norwich the burghesses had no peculiar corporate rights. The majority paid their custom and rents to the King and the Earl. Stigand the archbishop had the rent of fifty, and Harold of twenty-two. (7) Among the lands held in capite in Bedfordshire, we have "Terra Burghū de Bedef." The burghesses however did not hold in a corporate capacity, but individually.

The annual assessments of the towns appear to have varied as much from each other in the time of Edward as in that of William, and probably differed according to the circumstances of the different places. London, York, Winchester, and Exeter have been already mentioned as places enjoying superior privileges. In some burghs, Turner observes, the members had been so wealthy as to have acquired themselves a property in the burgh. At Canterbury, the burghesses had forty-five measures without the City, of which they took the gafol and the custom, while the King retained the legal jurisdiction. They also held of the King thirty-three acres of land in their gild. (8) The state of subjection to gafols, Another point on which the Domeſday Survey throws conſiderable light, is the hiſtory of our ancient Caſtles. Caſtles, walled with ſtone, and deſigned for reſidence as well as for defence, are ſaid by Groſe to be, for the moſt part, of no higher antiquity than the Conqueſt. The Conqueror himſelf was ſenſible that the want of fortified places had greatly facilitated his ſucceſs. To remedy this defect, and to overawe his ſubjects, he erected numerous Caſtles. Matthew Paris ſays, "Ad Caſtra quoque conſtruenda, Rex antecellores ſuos omnes ſuperabat." (') His reign was in fact a new era in the hiſtory of our caſtelled ſtructures.

"Istud Castellū ē. de regno Anglie. non subiacet alicui hundred neq. in esuetudine." (6) It had been, no doubt, confiscated. The Castlery is represented as extensive. The Castlery of Ewias is several times mentioned. (7) "Aluredus de Merleberge ten castellū de Ewias de W. rege. Ipse Rex enī concessit ei tras quas Wilts comes ei dederat qui hoc castellum refrimaverat. hoc est v. carucatas trā ibide. 7 ad Manitone alias v. carucatas. (8) Osbern Fitz Richard is said to have held the Castle of Avreton: (9) and William de Scobies is stated to have held eight carucates in this county of the Castle of Carlion. (10) One Roger is said to have held two mafures in the castle of Henry de Ferieres. (11) In Herefordshire also are two entries intimately connected with the Castles of the county. Roger de Laci is said to hold Herdeslege, situated in the middle of a wood, "7 ibi ē dom<sup>o</sup> una defenfabilis." (12) Gilbert Fitz Turol is entered, in another page, as holding Watlege, which had been Earl Harold's. He also had a "Dom<sup>o</sup> defenfabilis, 7 silua magna aduenand. Wāt fuit." (13)

§ 4. Territorial
Jurisdictions and Feudality.

In Lincolnshire, at Lincoln, a hundred and sixty-six manors were destroyed "ppter Castellum." (4) and, at Stanford, five were laid waste "ppter opus Castrum." (5) In the second volume of the Survey, in Essex, at "Rageneia," we are told "fecit Suein fuu Castellu." (6) This was Raleigh, in the hundred of Rochford, the chief of fifty-nine Manors held by the same person, who was settled here before the Conquest. (7)

In Norfolk, we find the only Castle noticed, in the county, is that of Norwich. (8)

In Suffolk, we are told, "W. Malet fecit fuu castellu ad eam 7 eadē die q̄ erat mercatu in manerio epi. W. Malet fecit aliu mercatu in fuo castello." (9)

Of forty-nine Castles here mentioned, one only, Arundel, is noticed as existing in the time of Edward the Confessor. Eight are known, either on the authority of Domesday or our old historians, to have been built by the Conqueror himself. Ten are entered as erected by greater Barons; and one, by an under-tenant to Earl Roger. Eleven more, of whose builders we have no particular account, are noticed in the Survey, either expressly or by inference, as new.

It is singular that the ruins which are now remaining of almost all these Castles have preserved one feature of uniformity. They are each distinguished by a Mount and Keep: marking the peculiar style of architecture introduced in our castellated fortifications by the Normans at their first settlement.

The Castles of Dover, Nottingham, and Durham, known to have been built by the Conqueror, with the White Tower in the Tower of London, are unnoticed in the Survey. (10)

The walled Towns and Cities noticed in the Survey are fewer than the Castles. Canterbury, Nottingham, and York, appear each to have been surrounded with a foss. Oxford, Hereford, Leicester, Stafford, Chester, Lincoln, and Colchester, are noticed as walled Towns and Burghs.

Manerium.

Manors, although in substance, perhaps, as ancient as the Saxon constitution, (1) are considered by our best writers on English Antiquities as of Norman introduction. (2) Dugdale says, the reign of Edward the Confessor is the first in which they are mentioned; (3) a circumstance which is easily accounted for by the fondness of Edward for Norman institutions. "Tenuit de regg E. p. 10" occurs frequently in the early part of the Survey. The name is either from the French Manoir, or from the Latin manendo, as the usual residence of the owner on his land. (4)

The ancient demesne of the Crown, as recorded in the Survey, consisted of 1,422 manors in different Counties, besides some scattered lands and farms not comprehended therein, and quit rents paid out of several other Manors. (5)

According to Brady's calculation, the Earl of Moretaine, the Conqueror's half brother, held no fewer than seven hundred and ninety-three Manors. (6) Alan Earl of Bretagne, who commanded the rear of the army in the battle of Hastings, possessed four hundred and forty-two Manors. (7) Odo Bishop of Baieux held four hundred and thirty-nine. (8) The Bishop of Coutance, who was also a soldier, two hundred and eighty Manors. (9) Roger de Bulli had a hundred and seventy-four Manors in Nottinghamshire. (10) Ilbert de Laci had a hundred and sixty-four Manors, most of them in Yorkshire. (11) William Peverel, the Conqueror's natural son, had a hundred and sixty-two Manors. (12) Robert de Stadford a hundred and fifty. (13) Roger de Laci a hundred and sixteen Manors. (14) Hugh de Montfort more than a hundred. (15) William de Warren had territorial allotments in Suffex, Hampshire, Buckinghamshire, Oxfordshire, Cambridgeshire, Huntingdonshire, Bedfordshire, Yorkshire, Lincolnshire, Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

was voluntary, (') and evidently given with a view to the possessions which were afterwards obtained. This accounts for the circumstance in Domesday, that the King's lands are almost uniformly those which Edward, Harold, (') Earl Godwin, Ghida the mother of Harold, (') Goda the sister of King Edward, Guert, Tofti, Stigand, Algar Earl of Mercia, (') Earl Edwin, Earl Morcar, (') Edric, or Editha the Confessor's Queen (') had held: while the lands of the Saxon nobles appear to have been doled out to the officers of the Conqueror's army, apparently either in proportion to their rank in Normandy, or according to the supplies they furnished in the expedition. (') "Those," says Lord Chief Baron Gilbert, "who held their territories immediately from the Crown, were said to hold in capite; but those who held in capite had other chiefs, or lords, or barons, subordinate to them; they also granted to hold of themselves. These intermediate persons were denominated the mesne lords, of whom so much is spoken in our laws. Even these divided their lands among their followers; and every Lordship or Manor was itself the similitude of the Kingdom at large. The lord divided his Manor, as the state had divided the kingdom, into two parts: the one he retained for his own support, and was partly cultivated by his villeins and copyholders, and was called his demesnes; (') the other part was parcelled out among his dependants, who returned him their services." See the Laws of Edgar, 1. Wilk. p. 76. Compare also Ingulphus *sub. an. 833. Gloss. x. Script. v. Among the Bishop of Lincoln's lands at Baneflerie in Oxfordshire, it is said, "Ibi sū l. hidæ. De his hī eps in dno trā. x. car. 7 iii. hid. preter Inland." So fol. 155 b. 159. 219 b.

Statute of Quia Emptores, already noticed in a former page, in 1290, put an end to their farther increase.

Aula, Halla, or Haula, a hall or chief mansion house was the usual appendage of a Manor. At Apedroc in Suffex, in the account of the Earl of Moretaine's lands, it is said, "Ibi ē una v ubi com hit aulā suā." (*) At Westone in Nottinghamshire "hbr Elmer. Eluui. Oshn. Grim. Edric. Stenulf. quifq. aulā suā. 7 un<sup>o</sup>qsq. i. bō tre." (*) Under Fentone in the same county, "Tra i. car. cū faca 7 foca fine aulā." (*) In Lincolnshire it is said, "In Burtone hō Godric ii. car. tre ad gld. Tra ii. car. foca in Scantune. f; tañi fuit ibi aulā." (*) In Berkshire, under Ebrige, of Hugolinus Stirman it is said, "Transportavit Hallā 7 alios domos 7 pecuniā in alio tō." (*) At Langeton, in Yorkshire, it is said, "Ibi habuerunt Torfin 7 Finegal. ii. haulas. Torfin cū faca 7 foca. 7 terci<sup>o</sup> nōe Tor reliq. trā cū faca 7 foca f; non haulā." (*) In one instance "Halla" is used for a Manor. "Istos hōes posuit Ingelric<sup>o</sup> ad suā hallā." (*) In Northamptonshire, we have another term for the Hall: under Pitestea, we read, (*) "Hoc tō. fuit de firma monachorum [Ecclesie Lincolniensis] 7 ibi fuit dñicu aedificiū." "Caput Manerū" also occurs several times in both volumes in the same sense. (*)

Curia, which occasionally seems to have implied the Court or Manor house only of the lord, (**) in one or two entries appears to have a more immediate reference to manorial jurisdiction. Tom. i. fol. 35 b. "Robt<sup>o</sup> ten<sup>o</sup> de Ricardo Scaldefor. Duo frs tenuer<sup>o</sup> T. R. E. Vn<sup>o</sup> quifq. habuit domū suā. 7 tañi maner<sup>o</sup> in una Curia. 7 quo voluer<sup>o</sup> ire potuer<sup>o</sup>." Under Aftune in Cheshire, it is said, "Hoc hō hit suū placitū in aula dñi sui." (**)

Of the increase and decrease of Manors, and of the removal of lands from one Manor to another, the instances throughout the Survey are numerous. In the account of Surrey, in what relates to the property of the abbey of Westminster, we read, "Abb de Certesi ten<sup>o</sup> unā hid. quā pfect<sup>o</sup> uillāe huj<sup>o</sup> [Patricefy] p<sup>o</sup>pt inimiciā qdā ab isto tō abstulit 7 misit in Certesi." Under Ordie in Hampshire, "Terra. ē. i. car. manerū fuit. modo ē. appositū in alio tō." (**) Before this, in the lands of Robert Fitz Gerold, under Tedorde, it is said, "Duo libi hōes tenuer<sup>o</sup> in alodiū de rege E. p. ii. tō. Tē 7 m geld p. iiii. hid. Robt<sup>o</sup> fecit un. tō." (**)

A curious instance of the formation of a new Manor occurs in the account of Gloucestershire. "In Lindene fecit com. W. unū tō de iiii. tris quas ab earū dñis accepit. De dñio epī Hereford. iiii. hid. De dñico uictu monachorū de pfore vi. hid. ubi erant vi. uilli cū iiii. car. De duob; teinis accep. iiii. hid. 7. dim." (**)

Franchises.

Sometimes instances occur of the removal of the "liberi homines," or "sochemann," from one Manor to another. At Folfham in Norfolk, the record says, "Huic Manerio adjuncti s̄nt. ii. libi hoēs p̄ radulfū talibosc. t. r. W."<sup>(8)</sup> Under Stiuecā, "Huic mañ additi s̄t. iiii. sochēi."<sup>(9)</sup> Again, under Taterforda, "De hoc Manerio s̄t ablati iiii. soch. xl. ac. 7 tenet W. de War."<sup>(10)</sup> In Suffolk, "lxxx. libi 7 iiii. s̄nt additi de hoc hundred [Wanneforda] ad maneriu de Montfort t̄pe regis W. de quibz s̄nt sup̄dicti. xii. qui s̄ reddidit ullā consuetudinē:"<sup>(11)</sup> and, under Bura, it is said, "In ead. ii. libi hoēs heroldi et poterant uende. et h̄nt lxx. ac. et i. car et uat v. fol. et fuer libati ad p̄ficiendū mañ."<sup>(12)</sup> A certain number of freemen or socmen were necessary to every lord of a manor for holding the pleas of the Manor Court, or Soke.

Many of the Earl of Moretaine's Manors in Somersetshire appear to have made payments to the paramount Manor of Cori, belonging to the King.<sup>(13)</sup> So, in the same county fol. 97. among the lands of Ralph de Limefi. Under Alresford, it is said, "Hoc 7 redd p̄ c̄suetudinē xii. oues p̄ anū in Carentone 7 regis. Radulf 7 hanc c̄suetudinē usq. m̄ detinuit."<sup>(14)</sup> At Leofminstre in Herefordshire, we read, "Ad hoc 7 ptineb. ii. 7. Stanford 7 Merchelai T. R. E. qui reddt in regi xxx. lib. ut sup̄ius dictū est." A large enumeration of lands follows, which in the time of Edward belonged to Leofminstre.<sup>(15)</sup>

Among the Terræ Regis in Devonshire, under Alfeimstre, we read, "Huic 7 debent xv. denar de Cherleton 7 ep̄i. s̄stanti. 7 De Honetone 7 comitis Morit. xxx. den. 7 de Smaurige 7 Radulphi de Pomerē. xxx. den 7 de Manserie 7. Wilii cheure. xxx. den. 7 de Rouerige 7 S. Marie Rotomag. xxx. denat. Hos denar jā p̄ plures annos rex s̄ habuit."<sup>(16)</sup> The parent Manor had belonged to King Edward. To the King's Manor of Mollande in Devonshire, it is said, "Ip̄i manerio ptin t̄cius denarius de Hund Nortmoltone. 7 Badentone 7 Brantone. 7 t̄ciū animal pasturæ morat." So, again, "Manerio Mortone ptin t̄ci denar de Tanebrige Hund."<sup>(17)</sup>

That Manors were sometimes shifted from one Hundred to another, we have an instance in Gloucestershire, under Wenric, belonging to the abbey of Winchcombe. "Hoc 7 quē ten Elfi de atbe. injuste jacuit in Salemonetherie h̄d. postq. Bolle mortuus fuit. Modo jacet in Bernitone h̄d. iudicio hōm ej̄de hund." § 4. Territorial Jurisdiction and Franchises.

In Yorkshire, the Manors are frequently measured more minutely than in other Counties: the length and breadth being usually set down.

Manerium occurs once in the Survey, in Lincolnshire: "Remigius ep̄s h̄. i. maneriolū cū. i. caſ. contiguū in ciuitate Lincolia. cū ſaca 7 foca 7 cū Thol 7 Theim."

Villa,

In the Domesday Survey, was another term for a Manor or Lordship; "two, or more of which," says Nichols, "were usually united to form a Villata, though in some few cases a Villa was sufficiently large to stand single, when it was said to answer pro villa integra: and when two were joined together, each was called dimidia villata." (2)

A Berewic, or Berewite, according to Dr. Nash, is in some ancient Books explained to be used synonymously for Manerium: but it implied rather a member severed from the body of a Manor, as a vill or hamlet of a Manor or Lordship. (3) Bromesgrave in Worcestershire had eighteen Berewicks, Chideminstre sixteen, Cedelai eight. Recordine in Shropshire had eight, Membrefeld eighteen. Suduuelle in Nottinghamshire had twelve Berewicks. In Yorkshire they occur in greater numbers, and more frequently than in most counties. In two or three entries they appear to be called Members of Manors: as in Leicesterhire, under Rodolei, "Huic t<sup>ra</sup> p̄tin subſequencia mēbra," to the amount of twenty. (4) So in Warwickhire, "H' duo mēbra jac ad Stanlei t<sup>ra</sup> regis." (5)

<sup>1</sup> Domesd. fol. 220. Small parcels of land are sometimes entered as appertaining to no Manor; as tom. i. fol. 30 b. at Dorchinges, "Ex his hid. h̄ Ricard<sup>9</sup> de tenebrige unā. que nulli t<sup>ra</sup> p̄tin."

<sup>5</sup> Ibid. fol. 238. See also, fol. 260 b. In the first volume of the Survey, fol. 111 b. in the account of Baemtone in Devonshire, it is said, "Huic t<sup>ra</sup> adiacet una hida. quā teneb<sup>9</sup> v. taini in Paragio p<sup>9</sup> v. maner. T. R. E." Cowel says, from Spelman, that Parage signifies equality of name, blood, or dignity; but more especially of land, in the partition of all inheritance between co-heirs. Brady, from Desfresne, says, "Or it is when the younger brothers hold their share of the fee of the elder brother, and he of the lord, and does the homage and service, they contributing their shares." Paragium, however, in the language of Domesday, meant holding in equal portions, as well in rights and privileges as in actual property. So, Du Cange, in one explanation of the word, "Quævis portio in re aliqua." He quotes "Tabularium Vindocinense, fol. 54. Guido de Blafone dominicus vassus accedens ad Dom. Odericum Abbatem donavit eis tractum ſagenæ unius in univerſis aquis ſuis, ubicumque piſcaturus habere diſinſcitur, ita ut ipſe in eadem ſagena unius hominis habeat portionem, quam nominant Paragium, reliquæ autem portiones ſunt S. Among the "Clamores quæ ſunt in Sudtreding Lincolias & Concordia eorū p homines qui iurauē." tom. i. fol. 375. are two entries explanatory of the tenure. "De calūnia int ep̄m duncelm 7 Eudone filiū Spireuic. portauē<sup>9</sup> teſtimoniū hōes de Horrecaſtre Wapen. annuente toto Treding. qd. iiii. fr̄s Herold 7 Godeuert 7 Aluric diuiſe<sup>9</sup> dnicā terrā patris ſui equaliter 7 pariter. 7 ſolūm Herold 7 Godeuert diuiſe<sup>9</sup> focā patris ſui ſine t̄cio fr̄e. 7 equali<sup>9</sup> 7 pariti<sup>9</sup> teneuē eam T. Tom. i. fol. 168 b. under Wadune we read, "Quing fr̄s teneuē p v. t<sup>ra</sup> 7 poterant ire quo volebant 7 pares erant."

In the Exeter Domesday Mansio is almost constantly used for Manerium: and there is one entry in the second volume of the present Survey which at least serves to shew that in the return for Essex the two words were considered as synonymous. "Haneghefelda—p uno Mañ." "In ead tenuer' xxiiii. libi hōes xiiii. hid. q possent recede sine licentia dñi ipsius Manfōis. (' In other instances the Mansio seems to have been but a member or hamlet of the Manerium. Under Alnoitone in Kent, we read, "Huic 7 adjacent iii. Manfiones t're in Roucestre." (' In the account of Lincolnshire it is said, "In Stov. hñ Eddiua iii. manfion cū faca. 7 foca Rad hñ." (' In Huntingdon, "Siward<sup>2</sup> com hñ i. manfion cū domo cū faca 7 foca quietā ab oīni cūetudine quā m hñ Judita comitissa." (' So, after the enumeration of the Manfiones and their possessors in Stafford, it is said, "Hi oñis hñt sachā 7 focā. Rex hñ de oñibz geldū p añ." (' Under Cratafelda in Suffolk, it is said, "7 huic manerio iacent v. franci hōēs de xxvi. aē. 7 semp ii. car & silua ad vi. porc. 7 uat. vi. sol 7 viii. den. Et iñi reddā focā huic mañ p'terea ii. hōēs. de xl. aē. 7 i. car. 7 uat. v. sol. 7 foca de iñis duobz in bledeburc. Et has ii. manfiones tenet uuilhelmus bainardus." (' Bracton, de Legibus et Consuetudinibus Angliæ, fol. Lond. 1569. lib. v. cap. 28. De Except. p. 434. gives us the following as an explanation of the difference between the Mansio, the Villa, and the Manerium. "Videndum igitur quid Mansio, quid Villa, et quid Manerium. Mansio autem esse poterit constructa ex pluribus domibus, vel una quæ erit habitatis una et sola sine vicino; etiam etsi alia mansio fuerit vicinata non erit Villa, quia Villa est ex pluribus mansionibus vicinata, et collata ex pluribus vicinis. Manerium autem fieri poterit ex pluribus villis vel una, plures enim villæ possunt esse in corpore manerii sicut et una, et ad unam mansionem pertinere potuerunt plura tenementa." ('

The Prefetti or Prepositi Maneriorum or Villarum, were the Reeves, Bailiffs, or Stewards of Manors, whose business it was to collect the rents, to levy distresses, to prevent trespasses, to keep the peace,

<sup>7</sup> In a few entries of the Survey Manfiones seem to intend houses simply. "Manfio and Domus," says Mr. Kelham, Illustr. of Domesd. p. 267. "seem to be distinguished, but wherein the difference consisted is not easy to say." Of the same import was Manfura. Dr. Nash, in his Collections for Worcesterhire, says that Manfura, in a town, signified a House; in the country, a Messuage, that is house and land. Blomefield, in the History of Norfolk, says that it signified a mansion-house in decay, or a place where a mansion-house formerly stood, or a place convenient to make a house in. Cowel says, Manfura and Mafura are used in Domesday, and other ancient Records, for manfiones vel habitacula villlicorum. In the Survey, tom. i. fol. 3. there are said to have been three hundred and eighty-three manfures in Sandwich: and in Shrewsbury, a hundred and ninety-three manfures occur. In Hampshire, under Edlinges, tom. i. fol. 38 b. it is said, "In Foresta sunt occupate. xvi. manfure uillanor' 7 bordarior'." At Thivnam in the same County, fol. 44. "In burgo vi. mafuras de xiii. sol 7 iiii. denar." In the account of Walingford in Berkshire, we read, fol. 56. "In Suttone una acra in qua sunt vi. mafuras de. xii. denar. 7 in Braio una acra. 7 ibi xi. mafuras de xii. solid. Rainald<sup>2</sup> hñ unā acra in qua sunt xi. mafure de xxvi. denar. 7 pñ in Eldeberie quæ ē. in Oxeneford." In Derby, fol. 280. "Hugo com hñ. ii. mafuras. 7 i. pifcaz cū faca 7 foca. Henric<sup>2</sup> de ferariis iii. mafur cū faca 7 foca simit." "Adhuc in eod burgo sunt. viii. mafure cū faca 7 foca. Hæ fuet Ælgar. m sunt regis."

Hage occur principally in the Cities, Burghs, and larger Towns, as at Rochester, Canterbury, Chichester, Lewes, Bofham, Arundel, Rochinton, Waltham, Itratone, Epinges, Guildford, and Winchester. From a passage in tom. i. fol. 30. Haga and Domus appear to have been synonymous: and from one or two entries under Walingford the same opinion will probably be formed in respect of Haga and Mafura. In the account of Norwich, however, a distinction seems intended between Manfura and Domus.

and to do all the offices of Equity and Right between the Lord and Tenants. (*) The office of the Prepositus Villæ (*) is more particularly explained in the following of King Edward's laws: "28. De Animalibus et alia re inventa—Si quis adduxerit animal in villam, vel apportaverit pecuniam, et dixerit se invenisse, priusquam in domum introducat suam vel etiam alterius, ante Ecclesiam ducat, et coram sacerdote Ecclesiæ, et Præposito Villæ, et melioribus hominibus totum ostendat inventum quicquid sit. Præfectus Villæ mox mittat ad quatuor Villas propinquiores pro Sacerdotibus et Præpositis villarum, qui adducant fecum tres vel quatuor de melioribus hominibus de unaquaque villa, quibus congregatis ostenditur totum inventum. Postea vero testimonio ipsorum præpositus (de cuius dominio inventor est) custodiat inventum usque in diem crastinum. Die autem crastino cum aliquantibus vicinorum suorum qui viderunt inventum, ad Hundredi eat præfectum, in quo Hundredo sua villa est, et ipsi ostendat totum. Et si homo alicujus domini sit in cuius terra inventum est hoc, et Dominus in cuius terra inventum est non habet consuetudines suas, scilicet foke et foke, omnia tradat Præfecto Hundredi (si habere voluerit) cum bonis testibus. Sed si Dominus habuerit consuetudines suas, in Curia Domini rectum teneatur." (*)

The Bedelli were the Under-Bailiffs of Manors. In Leominstre in Herefordshire, the Manor of which had sixteen members or berewicks, there were eight prepositi and eight bedelli. (*) At Feccheham in the same county we find "xxx. viii 7 xi. bord 7 pposit<sup>9</sup> 7 bedel." (*)

"Prepositi regis et Bedelli et Elemosinarii" occur at the close of the tenants in capite in Bedfordshire. (*)

The following is the enumeration of stock received with a small estate of tenemental land held under Eudo Fitz Hubert, detailed in the Survey in the Hundred of Hertford in Hertfordshire. "Cū qua sup̄sit Hunfrid<sup>9</sup> qdo de Eudone recep̄t lxxviii. Aalia (*) 7. ccc. l. oues. 7 cl. porc. 7 l. caps. 7 l. equū. 7 xlii. fol. 7 iiii. den de censu regis. 7 int pannos 7 uafa 7 xx fol." The estate consisted of half a Hide, with one plough in demesne, and another belonging to four bordarii. It had seven cottagers, a mill yielding six shillings and eight-pence, and wood for fifty porkers. It had belonged to one of King Edward's bailiffs, and its value both under the Confessor and the Conqueror had stood at sixty shillings. (*)

Markets and Tolls.

At what period the establishment of public Markets first took place in England, we are not told; but the constantly increasing severity of the Anglo-Saxon laws against Theft, probably multiplied their number. To escape this severity, it was necessary that every Man, and especially a dealer in goods, should be always able to prove his legal property in what he possessed. (*)

In the Laws of Ina, it is expressly said, "Si mercator inter vulgus mercetur, faciat hoc coram testibus. Si furto ablatum illud emptum inveniatur, et ipse non emerit id coram bonis testibus, confirmet poenæ loco, quod nec furti conficius, nec furatus sit, vel compenset poenæ loco triginta sex solidos." The following, among the Conqueror's Laws, is copied almost verbatim from one of the Laws of Canute: 22. value. In Leicesterhire, a Market occurs at Medeltone. ('') In Staffordshire, at Tutbury. ('') In Lincolnshire, a Market occurs at Chirchetone; ('') another at Ludes yielding twenty-nine shillings; a Market in Bolinbroc lately established; ('') one in Spallinge producing forty shillings; ('') in Bertone, "1. Mercatū 7 passagii de IIII. lib;" ('') and, in Partene, a Market yielding ten shillings. ('') At Dunham in Norfolk, we have, "dimidium mercatum;" ('') a Market at Coleneia apparently of recent establishment; ('') and at Turchetel "quarta pars unius Mercati." ('') In Suffolk, one at Tornai; ('') one at Beccles, of which the fourth part was the King's, with all customary payments; ('') the remainder, as appears by another entry, belonged to St. Edmondsbury abbey; ('') one at Sutherie; ('') one in Eia, in which twenty-five burgesses were constantly resident; ('') and one in Carahalla, "de dono regis." ('') Under Hoxana we have a curious entry, which seems to shew that the Norman tenants in capite had sometimes the power of establishing a Market for their own advantage. "In h. manerio erat unū Mercatū t. r. e. 7 p<sup>o</sup>q. Wilthmus rex adueñ; 7 fedebat in fabbato, et W. malet fecit suū castellū ad eiam 7 eade die q erat Mercatū in manerio epī. W. malet fecit aliū Mercatū in suo castello et ex hoc ita peioratū ē Mercatū epī 7 ut parū ualeat. et m fedet die ueneris. Mercatū autē de heia fedet die fabbati. m teñ Roñ de dono regis." ('') The Bishop, to whose fee the Market had belonged, was Ailmarus bishop of Thetford. Under Clara, it is said, "semper unū mercatū;" ('') and under Haverhella we have a Market, the only one in the second volume of which the value is recorded, yielding thirteen shillings and four-pence. ('')

The Market of St. Germans in Cornwall is expressly said to have been held "in die Dominico," on Sunday. This was forbidden by the Laws of the Northumbrian Priests, about the year 950: "Dici folis mercaturam probibemus ubique, et omnem populi conventum, et omne opus, et quamlibet peregrinationem, tam in curribus quam in equis cum oneribus;" ('') Again in the Liber Constitutionum of King Æthelred, and in the Laws of Canute. ('') Matthew Paris, however, informs us, under the year 1200, that Fairs and Markets were constantly so held in England from a remote period. He is speaking of Euface abbot of Flai, who came into England in the time of King John. "Nundinas vero et Mercata Dominice diei adeo interdixit; quod omnia fere, quæ diebus Dominicis per Angliam fieri consueverant, constituerentur in una hebdomadæ sequentium feriarum: Sicque Dominicis diebus fidelis populus divinis solummodo vacans obsequiis, omne opus fertile penitus abdicavit. Veruntamen, tempore procedente, plerique ut canes ad vomitum, sunt reversi." ('') The Statute of the 27th of King Henry the Sixth appears to have abolished the custom entirely.

On the subject of holding Markets in fortified places, we read the following in what is called, "Carta Regis Willielmi Conquistatoris de quibusdam Statutis." "Item nullum mercatum vel forum fit, nec fieri permittatur, nisi in civitatibus regni nostri, et in burgis, et muro vallatis, et in castellis, et in locis tutissimis, ubi consuetudines regni nostri, et jus nostrum commune, et dignitates coronæ nostræ, quæ constitutæ sunt a bonis prædecessoribus nostris deperiri non possint, nec defraudari, nec violari, sed omnia rite et in aperto, et per iudicium et iustitiam fieri debent. Et ideo castella, et burgi, et civitates sitæ sunt et fundatæ et ædificatæ, scilicet, ad tuitionem gentium et populorum regni, et ad defensionem regni, et ideo observari debent cum omni libertate, et integritate, et ratione." Feria, a fair, occurs once only, in the second Volume of the Survey, at Aspella, a manor belonging to Ranulph Feverell: "In ead tertia pars ecclesiæ. & tertia pars ferie." (2)

"DE THOL.

"Thol (quod nos dicimus Tholoneum) est, scilicet quod habent libertatem vendendi et emendi in terra sua." (3) Tol, Tbol, or Tholoneum, in the language of the Domesday Survey, was not merely the liberty of buying and selling, or keeping a market; it also signified the customary dues or rents paid to the Lord of a Manor for his profits of the Fair or Market, (4) as well as a tribute or custom for passage. (5) In the very first page of the Survey, the burgesses of Dover are represented in the time of King Edward, to have been free of toll through England. "Quicumq, manens in villa assiduus, reddebat regi consuetudinē quietus erat de theloneo p totā Angliā." Under Cedeorde in Gloucestershire, Wlward<sup>o</sup> who held it in the same reign, is said to have received, "Theloneū fat qd veniebat ad aulā." (6) At Lestone in Bedfordshire, we have, "Theloneū de Mercato redd. vii. lib." (7) Under Northwich in Cheshire, it is said, "Quicq, ex alia scira carrū adducebat cū. ii. boby aut cū pluribz dabat de theloneo. iiii. denat." (8) Among the Clamores in Lincolnshire, several cases occur of the exaction of Tolls unknown in the time of Edward. Among those of the North Riding of the County, we read, "In Bertune 7 in Ferebi accipiunt hoēs Gislehti de Gand Theloneū aliud quā acceperunt. T. R. E. de pane. piscibz, coriis. 7 aliis rebz plurimis. unde nung datū fuit. In Castris faciunt finitū hoēs regis." (9)

SECT. 5.—TENURES AND SERVICES.

1. Instances and Peculiarities.

Tenure in frankalmoine frequently occurs. This is the tenure by which the ancient Monasteries and Religious Houses held the larger portion of their lands. The high and exalted nature of the Service which they rendered, discharged them from all secular burthens but that of the trineda necessitas, of repairing the bridges, building castles, and repelling invasions. They prayed for the soul of the donor and his heirs.

Tenures and Services.

Among the possessions of the Church of Saint Martin Canterbury, we read, "Terra Nordeuode 7 tra Ripe. 7 tra Brandet reddt xx. fot. 7 vi. den ad S. Marti in elemofina." (1) Under "Terra Ecclie S. Augustini" it is said, "Juxta ciuitate Cantuar hñ S. Aug<sup>o</sup>tin<sup>o</sup> m. acs tre q<sup>s</sup> ten. m. Moniales in elemofina de abbe." (2) In Suffex we find several clerici holding fingle hides of land "in elemofina." (3) The abbey of Almanefches held Clepinges, in that county, of Earl Roger by the same tenure. (4) The abbey of Troard, also, held Rochintone of the same Earl in alms. (5) In Berkshire, the Bishop of Durham held Waltham of the King in alms; Vlavinus the Canon had before held it of Harold. (6) Under "Terra Walterii filii Ponzi," in the same county, at Etone, we read, "De isto m. hid ded Ponzi S. Petro de Westmonast<sup>o</sup> pro anima sua." (7) Of a hide of land at Horcerd in Dorsetshire, it is said, "Hanc hidā ded Hugo p anima sua ecclie de Creneburne." (8) In Somersetshire, we read, "Goduin<sup>o</sup> ten dimid hid in m qd uocat Ragiol. de rege in elemofina. Valet m. fot." "Eddida monialis ten in elemofina de rege. xii. acs tre. ibi hñ q<sup>s</sup> xx. acs siluaz 7 pasturaz. Vat v. folit. Due nonnæ ten de rege in elemofina ii. v tre 7 dimid in Honecote." (9) In Hertfordshire, at Deneflai, we find, "1. francigena elemofinari<sup>o</sup> regie." (10) In Wales it is said, immediately after the entry relating to the city of Gloucester, "in Elemofina regis ē una uilla quaz p anima ej<sup>o</sup> redd ecclie ad fest S. Martini. ii. porē. 7 c. panes cū ceruifia." (11) In Gloucestershire, it is said, "Ecclia de Cireceftre ten de rege. ii. hid in elemofina. 7 de rege. E. tenuit qetas ab omni cūetudine." (12) Under Alac and Lene in Herefordshire, "Hox ii m. ecclias 7 pñros 7 decinas. 7 daos sillos. ten S. Maria de Cornelis in elemofina de rege." (13) Under Toruci in Bedfordshire we find Aluinus, a priest, holding the third part of half a hide. It is added, "Rex u. W. sibi postea in elemofina cēffit. unde p anima regis 7 reginæ omi edda. ii. feria missā pfoluit." (14) In Essex, under Estinfort, we read, "Ad Ecclian huj<sup>o</sup> manerij jacent xxx. ac q<sup>s</sup> vicini deder in elemofina." (15) In Norfolk, "in Heuincham. i. lib hō pr. xl. ac tre in elemofina & cantat unaq<sup>s</sup> ebdomada tres missas." (16) Again in Wiltuna, "i. pr xxx. ac in elemofina semp. ix. soc. de xii. ac tre. semp. ii. car. 7 ii. ac pñ. Ex hoc cantat. iii. missas p & regina. 7 tnc reddt. ii. fot. 7 totū hñ." (17) Under Bertuna in Suffolk, we read, "Ecclie huj<sup>o</sup> uillæ i. ac de liba tra pññ p elemofina." (18) At Saint Edmundsbury, the abbat had "xliiii. Elemofinariū. q<sup>s</sup> hñ. i. bord." (19)

The Services performed by the Towns and Burghs have been noticed under a separate head.

Firma unius Noctis, one night's entertainment, is a Service which frequently occurs, usually as having been rendered in the time of Edward the Confessor. As at Borne and Beddingham in Suffex: (20) at Cavna, Bedvinde, Ambleberie, Guermintre, Chepeham, and Theodulveside in Wiltshire: (21) at Warham, Bridetone, Bere, Winborne, Pinpre, and Winfrode in Dorsetshire: (22) at Summertone, Cedre, Nordperet, Sudperet, Churi, Willetone, Candetone, and Carentone in Somersetshire: (23) and at Betune and Welberie in Gloucestershire. at least as far as the time of Ethelred. "Tēpore Adelredi patris E. regis reddt̃ fi tria ſc̃ dimid firmā noctis." (1) At Lintune in Herefordshire "quarta pars firmæ unius noctis" occurs. (2) At Newport in Essex, "firma de duabus noctibus." (3) The county of Oxford rendered the entertainment of three nights, or one hundred and fifty pounds. (4) In Hampshire, it is said, "H. tria ſc̃. Baſingſtoce. Clere. Eſſeborne. reddunt Firmam unius diei." (5) Under Saham, Fordham, and ſeveral other manors on the King's demefines in Cambridgſhire, we find the entertainment of three Days noticed, "inter mel, frumentum, et braſium"; (6) a ſervice which, in the Conqueror's time, appears to have been uniformly commuted for in each by the payment of thirteen pounds eight ſhillings and four-pence "de albis nummis."

in this Record.

Tenures and Services.

In the Account of Lanſiran in Cornwall we read, "De hoc maner ablata ſt ii. trāe q̃ reddet̃ canonicis [S. Pierani] T.R.E. Firmā III. Septimanarum. 7 decano xx. foliā p̃ c̃ſuetudine." (7)

The Caſtle of Arundel yielded in the time of Edward the Confeſſor "de iii. Conuuiis xx. foliā." (8)

Under Newetone in Surry it is ſaid, "De ſc̃ de Mildentone reddit' in Neuuetone una c̃ſuetudo ideſt xxxviii. panes Caſceop." (9) The "Conſuetudo Caſceop" occurs again in Berkſhire. (10)

At Chintenhām in Glouceſterſhire a render was made, in the time of Edward, of three thouſand cakes of dog-bread: "ter mille panes canibus." For this at the time of the Survey ſixteen ſhillings were paid in Money. (11) From the county of Warwick, in the time of the Conqueror, twenty-three pounds were paid "p̃ c̃ſuetudine Canum." (12)

Of the manor of Cumbe in Kent, it is ſaid, "T.R.E. ualeb. l.x. fol. 7 poſt l. fol. Modo lxxx. lib. & ſeruitium unius militis." (13) The ſame Service occurs in Surry. (14) This muſt have been by finding a man for the wars.

In Cornwall, "De Ecclia S. Germani ablata ē i. hida trāe q̃ reddet̃ p̃ c̃ſuetudinē unā Cupā Ceruiſie. 7 xxx. denar." (15)

The Royal demefine of Portland in Northamptonſhire, in the time of Edward, beſide forty-eight ſhillings rent, paid ten ſhillings "pro feltris ſummarior̃ regiſ": for ſkins or rugs for the King's ſumpster horſes. (16)

Among the baſer Services was "Auera" which, with the exception of two entries in Kent, occurs principally in Hertford and Cambridge ſhires, generally accompanied in the latter county by "Inward" or "Inward." Auera is uſually interpreted a day's work of the Plough, though it alſo ſignified that ſervice which the tenant owed to the King or other Lord, by horſe or ox, or by carriage with either. (17) Inward was the guarding the perſon of the King when he lodged in a city, or the attendance on the Sheriff. It alſo implied certain ſeruil works about the King's demefines or the lords inlands. (18)

At Barham, in Kent, it is ſaid, "De Auera ideſt ſeruitium l.x. fol." (19) At Chenepeworde in Hertfordſhire, "De c̃ſuetud. l. Auera inuenieb. cū rex in ſeyra ueniebat. Si non' v. denar' reddebat." (20)

Principal Matters noticed in this Record. § 5. Tenures and Services. In Cambridgehire, under Effelinge, "un<sup>o</sup> q<sup>o</sup>q, in servitio regis inuenit Auerā. t̄ viii. den t̄ mancipiū." (') Under Warating, it is said, "Hanc trā tenuer<sup>t</sup> x. fochi. hōēs abbas fuer<sup>t</sup>. 7 abfq, ej<sup>o</sup> licentia trā suā uende n̄ potuer<sup>t</sup>. Hoq. vi. inueniēb<sup>t</sup> Aueras. 7 iiii. inū inguard. si rex ueniret in fcyra. Si non. viii. den p̄ auerā. 7 iiii. p̄ inguard. reddebant." Auerā p̄ annum." (') The repetitions of this Service are very numerous upon the lands which had belonged to the fair Eddeua. In Warateuorde, it is said, "Hanc trā. ii. fochi regis E. tenuer<sup>t</sup>. 7 ii. Aueras inueniēb<sup>t</sup>. 7 uende<sup>t</sup> potuer<sup>t</sup>;" and again, under Euredone, "alij xiii. hōēs. R. E. unā hid 7 dim 7 x. acs tenuer<sup>t</sup>. 7 ix. Aueras 7 v. inew uicecomiti inuenerunt. Oñis ū terras suas dare t̄ uendere potuerunt." (')

Several instances of baser Service occur upon the lands belonging to Westminster Abbey, in Worcesterhire. As, "In Brictelmestune. sunt. x. hidæ. Ibi. x. uill 7 x. bord. cū vi. car 7 arant 7 feminant vi. acs de ppo femine." (') "In Depeforde. Ibi vi. colib<sup>i</sup>. redā p̄ anū. xi. fot 7 ii. den. 7 arant 7 feminant de ppo femine xii. acras." (') Of the Servi on the same land, it is said, "Ili duo Dunning 7 Brictic fecab in p̄tis dñi sui p̄ consuetudinē. unā diem." (') In Longedune, it is said, "De hac tra T. R. E. tenet. ix. libi hōēs. xviii. hid. 7 secabant uno die in p̄tis dñi sui. 7 facieb<sup>t</sup> seruitiū fīē eis p̄cipiebatur." So again, under Poiwic, Snodelbyrie, Dormestun, and other Manors belonging to the Monastery. At Offenham in Worcesterhire, belonging to the Abbey of Evesham, it is said, "Ibi sunt boves ad i. car. sed petrā trahunt ad accclam." (') Osbern Fitz Richard held Wicelbold in the same county. "Ibi xiii. burges in Wich secantes ii. dieb<sup>o</sup> in Augusto 7 Marcio. 7 feruientes curie." (') In the Hundred of Newton, between the Ribble and the Mersey, we read, "Huj<sup>o</sup> Hynd hōēs libi p̄t. ii. erant in ead<sup>e</sup> c̄suetud<sup>e</sup> qua hōēs derberie. 7 plus illis. ii. dieb<sup>o</sup> in Augusto metebant in culturis regis." (') At Elmellie in Herefordhire, on the land of Saint Guthlac, it is said, "Alterius uillæ hōēs laborant in hac uilla. 7 reddt. xxxvii. solid 7 viii. denar." (') Upon the King's lands at Lufenham and Sceleorpe in Northamptonshire, it is said, "Hōēs opantur opa regis quæ p̄positus iusserit." (')

The Servi on the manor of Bledelai in Buckinghamshire, belonging to the Earl of Moretaine, from the profits of pannage paid money sufficient to purchase the iron work of two Ploughs: "de reddit siluæ ferra car. sufficienter." (') The tenants on the estate at Eftone in the same County, belonging to Edward of Salisbury, appear to have done the same. "Silua ccc. porc. 7 ferra carucis dñicia." (') Under Quenintone, one of Roger de Laci's manors in Gloucesterhire, we find a burges of Gloucester entered yielding "iiii. foccos" or plough-shares. (') Four burgeses of Hereford yielded eighteen plough-shares to the manor of Merchelai in Herefordhire. (')

Other Services of a special sort occur. At Henret in Berkshire, it is said "Henric<sup>o</sup> ten<sup>4</sup> ibi i. hid quæ fuerat in firma regis. Godric<sup>o</sup> tenuit. Aluric<sup>o</sup> de Tacehā dicit se uidisse brev<sup>e</sup> regis qd<sup>4</sup> eā dederit femine<sup>z</sup> Godrici in dono eo q<sup>d</sup> nutriebat canes suos. Sed nemo ē in Hund qui brev<sup>e</sup> uiderit pter Aluricum." (<sup>1</sup>) Of certain lands at Achelei in Buckinghamshire, of the fee of Robert de Oilgi, we read "Hæ v. hidæ 7 iii. uirgæ sunt viii. hidæ. De his tenuit Aluuid puella. ii. hid<sup>z</sup>, quas potuit dare 1 uendere cui uoluit. 7 de dñica firma regis E. habuit ipfa dñm hidā quā Godric<sup>o</sup> uicecom<sup>4</sup> ei ēcessit quadri uicecom<sup>4</sup> oct. ut illa doceret filiū ej<sup>o</sup> Aurisfrifū op<sup>4</sup>ari. Hanc trā ten<sup>4</sup> m Robt<sup>o</sup> filius Walterij testante hundret." (<sup>1</sup>) Under Lene in Herefordshire, which in the Confessor's time had been Earl Morcar's, it is said, "T.R.E. ualb<sup>4</sup> vi. lib. § 5.
Tenures and Services.

The last Service to be noticed is that which was yielded by the manor of Biscopestreu in the hundred of Atlicrofs in Cheshire, which at the time of the Survey was held by Grifin King of North Wales. "In eod Atlicrofs Hd habuit. Rex Grifin. i. maneriū Biscopestreu. 7 in dñio. i. ca<sup>4</sup> habeb<sup>4</sup>. 7 Ho<sup>4</sup>s ej<sup>o</sup> vi. ca<sup>4</sup>. q<sup>d</sup> do ipse rex ibi uenib<sup>4</sup> reddeb<sup>4</sup> ei unq<sup>4</sup> ca<sup>4</sup> cc. heghas. 7 unā cuā plēnā ceruicia 7 unā butiri Ruycā." (<sup>1</sup>) Hefthas were Loaves; a tub of Ale, and a rush basket of Butter.

It is remarkable how many Services which in the time of Edward the Confessor were yielded in kind, in the time of the Conqueror were changed for money payments.

2. Heriots and Reliefs.

Harieta, Heriet, Heriete, or Herigete, the Heriot, occurs more rarely in the Domesday Survey than might have been expected. The first establishment, if not the introduction of the compulsory Heriot into England is found in the following Law of King Canute. (<sup>1</sup>) "De Heriotis. "Et sint armamenta prouti dignitati conuenit, Comitib<sup>4</sup> prouti ad eum pertinet, nempe octo Equi, quatuor ephippiati et quatuor absque ephippiis, et quatuor Galeæ, et quatuor Lorice, et octo Hastæ, ac totidem Scuta, et quatuor Enses et ducentæ Mancusæ auri. Et postea Regii Thani armamentum, qui ei proximus, sit iv. equi, ii. ephippiati, et ii. absque ephippiis, et duo Enses et iv. Hastæ, et totidem Scuta, et Galeæ, et Lorice, et quinquaginta Mancusæ auri. Et inferioris conditionis Thani, Equus cum ornamentis ejus et armis, vel ejus multā obstricti colli in Saxonia occidua, et in Mercia duæ libræ, et in Anglia orientali duæ libræ. Et Regii Thani armamentum apud Danos, qui suam immunitatem habet quatuor libræ, et si Regi ulterius notus sit, duo Equi, unus ephippiatus, et alter absque ephippio, et Ensis et duæ Hastæ, et duo Scuta, et quinquaginta Mancusæ auri: et qui minus habuerit, et minus potens fuerit, duæ libræ." The word Heriot, or þepe-geat, implies the habiliments of war. These, it should seem, were delivered up to the sovereign on the death of the vassal, who could no longer use them, to be put into other hands for the service and defence of the country. § 5.
Tenures and Services.

Upon the plan of the Danish Heriot, William the Conqueror fashioned his law of Reliefs. 22. "De Relevio Comitit. De Relevio Comitit, quod ad Regem pertinet viii. Equi ephippiati et frænig ornati, et Lorice ii, et iv. Galeæ, et iv. Scuta, et iv. Haftæ, et iv. Enses, alii ceteri iv. Veredi, et Palfredi cum frænig et capiftris." 23. "De Relevio Baronis. De Relevio Baronis iv. Equi cum fellis et frænig ornati, et Lorice ii. et ii. Galeæ, et Scuta ii. et ii. Haftæ, et ii. Enses; et alii ceteri ii. unus Veredus et unus Palfridus cum fræno et capiftro." 24. "De Vavaforis Relevio. De Relevio Vavaforis ad legitimum suum Dominum. Quietus esse debet per Equum patris sui talem qualem habuerit tempore mortis sue, et per Loricam suam, et per Galeam suam, et per Scutum suum, et per Haftam suam, et per Ensem suum, et si adeo fuerit inermis ut nec Equum habuerit nec Arma, per centum solidos." 29. "De Sercoorum Relevio. De Relevio Villani. Melius animal quod habuerit id (five Equus fit, five Bos, five Vacca) donabit Domino suo pro Relevio, et postea sint omnes Villani in franco plegio." 40. "De Relevio eorum qui clientes censum pendunt. Eorum qui fundum suum tenent ad censum, sit rectum Relevium tantum quantum census annuus est."

The Relief was, in fact, a fine paid to the King by all who came to the inheritance of lands held in capite or military service, to relieve, or as it were to redeem their estate and obtain possession of it. (1) It consisted at first, as we see by the Conqueror's Laws, in horses and arms, till, by the Ordinance called the Assize of Arms, in the 27th year of Henry the Second, every man's armour was directed to be preferred for his heir, and the Relief became payable in money; the fixed rates of which were afterwards determined by Magna Charta. (2)

Such was the difference between the Heriot and the Relief in their origin. "But," says Sir Henry Spelman, "there is great difference between Heriots and Reliefs; for Heriots were Militia apparatus which the word signifieth, and devised to keep the conquered nation in subjection, and to support the public strength and military furniture of the kingdom: the Reliefs for the private commodity of the Lord, that he might not have inutilem proprietatem in the Seignory. The Heriots were therefore paid in habiliments of war; the Reliefs, usually, in money: the Heriot for the tenant that died, and out of his goods; the Relief for the tenant that succeeded, and out of his purse: the Heriot, whether the son or heir enjoyed the land or not; the Relief by none but him only that obtained the land in succession." "I stand the longer," adds Sir Henry Spelman, "herein, for that not only the Report, but even DOOMSDAY itself, and generally all the ancient monkish writers (3) have confounded Heriots and Reliefs."

In the account of Kent in the very first page of the Survey, in what relates to the Customs of Boruuar Lest, Estreleft, Linuuartleft, and Wiuuartleft, it is said, "Quando morit Alodiarius rex inde habet releuacionē tñæ. excepta tñæ S. Trinitatis. 7 S. Augustini. 7 S. Martini. 7 exceptis his. Godric de Burnes. 7 Godric Carlesone. 7 Alnod cilt. 7 Elber biga. 7 Siret de Cillehā. 7 Turgis. 7 Norman. 7 Azor. <sup>3</sup> Bromton, in what may be termed a perpetual Commentary on the Laws of Canute, rather than a transcript of the Code, represents the Heriot and the Relevatio as the same. "Si quis ex hac vita decedat sine distributione rerum suarum, vel per incustodiam, vel per mortem improvisam, non usurpet sibi dominus ejus de pecunia sua, nisi quantum ad justam Relevationem pertinet quæ Anglice vocatur HERIOET." The Monkish historians were at a loss for a Latin term to express the Heriot, and they adopted Relevatio.

In the account of Kingdon in Surrey, we read: "De uillis huj<sup>9</sup> uillas habuit 7 hī Hūfrid<sup>9</sup> camerarius unū uillā in custodia causa codumandi lanā reginæ. De ipso etiā accepit xx. fol in releuati cū pat ej<sup>9</sup> fuit mort." ### 1. Their Denominations.

Saca, Soca, Theim.

THESE terms are thus explained in the laws of Edward the Confessor. "22. De Sacha—Sacha est, quod si quilibet aliquem nominatim de aliquo calumniatus fuerit, et ille negauerit, forisfactura probationis vel negationis (si euenit) sua erit. 23. De Soca—Soca est, quod si aliquis quærat aliquid in terra sua, etiam furtum, sua est iustitia si inventum fuerit, an non. 25. De Theam—Theam, quod si quispiam aliquid interciat super aliquem, & interciatus non poterit warrantum suum habere, erit forisfactura sua, et iustitia similiter de calumniatore, si defecerit." Infangthefe follows: after which it is said, "Illi vero qui non habent has consuetudines coram iustitia regia rectum faciant in Hundredis, vel in Wapentachiis, vel in Scyris." (*)

Saca was the power and privilege of hearing and determining causes and disputes, levying forfeitures and fines, executing laws, and administering justice within a certain precinct.

Soca was the territory or precinct in which the Saca and other privileges were exercised. (*) Soca, Soke, says Kelham, generally signifies franchise, liberty, or jurisdiction; sometimes a territory or precinct; and sometimes a rent paid for using the land, with some privilege or liberty, or for protection of the land. (*) Under Somerdebi in Lincolnshire, we read, "If Soca talis erat. qd nichil reddebat. fed adjuuabat in exercitu regis in tra 7. in mari." (*)

Criminal and Civil Jurisdictions.

In the second volume of the Domesday Survey, "Soca falde," the privilege of the Lords fold occurs in numerous instances: (') that is, the privilege of the Lord to take the profits of the fold within his manor.

Team or Theame says Cowel, from the Saxon tyman propagare, to teem or bring forth, signifies a royalty granted by the King's charter to the Lord of a Manor, for the having, restraining, and judging bondmen, neifs, and villains, with their children, goods, and chattels, in his court. (') Tyman, says Cowel, signifies also to advocate. In the "Expositio Verborum Anglicorum" in the Cotton Manuscript Galba E. iv. Theu is explained, "Auer serf, ou uyleyn, ou neyf, et lur issue." Cowel quotes a similar explanation of old date from the register of the priory of Crokesford. "Them. i. e. Quod Prior habet totam generationem Villanorum fuorum, cum eorum fecta et catallis ubicunque in Anglia inventi fuerint."

The names of those who had Sac and Soc and Thol and Thaim, in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire, Lincolnshire, and Yorkshire, are enumerated at the beginning of the respective Counties. (')

Ibid. in Stou. "Adjacent huic man. v. libi hoēs de ōi confuetudin. 7 ad focū adjacent etiā xvii. libi hoēs confueti ad faldā. & comdati de xxiiii. ac." Du Cange says, "Falda denique funitur pro libertate habendi Faldam, quæ libertas Faldoca dicitur. Soc enim Saxonibus libertas. Nulli quippe olim licuit vel in terris propriis Faldam erigere, aut gregem alere, nisi domino feodali, feu manerii, hoc ex jure publico gaudenti. Est igitur libertas Faldæ, feu Faldagium, prærogativa dominicalis, tenenti plebeio non competens. Atque hac notione passim ufurpari videas in veterib. Chartis. Monasticum Anglic. tom. i. p. 340. Anglic. tom. i. p. 337. 340. 412. ii. p. 275. Compare also Spelman in uoc.

' Law Interpr. fol. 1727, in v. Spelman, noticing the occurrence of the word in Saxon Charters, and more particularly in those of Edward the Confessor, says, "Ubi Theam significare videtur jurisdictionem cognoscendi in Curia sua de advocacionibus, five intertatis; hoc est, ut Jureconfulti hodie loquuntur, de vocatis ad Warrantiam, sic enim ibidem sequitur cap. 25, "Theam est quod si quisquam aliquid interiet super aliquem, et intertatis non poterit Warrantum suum habere, erit forisfactura sua, et justitia similiter de calumniatore si defecerit. 2. *Delinquencies and Fines.*Principal Matters
in this Record.

The Delinquencies more particularly noticed in the Laws and Customs of the different districts, are Adulterium, (¹) Burgberisb, Forestel, Furtum, (²) Gribrige, Hainfare, Handfoca, Homicidium, Raptum, Revelach, and the Forisfactura Sanguinis.

Burgberisb or Burgeret is a word of rare occurrence, and is supposed by our antiquaries to be the same with Burghbrech or Bophbrece, fideiussionis fractio, mentioned in the Saxon Laws. (³) Burgberis occurs in a Charter of Edmund I. A.D. 944. (⁴)

Forestel, Forstel, or Forsitel, is explained in the Laws of Henry the First: "Forestel est, si quis ex transverso incurrat, vel in via expectet et assalliat inimicum suum." (⁵) It was an assault upon the road, or an hindrance of a traveller going upon his lawful business. At Worcester and Shrewsbury it is said, "Forestellum q̄ fecerit c. solid. emd." (⁶) At Chester, on Sundays, and certain of the higher festivals, "Forestel qui facieb' iii. lib. exfoluebat. in aliis aut dieb' xl. solid." (⁷)

Gribrige was the same with Paci infractio, a violation of the Peace. In the laws of Canute (⁸) it is called Грибрыге, and in those of Æthelred (⁹) Грибрыге. It is also noticed in the Constitutions Canuti Regis de Foresta, (¹⁰) and in the Laws of Henry the First. In the very first page of Domesday we read "De Gribrige ū siq̄ eā fecerit 7 calumniat⁹ in calle aut divadiat⁹ fuerit ⁊ viii lib regi emdabit. Sin autē quiet⁹ erit erga regē non erga dñm cuj⁹ homo fuerit." The breach of the peace given under the King's hand or by his seal is noticed in several passages of the Domesday Survey to have been punished with greater severity than that preserved by the Sheriff. (¹¹)

Hainfare, or Heinfare, appears to have been the flight for murder. Among the Consuetudines Walensium in Arcenefeld, it is said "Si q̄s occidit hoēm regis 7 facit Heinfaram dat regi xx. fol. de solutione hominis. 7 de forisfactura c. fol. Si alicuj⁹ taini hoēm occiderit ⁊ dat. x. fol. dño hois mortui." (¹²) Under Worcester and Shrewsbury we read "Heinfara q̄ fecerit ⁊ c. solid." At Chester the mulcts varied in the same manner as for Forstel. Another interpretation of Hainfare will be found in the next paragraph.

Handfoca occurs but once in Domesday. It was a breach of the peace in a man's house. The following is the explanation of it in the laws of Henry the First: "Hamfocna quod domus invasionem Latine sonat, fit pluribus modis, extrinsecus vel et intrinsecus accidentiis. Hamfocna est si quis alium in sua vel alterius domo cum haraido assallaverit, vel persequatur ut portam, vel domum sagittet, vel lapidet, vel colpum ostensibilem undecunque faciat. Hamfocna est vel Hamfare, si quis præmeditate ad domum eat ubi suum hostem esse scit, et ibi invadat." (¹³)

Raptum. In what relates to Worcester in the Survey we read: "Raptū q̄ fecerit ⁊ ii sit emendatio alia nisi de corpore iustitia." (¹⁴) This is more fully explained by the Laws of William the Conqueror.

"Qui prostraverit feminam ad terram et ei vim inferat, multa ejus Domino est x. solidi. Si vero eam compresserit, forisfacit membra." (')

Revelach occurs in the account of Chester only. "Qui Revelach faciebat x. solidi condabatur." Kelham in his Domesday Book illustrated, p. 315. explains Revelach to have been any traitorous act or infurrection: but its real signification was that of robbery or rapine. See the Laws of Ina, cap. 10. In Canute's Laws (') we read "Si quis pearlac commiserit, reddat et compenset, et sit æstimatione capitis dignus apud Regem, vel apud eum qui immunitatem illius possidet."

Forisfactura Sanguinis was blood-fled. In the account of Lewes in Suffex it is said "Sanguinem fundens efūdāt p. vii. fol. 7 iiii den." (') Among the Laws of Berkshire in the time of Edward the Confessor, "Si qs occidet hominē pacē regis habentē x. corp<sup>o</sup> fuū 7 oñem substantiā forisfacieb erga regē." The punishment for blood-fled at Chester has been already noticed in p. lxiiv.

In the Wiche of Cheshire homicide and theft were punished with death: (') "Excepto homicidio vel furto de quo ad mortem iudicabat: latro": (') and among the Customs of the Lands between the Ribble and the Mersey, "Pugna quæ post sacramentum factum remanebat," as Kelham translates it, the continuing a fight after the office of the Sacrament began, or more probably after an oath of agreement or truce, is noticed as a crime for which no smaller mult than forty shillings was demanded. (')

The Payments for Transgressions are, Blodeuuta, Hangeuitha, Homicidium, Latrocinium or Latrone, and Legreuuta.

Blodeuuta, from the Saxon blod, blood, and uita, a fine or penalty, was a customary amercement paid as a composition for the shedding or drawing of blood. (') See the Laws of Henry the First, capp. 39. 70. 81. See also Ducange in voce.

Hangeuitha is explained to have been the offence, (') or rather the amercement for the offence, of hanging a thief without judgement, or for letting him escape from custody. (') It occurs in Domesday in the account of Chester only. "Hangeuithā faciens in ciuitate x. fol. dat. p̄posit<sup>o</sup> aūt regis uel comitis hanc forisfacturā faciens x. solidi condabatur." (") The Laws of the Conqueror say: "Is qui prehenderit Latronem absque fecta et absque clamore, quem dimiserit ei cui damnum fecerit, et venerit post ea, Justitiam postulaturus, rationi conueniens est ut det x. solidos de Hengute et finem faciat Justitiæ ad primam curiam, et si confirmetur in curia, absque licentiâ Justitiæ, sit forisfactura de x. solidis." (")

Homicidium, (") in a secondary sense, was the mult or payment for homicide: called by the Saxons Manboce. In the "Decreta et Emendationes" prefixed to the Conqueror's Laws, the word occurs in

Legrevuita, or Lairwita, is explained by Spelman: "Stupri five concubitus illegitimi mulcta." (1) The forfeiture for Adultery or Fornication.

SECT. 7.—ECCLESIASTICAL MATTERS.

1. Places.

IT has been already mentioned, that the Precept which directed the formation of the Domesday Survey, laid no injunction on the jurors to make a return of Churches. The mention of them, if at all made, was, of course, likely to be irregular. § 7. Ecclesiastical Matters.

So well acquainted with the Domesday Survey as Sir Henry Spelman must have been, it is somewhat singular that he should have advanced, on the authority of Sprott's Chronicle, that at the time of its formation there were found to be no less than forty-five thousand and eleven parish Churches within the Kingdom, (1) whereas in truth the whole number actually noticed in the Survey, amounts to a few more than one thousand seven hundred: and it is remarkable, that while two hundred and twenty-two Churches were returned from Lincolnshire, two hundred and forty-three from Norfolk, and three hundred and sixty-four from Suffolk, one only can be found in the return for Cambridgeshire, and none in Lancashire, Cornwall, or even Middlesex, the seat of the metropolis. The whole number of Churches recorded in the Survey falls considerably under what there are grounds for concluding they must have amounted to about or soon after the time of the Conquest.

§ 7. Ecclesiastical Matters.

Unexceptionable evidence has been adduced of the existence of one Church in Kent, and of several others in Northamptonshire, which certainly are not noticed in the Survey; (') and in Oxfordshire no notice whatever is taken of the Church of Dorchester, although the seat of a Bishopruck had been removed from it but a short time before the taking of the Survey. (')

The fourfold distinction of Churches, specified in the third law of Canute, A.D. 1033, (') seems to import that in his time all these sacred edifices might together amount to a large number; and it is manifest that in the reign of Edward the Confessor, there must have been a very great increase of what were strictly denominated Parish Churches, it being asserted in one of the laws ascribed to that King, that in many places there were three or four Churches where in former times there was but one. (') And if, as is commonly reported, thirty-six Churches were destroyed by the Conqueror, in order to enlarge the new forest in Hampshire, this is an argument they could not be so few as the number entered in Domesday is furnished to imply. (') It has been further remarked, that if it was the landed property of the clergy that was the object principally in view, we need not be surprized that those Churches, and their incumbents, should be omitted which did not possess any quantity of Glebe; or if, as a matter of private observation, Churches without any land annexed to them might be often minuted in the return, others might be frequently left out as being thought of no consequence in the enquiry. (')

The circumstance of Presbyteri occurring most frequently in Counties where scarcely any Ecclesiæ are noticed, gives strength to the presumption that the officers of the Exchequer who abridged the Returns considered the entry of the one as in most cases implying the existence of the other. In Leicestershire, we have an enumeration of Presbyteri at no less than forty-one places. At Medelstone in that county two priests are mentioned; at Wichington two, a clericus distinct from the presbyter; and at Boleworde two, a presbyter and a deacon. Yet Ecclesiæ occur in the account of the town of Leicester only, where Hugo de Grentemaisnell is said to have had four Churches, and the Bishop of Lincoln two. (') In Norfolk the Ecclesiæ are numerous, and the Presbyteri few. In short, the Domesday Book cannot be decisively appealed to for the non-existence of Parish Churches in the age in which it was compiled. (')

Inasmuch as the enquiries of the King's Commissioners probably could not have extended to Churches unendowed with land, we need not be surprized to find the Tithes of Churches entered, for the most part, incidentally: and some counties without the slightest mention of them, even where there are Churches, as if the Churches had been entirely supported by voluntary oblations, dues, or masses. No Tithes are noticed in Somersetshire, Devonshire, Cornwall, Middlesex, Hertfordshire, and Leicestershire.

<sup>8</sup> At the end of the enumeration of the lands of Tovi, in Norfolk, Domesd. tom. ii. fol. 265. it is said, "Oñs eccle st in pñio ē maneris," although the names of none are separately entered.

Selden, in his "History of Tythes," 4th Lond. 1618. dwells much on the frequent consecration of them, between A.D. 800 and A.D. 1200, to any Church or Monastery at the owner's choice. He says, "Although, out of any continuance alone of voluntary payment, a kind of parochial right were created, yet consecrations of Tithes (not yet established by a civil title) made to the Church of another Parish at the lay owner's choice, were practised and continued in force." (1) In the Domesday Survey, he goes on to say, "frequently enough, Churches are mentioned by the words of 'Ibi Ecclesia 7 Presbyter,' or such like; and how many Carues or Hides of land, how many villans and other endowments and revenues belongs to them, are reckon'd, with their values. But very rarely any Tithes among those Church revenues are there found: if none at all had been nam'd, it might have been thought that they had been omitted as a more sacred profit, than was fit to be taxed in such a Description. But some, although very few, occur in it: as under Terra Oiberni Episcopi in Boleham in Suffex, you may there find, that Decimam Ecclesie Clerici tenent, et valet xli. s. where the least value of the Manor is made at xli. s. per annum. (2) In Hampshire under Terra Oiberni Episcopi, you read Ecclesia S. Michaelis de Monte tenet de Rege in Basingstoches Hundred, unam Ecclesiam cum i. hida et Decima de Manerio de Basingstoches. Ibi est Presbyter. (3) So, in the same Shire under Terra Regis; Iste Rex tenet Wallepe, &c. ibi Ecclesia, cui pertinent una hida et medietas Decime Manerii et totum Curset, et de Decima villanorum xlvj. denarii et medietas agrorum. Ibi est Ecclesiola ad quam pertinent viii. acrae de Decima. (4) And in the same Shire also among the Abbot of Lire's possessions, the Tithe of Cladford is reckon'd, as also of Adrintone: and also the Tithes of Stanham: (5) and under Terra Canoniorum de Twinham is found, Ad hanc Ecclesiam pertinet tota decima de Twinham, et tertia pars Decimarum de Holebist; (6) and in the Isle of Wight there are vi. Churches, belonging to the Abbey of Lire, Decimas habent de omnibus redditibus Regis. (7) So, in Bedfordshire, the Church of St. Mary de Cormeliss hath divers Tithes among its revenues. (8) But the mention of Tithes where Churches are nevertheless spoken of, is but very seldom through that whole Description: and indeed in certain Counties, as Somerset, Devon, Cornwall, and some few others, you shall rarely have a parish Church noted, but in others, very often Churches are, but very few examples of their having Tithes: sometimes also grants of Tithes by lay owners are there mentioned, out of the use of which, it may be well thought that the moiety or third parts of Tithes belonging to this or that Church, had their beginnings." The arbitrary consecrations of Tithes were finally remedied by Pope Innocent the third, in a decretal Epistle sent to the Archbishop of Canterbury, and dated from the Palace of Lateran, about the year 1200. The following are among the principal passages in the Domesday Survey, beside those Mr. Selden quotes, which add strength to his observations. In the account of Bovecome in Hampshire, tom. i. fol. 52. it is said "Hui<sup>9</sup> ƿ<sup>9</sup> æcciam cū unā 4 træ ten<sup>4</sup> monachi de Lire. The payment of Tithes generally is several times enjoined in the Saxon Laws: and in the Liber Legum Ecclesiasticarum, printed in Wilkins's Concilia, vol. i. p. 265. there is an express Law, to which the date of 994 is assigned, "Ut sacerdotes aliorum parochianos ad se non alliciant ob contrahendas decimas." Still the practice which Selden speaks of continued.

§ 7. Ecclesiastical
Matters.

Tithes from their respective Parishes had not been occasionally made, it would have been unnecessary to have noted here that the whole of the Tithes of Bovecome belonged to the parish Church. By the testimony of the two shires of Nottingham and Derby, "de Stori antecessore Walterii de Aincurt. dñt qđ fine alicuj<sup>9</sup> licentia potuit facere sibi æcciam in sua tra 7 in sua foca 7 suā decimā mittere q̄ uellet." (') Under Colingeburne in Wiltshire we find the Tithe of a ruined Church transferred to the priest of another Parish. "Ad æcciam pñi dimid<sup>4</sup> Hidā. Huj<sup>9</sup> æccie decimā ten Giraldu<sup>9</sup> pbr de Wiltone. 7 uat x. solid. Æccia uasta 7 dissipata." (') Among the Clamores in Chetleuen, we read, "Dicunt pñire ad Æcciam de Granthā decimas 7 æccasticas consuetudines de Winebruge Waḡ 7 de Treos Waḡ de ofñib<sup>9</sup> focis 7 inlandis quas rex habet ibi." (') The Churches and Tithes and even the Priests on many of the King's manors in Herefordshire are stated to have belonged to St. Mary de Cormelis. Under Stanford in that county the Tithes only are mentioned as belonging to the Monastery. (')

Among the endowed Churches, that of Boleham in Suffex was probably one of the richest. In the reign of King Edward it had had an appendage of land to the extent of a hundred and twelve hides, which, at the time of the Survey, were reduced to sixty-five hides. (') The generality of Church endowments were infinitely smaller. A hide, a half-hide, or, in different degrees, from five to fifty acres, formed the usual extent of what was to support the Church. At Berchingas in Suffolk, a Church occurs endowed with eighty-three acres; (') at Bariham in Norfolk, with a hundred acres. (') The Church of Wellingore in Lincolnshire had a hundred and twenty-nine acres of meadow, beside fourteen acres of other land. (') The Church of Stanton in Shropshire had a hide and a half belonging to it. (') Throughout Norfolk the value is added to almost every Church, with the quantity of land, however small, annexed to it.

"Æcclesia sine terra" occurs a few times in the second volume of the Survey, in the returns from Norfolk and Suffolk. In the Survey for Yorkshire, under Elington we find the singular entry of "Æcc'la sine p'bra." (') Under Mortesfunde in Hampshire we read "Thomas Archieps ten<sup>4</sup> unā æcciam 7 vi. capellas cū om<sup>4</sup> i<sup>9</sup> c<sup>4</sup> suetudine uiuor<sup>9</sup> 7 mortuor<sup>9</sup>." (') At the beginning of the account of Herefordshire it is said, "In Arcenefelde habet Rex tres æccias. Prefbitori harū æcciarum ferunt legationes regis in Wales 7 quicq<sup>9</sup> eoꝝ cantat pro rege ii. missas una quaq<sup>9</sup> ebdomada. Siquis eoꝝ moritur rex habet de eo xx. sot p<sup>4</sup> c<sup>4</sup> suetud." (') Under Hamme in the same county, "Ad hoc tñ pñi unā æccia uocat<sup>4</sup> Ladgvern. 7 ibi sunt iii. car<sup>4</sup> sed non geld<sup>4</sup> tra huj<sup>9</sup> æcc'la. Pbr redt ii. sot inde." (') In the account of Hertford we find one layman selling Churches to another. Ipse Viui 7 dare eas 7 uende<sup>4</sup> poterat." (') Under Celfea in Berkshire, the Dues of the Church as well as the Tithes appear to be valued. "De hoc tñ ten<sup>4</sup> Abbatia de Monte S. Michaelis de rege unā æcciam cū hida. Duo etiā pñri in ead uilla ten<sup>4</sup> de rege in decima 7 æccia qđ uat. iiii. lib." (') In "Terra Colebni pñri." in Norfolk, it is said, "Fecit Coleb<sup>4</sup> nui q<sup>4</sup> dā eccl<sup>4</sup> am s<sup>4</sup> i<sup>9</sup> Nicholai. concessu regis 7 fi rex concedit dabit. xx. aḡ. 7 ideo. cantat. missā una quaq<sup>9</sup> ebdomada. 7 pñtū p<sup>4</sup> rege. 7 ii. sot uat." (') In Suffolk, under Tormai, we have an entry

§ 7. Ecclesiastical
Matters.

The Ecclesiola and Capellæ of the Survey appear to have been sometimes subordinate to the Ecclesiæ, and sometimes separately endowed. At Ceebeham, in Surry, it is said, "Ibi eccl̃a 7 alia capella." (3) In Suffolk, under Wiffeta a Capella is mentioned as subordinate to the Church. (4) In Norwich it is said, "In burgo tenent burgenfes xliiii. Capellas." (5) After the mention of the Church of Tarentefort in Kent, it is said, "extra hanc sunt adhuc ibi. iii. eccl̃efolæ." (6) At Postinges in Kent, "ii. eccl̃efolæ" occur without any notice of a Church. (7) The Ecclesiola at Wallope in Hampshire, mentioned in a former page, (8) appears to have been independent of the mother Church.

Beneficium, as applied to a Church, is a term but once used in Domesday. (9)

It may be worth remarking, that while many of our antiquaries suppose that the Churches of the Anglo Saxons, more particularly in the earlier periods, were built of wood, one instance only of a Church so constructed, occurs in Domesday, at Begeland in Yorkshire. "Ibi p̃br 7 eccl̃a lignea." (10)

2. Persons.

PRESBYTERI occur in several of the counties as holding lands like ordinary tenants. In Leicestershire, under the title of "Elemofinæ Regis," we find four priests and a female holding separate parcels of land in capite. (11) In Dorsetshire, at Hinetone, it is said, "De hac ead̃ tra tenuit qdā p̃br. i. hidā in tainlande (that is in hereditary succession) 7 poterat cū ea ire q̄ uoleb. Modo ē in dñio regis. De ip̃a ead̃ tra ten alius p̃br manens in Tarente. unā hid̃ 7 tciā partē. i. hidæ. 7 ibi h̃f. iii. uillōs. 7 iii. bord. cū. i. caŃ. 7 i. ac̃ p̃ti." (12) In many of the counties, more especially in Herefordshire, Leicestershire, and Warwickshire, Presbyteri frequently occur classed with the villani, radmanni, and bordarii upon the lords demesne. As on Earl Aubrey's demesne at Cliptone in Warwickshire, "In dñio, sunt. ii. caŃ. 7 xii. uillō cū p̃bro. 7 xx. bord." (13) So again, more than once, on the lands of the Earl of Melent. In the account of Worcesterhire, at Nadford, among the lands belonging to the abbey of Westminster, we read, "Ibi. ē p̃br. fine car̃ fine pecunia." (14) In Essex, under Brafteda, we read, "Tē. iii. bor. n̄. viii. 7 i. p̃br." (15)

Kelham gives Rector as one interpretation of Presbyter. (16) In tom. i. fol. 241 b. "Turbit p̃br Sīgandi arch." occurs. Tom. i. fol. 151. 210 b. "Wlmar<sup>o</sup> p̃br R. E." Ibid. fol. 208. occurs, tom. i. fol. 373 b. The Capellani were frequently domestic priests, as Capellanus R. E.; Capellani Comitis Rogerii; Capellanus Episcopi de Hereford; Capellani Radulfi Comitis. The Clerici appear to have been in some instances the same with the Capellani. At Bosgrave, in Suffex, tom. i. fol. 25 b. "Clerici Æccle" occur, and at Elintone in Devonshire, tom. i. fol. 100 b. "Clerici uiffæ." At Taceham, in Berkshire, tom. i. fol. 56 b. we read, "Æcciam huj<sup>9</sup> tē. ii<sup>o</sup> clerici. cū m. hid." In tom. i. fol. 16 b. Prefbyteri and Clerici are used synonymously. Sacerdos occurs twice in the second Volume of the Survey.

3. Church Dues.

Circet.

Circet, or Circeti, (pronounced Kirkset and Kirket) from the Anglo-Saxon Cýric ƿceat, was Church-payment or Contribution. The Latin writers, says Bishop Kennett, have commonly called it Primitia Seminum, because it was at first a quantity of Corn paid to the Priest on St. Martin's day, as the first fruits of Harvest; enjoined by the Laws of King Ina, cap. iv. and King Canute, cap. x. (1) So, in the Survey, in the account of the lands belonging to Pershore Abbey in Worcesterhire, we read "Dicit comitat<sup>9</sup> qđ eccla de pfore deb<sup>9</sup> habere Circet de oñibz trecentis hid. scilicet de unaqđ hida ubi francus hō manet unā summā annonæ in festo S. Martini" : (1) and in the page immediately preceding, "Dicit uicecomitat<sup>9</sup> qđ de unaqua, hida trā. libera uel uillana. quæ ad æcciam de Wirestre ptinet. debet ep̄s habe in die festo S. Martini unā sumā annonæ de meliori quæ ibidē crecit. Qđ si dies ille n̄ reddita annona transierit : qui retinuit annonā reddet 7 undecies pfoluet 7 insup forisfacturā ep̄s accipiet. qualē de sua terra habere debet." (1) The payments for it, of course, varied. At Epinges in Suffex we read "de Circet xlv denar." (1) At Edeborne in Hampshire, "Circet qđ appiat : xlviii. fol." (1) At Watone in Dorsethire, "De ea habeb<sup>9</sup> æccia Abodesber T. R. E. vi. acs messis 7 iii. Circet de ðuetad." (1) At Befintone in Oxfordshire, "de Circet xi. fol." (1) At Hedintone in the same county "x. fol. 7 vi. den." (1) and in the account of Lappewrte in the county of Worcester, "De hac trā p singulos annos reddunt : viii. den ad æcciam de Wirestre p Circette 7 recognitione terræ." (1)

Bishop Kennett says, it was afterwards taken for a reserve of Corn rent, paid to the secular priests, or to the religious. So in the reign of Henry the Third, Robert de Hay, rector of Souldern, claimed from the abbot and convent of Ofeney a certain measure of Corn under the title of Churchset for their demesne lands in Mixbury. He adds, it was sometimes a general word, and included not only corn, but poultry or any other provision that was paid in kind to the religious. So in the Inquisition of the rents of the Abbey of Glastonbury, Anno 1201, "Manerium Glaston' reddit per an. in gabulo vii. lib. vi. fol. ii. den. in Churchset lx. gallinas et semen frumenti ad tres acras. Cartul. de Glaston. MS. fol. 38." (1)

SECT. 8.—HISTORICAL EVENTS NOTICED IN THIS RECORD.

Historical Events
in this Record.

OF historical facts, there are but few notices; and by far the greater number are casual. The references to Reigns earlier than that of Edward the Confessor are scarcely worth noticing. In two or three entries the time of Cnut is mentioned. Four hides of land at Wenloch in Shropshire, belonging to the abbey of Saint Milburgh, are stated to have been released from geld, "T. R. Cnut." (<sup>1</sup>) Two hides of land at Bedesfeld in Cheshire, claimed from the manor of Robert Fitz Hugh, are mentioned as having belonged to the See of Chester at the same period. (<sup>2</sup>) And at the end of what relates to Sudminstre in Essex, it is said, "Hanc terrā tulit Gnut rex." (<sup>3</sup>) Once also we have the mention of Æthelred the father of King Edward. (<sup>4</sup>)

The memory of Edward the Confessor appears to be treated with the greatest respect throughout the Survey. In two instances he is termed "gloriosus rex Edwardus." (<sup>5</sup>) We have also allusions to the facts and circumstances of his reign. His gifts to monasteries are more than once entered. His gift of Sandwich to the church of the Holy Trinity at Canterbury is particularly noticed. (<sup>6</sup>) He is stated to have bestowed the manor of Melehou in Bedfordshire, which at the time of the Survey was held by the Bishop of Durham, on Harold's foundation at Waltham. (<sup>7</sup>) And, in his sickness, to have given two hides at Amesbury to the Abbess of Wilton. (<sup>8</sup>)

In the account of the lands belonging to the See of Chester, King Edward is said to have given all the land beyond the Dee to Griffin; but when Griffin forfeited it, it was restored to the See. (<sup>9</sup>) This Griffin was Griffith ap Llewellyn, King of North Wales, whose irruption into Herefordshire with Blein or Blethyn, in 1054, had been before noticed, when the land in Arcenefeld is said to have been wasted. (<sup>10</sup>)

Among the more eminent persons of the reign of Edward the Confessor, mentioned in different parts of the Survey, we find Siward Earl of Northumberland, another Siward "teinus 7 cognatus regis Edwardi," (<sup>11</sup>) Godeva, the celebrated countess of Mercia, and Edric the admiral, "rektor navis R. E." who, after William's arrival, is said to have lived an outlaw in Denmark. (<sup>12</sup>) Hereward also is mentioned, the mirror of Knighthood in the Saxon period; (<sup>13</sup>) and "Æluea foror Heraldii," of whom, if we may judge from the minute account given by Sir William Dugdale of Earl Goduin's family in the Baronage, no mention is made by our historians. (<sup>14</sup>)

The exile of Goduin and Harold is once alluded to in Herefordshire. Goduin, in an interlineation above his name, is occasionally styled comes, but more generally liber bonus, a title which appears throughout the Survey to have been given to the greatest and most powerful Earls of the preceding time: (<sup>15</sup>) and even to Harold himself.

Historical Events
in this Record.

Throughout the Survey Harold is constantly spoken of as the usurper of the realm: "quando regnum invasit." Once only, at Sudbertune in Hampshire, it is said, "quando regnabat." Of William it is as constantly said, "postquam venit in Angliam." Once only does the expression occur, "postquam W. rex conquifuit Angliam;" when he conquered, or acquired England. (') Haroldus invasit is also the language of the Chartulary of Battle abbey. "Anno ab Incarnatione Domini M.lxvi. Dux Normannorum nobilissimus Willelmus cum manu valida pugnatorum in Angliam transnavigavit, ut regnum Anglie, sibi a suo consanguineo Rege Ædwardo dimissum, de manu Herald, qui illud tirannica fraude invaserat, abstraheret." (") In a few instances the names of persons are recorded who fell either in the battle between Harold and the Norwegians, or in the fatal field of Hastings. (')

The decision of the cause tried by virtue of a special commission in the county court of Kent at Finnerden, about the year 1072, when Archbishop Lanfranc recovered twenty-five manors in different counties of which he had been dispossessed by Odo Bishop of Baieux and Earl of Kent, is pointedly alluded to. (')

The irruption of Trhearn ap Coradoc in 1074 is clearly noticed in Gloucestershire, where we find "III. uillæ wastatæ per regem Caraduech." (')

The Conqueror's journey into Wales also, in 1079, is alluded to, tom. i. fol. 31 b. "Quidā p̄posit⁹ regis nōe Lofus hoc ƿ calūniat: 7 hoēs de Hunđ illi testificant: q̄a tenebat illud de rege q̄dō fuit rex in Wales. 7 post tenuit. donec ejs̄ baioc in Chent preß." (')

It is remarkable, that not a single manor in any part of England, or even the smallest portion of land, is put down in the Survey as belonging to any of the Conqueror's sons. There is one entry, however, which places his second son, William, in the light of an usurper of property. Among the lands belonging to the Bishop and Monks of Salisbury, at Staplebrige in Dorsetshire, we read, "De ead̄ etiā tra ten<sup>4</sup> Manaffes III. virg q̄s. W. fili⁹ regis tulit ab eccl̄a sine consensu Epi 7 monachorum." (')

Mathilda, a daughter of the Conqueror unnoticed by any of our historians, occurs in the account of Hampshire. (')

<sup>1</sup> Compare Script. Norm. antiq. a Duchesne, p. 204. In two instances among the possessions of Battle Abbey, and almost throughout the lands of the Earl of Ow in Suffex, (tom. i. fol. 17 b. 18. 18 b. 19.) the destruction occasioned by the Conqueror's army on its first arrival is apparent; more particularly under Witinges, Holintun (Hullington), Bezelei (Bexhill), Wiletham, Crohest (Crowhurst), Wilingham, Watlintone (Wartington), Nedrefelle (Netherfield), Brunham (Ashburnham), Hasleße, Wigentone, Wilendone, Salhert, Drifnefel, Gestelinges (Gusling), Luet, Hiham (Ham the site of the present town of Winchelsea), and Selescome. The value of each manor is given as it stood in the reign of Edward the Confessor; afterwards it is said "vastatum fuit," and then follows the value at the time of the Survey. The reader who takes the Map of Suffex and proceeds eastward from Pevensey, by Bexhill, Crowhurst, Hollington, Guefllinge, and Ickleham, round by Ledefcombe, Wartington, and Ashburnham, will form a circuit of country very near the centre of which stands Battle, the spot of the Conqueror's victory. It is remarkable that of the places above enumerated from Domesday, several are mentioned as having been originally the property of Earl Godwin, Harold, or the Countess Goda.

<sup>8</sup> Domesd. tom. i. fol. 49. Compare Sandford, Genealog. Hist. fol. Lond. 1707. pp. 9. 10. Malmesbury says, "Filie ipsius fuerunt quinque; prima, Cecilia Cadomenis Abbatissa, quæ vivit, altera Constantia Comiti Britannie Alano Fergut in conjugium data, austeritate iustitiæ provinciales in mortiferam sibi petionem exacuit; tertia Adola Stephani Bisenfis Comitis uxor, laudatæ in seculo potentiæ virago, noviter apud Marcenniacum sanctimonialis habitum sumpxit. Duorum aliorum nomina exciderunt; unius, quæ Haroldo (ut diximus) promissa, infra maturos conjugii annos obiit; alterius, quæ Aldefonso Gallicie regi per nuncios jurata, virginem mortem impetravit a Domino. ## SECT. 9.—ILLUSTRATIONS OF ANCIENT MANNERS.

in this Record.§ 9. Illustrations of Ancient Manners.

THERE are a few passages in Domesday peculiarly illustrative of ancient Manners. In Berkshire, tom. i. fol. 57 b. is this singular entry under the royal demesnes at Henret, now Hendred: "Henric<sup>9</sup> ten<sup>1</sup> ibi i hid quæ fuerat in firma regis. Godricus tenuit. Aluric<sup>9</sup> de Tacehā dicit se uidisse breuem regis qđ cā dederit feminæ Godrici in dono. eo qđ nutriebat canes suos. Sed nemo ē in Hund qui breuem uiderit pter Aluricum." (1)

Gifts of lands "de uictu et uestitu Monachorum" frequently occur. In the account of Wiltshire it is said, "Ipsa æcta [Wiltun] tenebat n. hid T. R. E. quas Toret dederat ibi cū duab<sup>9</sup> filiab<sup>9</sup> suis 7 ex eis sep fueſt ueſtitæ donec ep̄s baioc̄ſis inſiſte abſtulit æctæ." (2)

In the account of the manor of Hiwi in Wiltshire, belonging to Ralph de Mortimer, we have an instance of balding for three lives. "Totū emit eā T. R. E. de æcta Malmestienſi. ad etatē triū ho'm. 7 infra hē tminū poterat ire cū ea ad quē uellet dñm." (3) So, among the lands held under Perfhore Abbey at Wadberge by Urlo. "Hanc emit qđ Godricus tein<sup>9</sup> regis E. uita triū heredū. 7 dabat in anno monachis. i firmā p̄ recognitione. Modo hī hanc trā tcius hares. ſcilicet Vrlo qui eā tenet. Poſt cui<sup>9</sup> mortē debet redire ad æctam S. Mariæ." (4) A third instance will be noticed preſently at Eſcelie in Worceſterſhire. (5) This cuſtom, however, is older than Domesday. It is noticed in the "Indiculum Libertatis de Oſwaldes Lawes Hundred" of the time of Edgar—"per ſpatium temporis trium hominum, id eſt, duorum poſt ſe heredum." In Dorſetſhire, under Cateſclive, we have the purchaſe of a leaſe for life. "Hanc trā ſimilit̄ emit Alnod ab ep̄o Aluoldo. ea t̄uentione ut poſt ej<sup>9</sup> mortē ad æctam rediret." (6)

Somerſetſhire is the firſt County in the Survey in which we have mention of the Ordeal. Of certain lands connected in cuſtomary rents and ſervices with Taunton we read, "De his oſliby tris facturi ſacrāmētū ut Judiciū portaturi ad Tantone ueniunt." (7) In the account of Lincoln, alſo, in contradiction of the teſtimony of the burgeſſes of the city, it is ſaid, "Sed his jurantibz contradicūt Vluiet pbr 7 offert ſe portaturū Judiciū qđ non ita eſt ſicut dicunt." (8) In the ſecond volume of the Survey the readineſs of claimants to prove by Ordeal or by Battle occurs in a greater variety of inſtances. In Norfolk, "In Mateleſc ubi comes Alan<sup>9</sup> ten<sup>1</sup> calupniat. i. hō regis. xvi. ac terræ offerendo Juditiū t̄ Bello cont hund. qđ teſtat eos comiti. s; quidā hō comitis uult pbare qđ hund uerū teſtatur t̄ Juditiū t̄ Bello. Ribald<sup>9</sup> ten&." (9) In the ſame County, under Biſkele it is ſaid, "Hanc terrā calūpniatur Godricus Dapiſer p hominē ſuum Juditiū t̄ Bello. Radulfū ſcilicet. qđ tenuit ad feudū comitis. R. 7 hund teſtatur ad feudū R. Bigot." (10) And among the lands belonging to the Monastery of Ely in Photetorp we read, "Hanc trā calumpniat eſſe libām Vlchetel hō Hermeri. q̄c̄q, m̄ iudicet t̄ Bello t̄

Land in Dover occurs in Gloucestershire among the property of Roger de Laci. “Id̄ Rog<sup>9</sup> ten Svintone. 7 mat<sup>9</sup> ej<sup>9</sup> ten de sua dote.” (2) Of land at Legra in Essex it is said, “Iste Scalpin<sup>9</sup> dedit uxori suæ in dote. uidentibz iibz bōibz scit̄ Rogo Marefcalco & qđā anglico.” (3) In the account of the Customs of Oxfordshire we read, “Si quis aliquē interfecerit intra curiā ut domū suam, corpus ejus et omnis substantia sunt in potestate regis p̄ter dotem uxoris ejus si dotatā habuerit.” (4)

In Worcesterhire, under Escelle, we have a remarkable instance of a nuncupative Will. “Hoc ƿ̄ emit iſd̄ Wluuin<sup>9</sup> T. R. E. de eſjo Cestrenſi ad ætatē triū hōum. Qui cū infirmat<sup>9</sup> ad finē uitæ uenisset uocato filio suo eſjo. Li. (5) 7 uxore sua & pluribz amicis suis dixit. Audite uos amici mei. Hoc ita fuisse testificant meliores hōes toti<sup>9</sup> comitat<sup>9</sup>.” (6)

In the same County also we have two remarkable instances of the ancient Method of giving Seisin. Under Witene, of certain land belonging to Urfo de Abetot, it is said, “Hanc trā donauit qđā Vluiet eīd̄ æcclæ de Eueshā. 7 posuit donū sup<sup>9</sup> Altare qđo fili<sup>9</sup> ei<sup>9</sup>. Aluiet fact<sup>9</sup> est ibi monachus. Hoc factū ē q̄to anno regni regis E. Postea ū præsūt̄it ab̄b̄ Wluuin<sup>9</sup> hanc trā suo auunculo quādiu ipse hō uiueret. W. in Angliā uenisset. 7 tenuit iſd̄ ab̄b̄ qđiu uixit. 7 etiā successor ei<sup>9</sup> Walterius ab̄b̄ simul tenuit amplius quā vii. annis.” (7) And under Hantune, “Hoc ƿ̄ emit ab̄b̄ ei<sup>9</sup> de æcclæ [i. e. Euesham] a qđā taino qui trā suā recte poterat uendere cui uellet. T. R. E. 7 emptū donauit æcclæ p̄ unū Textū (8) posuit super Altare. teste Comitatu.” (9) An Entry not unfamiliar occurs in the second Volume, under Breccles in Norfolk: “In Breccles x. v. ac semp̄ dim̄ car. v. foc in Sabam & p̄posit<sup>9</sup> de Saham uendidit t. r. Witi per unum frenum.” (10)

In Huntingdonshire we have a reference to a custom still in part retained among our Colleges and corporate societies. Turchil, who held Coninchune of the Countess Judith, had also held six hides of the land of the abbat of St. Mary Thorney, for which, it is said, “Karitatem reddēbat,” he made an allowance of liquor, which was drank at festivals by the religious in commemoration of their founders and benefactors. “Homines de hundædo,” it is added, “nesciunt quantum.” (11) The “Poculum Charitatis,” or Grace-Cup, is still retained under the same designation in our Universities.

<sup>1</sup> Domest. tom. ii. fol. 213. See other instances, tom. ii. fol. 110 b. 137. 162. 166. 172 b. 193. 208. 277 b. 332. The Ordeal, it is well known, was of two kinds, Fire-Ordeal and Water-Ordeal. The ceremonies attending both are described in the Laws of Ina. Wilk. Leg. Anglo-Sax. p. 27. See also the Laws of Æthelstan, Edward the Confessor, and the Conqueror. Ibid. pp. 60, 198, 229. “Ferri candentis Judicium,” the taking a piece of red-hot iron in the hand, is the only Ordeal noticed in the Survey. The reason of this is given by Glanville, Tract. de Leg. & Consuet. Regni Angliæ, 12<sup>o</sup> Lond. 1604. l. xiv. c. 1. “In tali autem casu tenetur se purgare is qui accusatur per Dei iudicium, scilicet per calidum ferrum, vel per aquam, pro diversitate hominum, scilicet per ferrum calidum si fuerit bonus liber, per aquam si fuerit rusticus.” Throughout Domestday, the claimants of land were likely to be of the higher rank. We have not a single instance in the Survey of the Ordeal by Water. The trial by battle was entirely of Norman introduction. See Blackst. Comment. 4<sup>o</sup>. Oxf. 1766. vol. iii. p. 337. For the abolition of the Ordeal in the reign of Henry the third, compare Rymer, Fœd. tom. i. p. 228.

<sup>8</sup> Dr. Nash, p. 17. says Du Cange confines the word Textus to the Gospels; but by an instance which he cites, and the name of Textus Rossensis given to the Register of the Church of Rochester, he considers it to mean, generally, a Deed or Instrument.

The practice of Hawking is illustrated by numerous Entries. In several places we find a sum, no less than ten Pounds, made the optional payment for a Hawk: (1) and, at Worcester, a Norway Hawk is particularly specified. (2) In the account of Surrey we read, under Pechingeorde, "Hoc<sup>1</sup> epi Baiocfis caluniant sup hanc trā ad op<sup>o</sup> regis p singlos annos ii. mark auri. vel ii. accipitres. 7 hoc p ccessionē abbis fr̄is Ofuoldi." (3) In Gloucestershire, we find it said of certain Villae, "Hi reddunt xlvii. sextaria mellis. 7 xl. porc. 7 xli. uaccas 7 xxviii. solidi pro accipitribz." (4) Among the possessions of Battle Abbey, at Limenesfeld, "iii. nidi accipitr. in filua" are mentioned. (5) Aeries of Hawks are noticed in Buckinghamshire, (6) Gloucestershire, (7) Worcestershire, (8) Herefordshire, (9) Shropshire, (10) and, more frequently than in other Counties, in Cheshire (11): as well as among the Lands between the Ribble and the Mersey. (12) An Aery, says Dr. Nash, includes not only the nest or brood, but the place destined for the breeding or training of Hawks. (13) The liberty of keeping these Aeries, he adds, was in early times granted as a privilege to some great persons; as in a Charter of Henry the third to the Church of York: "In nemore de Blideward habebat Archiepiscopus et Canonici de Ebor' proprios foretarios suos, et mel, et aras accipitrum et noiforum." The custom of a Widow not marrying again till after a year, seems noticed in the Survey of Norfolk, under Plummesteda: "p<sup>o</sup>q rex. W. uenit in hanc terrā inuasit Almarus epi p foris factura. quia mulier que tenuit nupsit intra annu' p<sup>o</sup> morte' uiri." (15) This was in conformity to the Saxon Laws. In the "Liber Constitutionum" of 1008, it is said, "Quælibet Vidua que seipsam in pace cum Deo et Rege tenuerit, permaneat xii. menses absque marito, postea eligat quemcunque ipsa voluerit." (16) Here it was only an Injunction. Canute's laws imposed a severe penalty: "Et vivat quælibet Vidua absque marito duodecim menses, deinde eligat quem ipsa velit. Et si illa intra anni spatium, maritum eligeret, tunc perdat ea dotem mariti sui, et omnem possessionem, quam ipsa per priorem maritum habebat. Et capiant proximi amici terram et possessionem quam illa prius habuit; et sit ille maritus capitis estimationis reus apud Regem, vel apud illum, qui immunitatem concesserat. Et licet ipsa vi sit rapta, perdat eam possessionem, nisi illa a marito post hæc recedere et nunquam ipsius uxor esse velit. Et nunquam vidua sacris nimium festinantur initietur. Quælibet etiam vidua præstet armauentum intra annum, nisi prius mulctæ ex aliquo opportune fecerit." (17)

III.—ORIGINAL USES AND CONSEQUENCES OF THIS SURVEY.

By the completion of this Survey the King acquired an exact knowledge of the possessions of the crown. It afforded him the names of the land-holders. It furnished him with the means of ascertaining the military strength of the country: and it pointed out the possibility of increasing the revenue in some cases, and of lessening the demands of the Tax Collectors in others. (1) It was, moreover, a Register of Appeal for those whose titles to their property might be disputed.

Sir William Blackstone has observed that from the prodigious slaughter of the English nobility at the battle of Hastings, and the fruitless insurrections of those who survived, such numerous forfeitures had accrued, that William was able to reward his Norman followers with very large and extensive possessions. (2) Eadmer, Ingulph, and Henry of Huntingdon complain heavily of the extirpation of the English from offices of honour, power, and emolument, in Church and State. Yet this must have been the natural consequence of such a change as that which was occasioned by the arrival of the Normans. The Soldiers and ministerial dependants of the Conqueror were to be rewarded: and we cannot wonder to see them form the larger portion of the tenants in Capite. We find the Churches and Monasteries however still retaining their ancient patrimony, in some cases with considerable additions from the Conqueror himself. (3)

Edgar Adelung, the grandson of Edmund Ironside and heir to the Crown, occurs as a tenant in capite in Hertfordshire. (4)

Godeva, the widow of Leofric Earl of Mercia, occurs as a Tenant in Capite in Leicestershire: (5) and Alveva, the mother of Earl Morcar, continued at the time of the Survey to hold lands in the same County. (6) So also in Suffolk, although the land noticed in this latter entry must have been under sequestration: "Terra Matris Morchari Comitis quam Willielmus Camerarius et Otho Aurifex fervant in manu regis." (7)

Rembaldus, the Chancellor of Edward the Confessor, and Dean of the Collegiate Church of Cirencester, besides his ecclesiastical preferments, is entered as holding considerable estates: (8) and very numerous instances might be adduced of property held by men who had been either Thanes or Ministers in the Court of Edward the Confessor. (9)

<sup>1</sup> Under Eldewincle in Northamptonshire, tom. i. fol. 222. we read, "Valuit. xx. fol. Modo. xxx. fol. Si bene enervaret, c. fol. ualet." Instances of sinking in the value of property may be found in almost every County. In Yorkshire, which had been laid waste by the sword, the instances of depreciation are exceedingly numerous, even among the "Terra Regis." Of the Manor of Walegrif, tom. i. fol. 299. it is said, "T. R. E. uat lvi. libras in xxx. fol." Of Ficherings, ibid. "H. Man uat T. R. E. qd xx vii. lib. m. xx fol. 7 iii. den." Of Drifelt, fol. 299 b. "T. R. E. uat xl. lib. M hñ rex & est wast." Of these with sixteen other Manors in this County, all belonging to the King, (fol. 299. 299 b.) which appear to have been collectively valued in the reign of Edward the Confessor at £565. 2. 0. three appear in the time of the Conqueror to have been completely wasted, and the rest to have produced the small sum of £38. 9. 4.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

The Sub-feudatarii, or under-tenants, were disturbed, comparatively, in fewer instances.

Original Uses and Consequences
of this Survey.

Of the importance which William himself attached to the completion of the Survey, we have a sufficient evidence at the close of a grant which he made soon afterwards to the Abbey of Westminster. It gives the Monks their possessions at Piriford; and finishes, "Testibus W. Episcopo Dunelmensi & F. Tailleboke, Pest Descriptionem totius Angliæ." (') And that the value of the Great Survey was thoroughly perceived at a time but little subsequent to the Conquest, we learn from Robertus Montensis, who informs us it was imitated in Normandy by Henry the Second. (')

Matthew of Westminster, and Matthew Paris after him, say that a Tax of six shillings was raised upon every hide in consequence of the Survey; but they say nothing of its having been raised for any specific purpose. The author of the Saxon Chronicle, however, Hoveden, Henry of Huntingdon, the Chronicle of Mailros, and Simeon of Durham, separate this Tax from any connection with the Survey. They represent the Tax to have been levied at the end of 1083, or the beginning of 1084, immediately after the death of Queen Matilda: and place the formation of the Survey at a later Time.

In the Inquisitio Geldi for the five western counties in the Exeter Manuscript, Danegeld is throughout computed at six shillings per hyde, and wherever it differs it is only in small fractions, owing to the mistakes of the writer or copier, to which, by the manner in which they at that time expressed their sums and quantities, they were very liable (').

By this Survey the Conqueror was enabled to fix the proportion of Danegeld on the property of each landholder. Danegeld, from the payment of which the Confessor had absolved the English, was revived at an early period of William's reign: and it had become subject to numerous exemptions. The demesne lands of churchmen and religious houses were uniformly excused. The demesne lands of the great lords, and barons, and others who held by military service, were likewise exempted: and partial exemptions were made in favour of the barons of the exchequer, the sheriffs of counties, and the assessors and collectors of the Tax: a few exemptions, also, were claimed under especial grants from the King: by means of all which, it will be readily believed, the produce of the Tax had been much diminished. The Geld is never once mentioned in the county of Northampton. (') In Somersetshire, out of a hundred and thirteen hides of land in Wirestane hundred, Danegeld was answered to the crown for no more than fifty hides. Out of a hundred and four hides in Camefham hundred,

In Dorsetshire, out of thirty-four hides and a half in Pimpre hundred, it was answered only for thirteen hides. In Wiltshire, out of fifty-two hides in Stapla hundred, it was paid only for fourteen hides and half a virgate. And, in Cornwall, out of forty-four hides in Pantone hundred, Danegeld was answered for only eight hides. #### IV.—ITS CONSERVATION AND AUTHORITY IN COURTS OF LAW.

Its Conservation and Authority in Courts of Law.

"LIBER de Wintonia," the very name by which the Domesday Survey, in one passage, designates itself, is a sufficient evidence of the first place of its deposit. Ingulphus, who lived in the reign of the Conqueror, however, appears to have obtained extracts from it at London: (*) and the History of the foundation of Burton Abbey, gives a description of land more than once, "ut habetur in Libro de Domusdā, apud WINTONIAM et WESTMONASTERIUM." (*)

The exact time of the removal of the Record, if there was originally but one copy, cannot now be ascertained. Certain it is, that at a very early period it is described, in the Dialogus de Scaccario, as the inseparable companion of the Royal Seal. (*) And, it is possible that the name of Liber de Wintonia might only allude to the place where the Returns from the different counties were breviated; and that the original, immediately, or very soon after its completion, was removed to Westminster.

At Westminster it was kept with the King's Seal, by the side of the Tally-court in the Exchequer, under three locks and keys, in the charge of the auditor, the chamberlains, and deputy chamberlains of the Exchequer; (*) till in 1696 it was deposited among other valuable Records in the Chapter House, where it still remains.

Appeals to the decision of this Survey occur at a very early period. Petrus Blesensis notices an appeal of the Monks of Croyland to it in the Reign of Henry the First. (*) Others occur in the Abbreviation

Edmundi] queritur quod Olfertus de Wechesham, miles episcopi Eliensis, injuste levavit furcas et suspensum fecit in manerio de Hecham infra libertatem Sancti Edmundi et contra libertatem quam habuit beatus Edmundus a tempore Regis Edwardi et ex ejusdem Regis dono, et inde protulit Cartas diverforum regum, et preterea ponit se inde super ROTULUM WINTONIE. (*) Another instance, in a case of ancient demesne, occurs in the eleventh of King John. "Robertus Camerarius ponit se super ROTULUM WINTONIE quod terra illa pertinet a Conquestu Angliæ ad feudum quod ipse habet tenere in capite de Domino Rege." (*) In subsequent reigns the pleadings upon ancient demesne are extremely numerous, as may be seen in the Index to that work. (*) The proof of ancient Demesne still rests with the Domesday Survey. (*)

Its Confirmation and Authority in Courts of Law.

Other cases in which its evidence is yet appealed to in our courts of law, are, in proving the antiquity of Mills, and in setting up prescriptions in non decimando. By the statute of the 9th of Edward the second, called Articuli Cleri, it was determined that prohibition should not lie upon demand of Tithe for a new Mill. (*) The Mill therefore which is found in Domesday must be presumed older than the 9th of Edward the second, and is, of course, discharged, by its evidence, from Tithe.

On the discharge of Abbey lands from tithes, as proved by Domesday, it may be proper to state that Pope Paschal the second, at an early period, exempted generally all the religious from paying tithes of lands in their own hands. This privilege was afterwards restrained to the four favoured Orders, the Cistercians, the Templars, the Hospitalers, and the Premonstratensians. So it continued till the 4th Instances relating to the search whether Towns belonged to the King's ancient demesne in Domesday will be found in Madox's Firma Burgi, p. 5. A remarkable one, also, concerning Tavistock, will be found in the Abbrev. Placit. Mic. 7 Ed. I. Devon. rot. 7. p. 270. Upon a trial 37 Hen. VI. it was certified by the book of Domesday that London was not ancient demesne. Year Books 37 Hen. VI. p. 27.

Kelham says, "A question arising in the 12th of Edward the Third, whether the lands of Roger de Huntingfeld were holden of the King ut de Corona or ut de Baronia vel Honore; the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer were directed by the King's writs to search Domesday and other Records, and to call to their assistance the Judges and others of the King's Council, and to make their return thereof; they accordingly returned to the King in his Chancery a certificate, by which they set forth several things which were found upon the search, and (inter alia) verbatim what they found relating thereto in Domesday; but as to the words contained in the said book of Domesday, they set forth they were not able to make a declaration or interpretation of them, unless just as the words founded: 'Nescimus interpretationem facere nisi quatenus verba inde sonant.' Council of Lateran in 1215, when the privilege was again refrained to such lands as the Abbies had at that time, and was declared not to extend to any after-purchased lands. And it extends only to lands dum propriis manibus coluntur. (*) From the paucity of dates in early documents, the Domesday Survey is very frequently the only evidence which can be adduced that the lands claiming a discharge were vested in the Monastery before the year expressed in the Lateran Council. (*)

V.—PUBLICATION OF THE SURVEY.

Publication of the Survey. IN 1767, in consequence of an Address of the House of Lords, His Majesty was graciously pleased to give directions for the publication, among other Records, of the Domesday Survey. (*) In the following year, specimens, one executed with types, the other by engraving, were submitted by command of the Lords of His Majesty's Treasury to the President and Council of the Society of Antiquaries, for their opinion: and an engraved copy of the work appears to have been at first considered as the most proper and advisable. (*) At the close, however, of 1768, the fairest and most perfect Letter having been selected from different parts of the Survey, a resolution was taken to print it with metal types. A facsimile type, uniform and regular, with tolerable exactness though not with all the corresponding nicety of the original, was at last obtained, (*) and the publication was entrusted to Mr. Abraham Farley, a gentleman of learning as well as of great experience in Records, and who had had almost daily recourse to the Book for more than forty years.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

It was not however till after 1770 that the Work was actually commenced. It was completed early Publication of the in 1783, having been ten years in passing through the Press. The Type with which it was Survey. executed was destroyed in the fire which consumed Mr. Nichols's Printing-office in the Month of February 1808.
